SENATE ACTION PORTENDS NEW PAY REDUCTION

5 Per Cent Cut in Two Appropriation Bills Bratton's Aim.

CHAMBER MAY VOTE ON PROPOSAL TODAY

$19,000,000 Air Mail "Subsidy" Stricken in Drive for Economy.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Senate yesterday embarked on a new program of expenditure slashing that swept away $19,000,000 of Federal air mail appropriations and threatened additional hardships for Federal employes in the form of another percentage cut.

The chamber may vote today on the latest retrenchment proposal, directing the Treasury Secretary and the Postmaster General to save 5 per cent of all funds appropriated in both their departments.

Employes' pay will not be exempt from the further slash if the proposal carries, for an amendment offered by Senator Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, to spare those workers making $2,000 or less, failed yesterday by a vote of 47 to 20.

Bratton's Argument.

Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, author of the proposed 5 per cent departmental slash, insisted the plan is not aimed at Federal personnel. He said the money could be saved by "scientific paring" without dismissals, additional furloughs, or further pay reduction.

But Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, argued there is nothing to prevent department executives from making the Government workers bear the entire brunt of the proposed additional saving.

A point of order against the proposal, by Blaine, was sustained yesterday by the chair, but the ruling was immediately appealed by Senator Bratton, and a vote will be taken today on the appeal. The point at most would serve only to delay the final vote, as there is no question the Bratton amendment will be in order when the economy section of the Treasury-Postoffice bill is reached.

Senator Bratton estimated his amendment would save $45,000,000 on the Treasury-Postoffice bill alone, and $130,000,000 in all if applied to every department.

In dropping from the bill the $19,000,000 so-called "subsidy" for air mail operations, the Senate adopted,

Gypsy Feud Causes Holdup

Mother and Daughter Trussed and Robbed and Rival Tribe, Which Sold Daughter as Son's Bride, Is Sought by Police.

In a robbery believed by police to have been a sequel to an unsatisfactory marital arrangement between rival gypsy tribes, Mrs. Tinker Demetro, 50, and her daughter, Rosa, 20, were trussed in a barbarous manner last night and their home at 810 Florida avenue northwest was looted and $490 stolen.

The two women were found practically suspended by their hands from the top of a partition which had been torn away. Their legs were tied together with strong cords and their heads hooded with heavy bath towels. They were found by Sam Demetro, a son and brother, when he returned home. Without waiting to release them, he ran to the Second Police Precinct and reported the assault and robbery. Police worked about ten minutes in releasing them, and the Casualty ambulance was called.

Police were told the women were trussed and robbed by members of a gypsy family from Detroit, Mich., whose daughter had been sold in marriage to another son of the Demetro family. It was reported that the sale price was $3,000 and, apparently, the money was paid. However, the girl, Volita Stanley, 20, is said to have asked her family to rescue her.

Apparently, the girl was taken away about two weeks ago, but she, with her mother, Mary Stanley, 50, and three brothers, Steve, 25; Louie, 20, and Tom, 20, were named in a police lookout which was broadcast to all radio cars.

It was reported that they were driving either a Rolls Royce roadster or a Cadillac sedan. Police believe that they departed immediately for their home in Detroit.

CAMPAIGN TO ALTER CADET SYSTEM WON

School Board Votes to Put All-Size Students in Each Company.

A decision, tantamount to a victory for Dr. John C. Eckhardt in his campaign for what he terms a fairer high school cadet corps, was reached by the student activities committee of the Board of Education yesterday afternoon and approved by the board.

The committee, headed by the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, submitted a report emphasizing the need of uniformity of organization in the formation of companies in the several high schools and commending the method as suggested by Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High School.

Dr. Eckhardt, upon being notified of the board's action, said: "My scheme coincides with that recommended by the principal of Eastern High School, with the possible exception of the disposal of the February recruits for which I have a more equitable plan in mind, and one that I will make public in a few days."

The board committee's report concluded with the statement that it ses no reason for any radical change from the present practice. Dr. Eckhardt, commenting on this, said that his plan does not call for any radical change.

Dr. Bennett said that the uniform formation of cadet companies will go into effect next September, and that the work of organization of the companies will be left to the individual schools. The companies, now organized, will continue as they are.

Until Dr. Eckhardt served notice in a story published exclusively in The Washington Post yesterday morning that he intended continuing his fight even if the board opposed his recommendation, the student activities committee was prepafed to make a flat recommendation that the cadet corps continue without any change, it was understood.

Dr. Eckhardt, in his statement yes-

Three Drown, One Flees As Car Goes Through Ice

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Two women and a man were drowned today when an automobile in which they had visited a fishing shack a mile from shore on ice-covered Saranac Lake broke through the ice. They were reported by R. H. Stevens, who saw the accident, to be Mrs. Arthur Otis, 50, of Lake Clear; Mrs. Theress Lamay, of Paul Smith's, and Warren McClatchie, of Saranac Lake.

A second man in the car, Martin Otis, caretaker of a camp on the lake, dragged himself from the submerged machine. He ran from the scene and has not been found.

Man Jailed in $500 Theft From Chest

J. A. Scruggs Gives Up in New Jersey; Fund Was Insured.

John A. Scruggs, 29 years old, who has been sought since November by Washington police for the larceny of $500 from the Community Chest fund, surrendered to Chief of Police Talley at Absecon, N. J.

He was committed to the county jail at Mays Landing by Magistrate A. J. Craven to await the arrival of Washington detectives. Scruggs, who formerly lived at 1721 De Sales street northwest, told the police he was wanted by the Washington authorities.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, said last night the money taken was covered by insurance. The funds were from receipts of a dinner given at the Wardman Park Hotel by chest workers.

TARIFF ON JAPANESE RUBBER SHOES IS UP

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

In its first important move to protect American industries from ruinous competition with producers in depreciated currency nations, the United States Tariff Commission yesterday proclaimed vastly increased duties on rubber-soled footwear from Japan, one of the principal items in the long list of recently developed imports which have seriously undermined the market for domestic producers. The findings have been approved by President Hoover.

Because it found that the maximum increase of 50 per cent in the tariff duty, permitted under the flexible provisions of the Hawley-Smoot bill would not cope with the situation presented by Japan's tremendously depreciated money, the Tariff Commission resorted to the alternative of valuing these imports on the basis of the American selling price instead of the foreign invoice. The 1930 rate of 35 per cent ad valorem remains in effect, but the assessment shall be computed after March 3 this year on

Two House Democrats Ask Congress Pay Cut

(Associated Press.)

Two Democratic represenatives yesterday asked the House Expenditures Committee to cut the salaries of all members. Whittington, of Mississippi, wanted a slash to $7,500. Mitchell, of Tennessee, suggested a $5,000 salary.

The present rate is $10,000, but under the national economy act senators and representatives receive only $9,000. Chairman Cochran said further hearings will be held on the question.

Dover, Del., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Gov. C. Douglas Buck today signed a legislative bill which repealed the Klair law, the State's prohibition enforcement act.

HITLER OFFERS 4-YEAR PLANS TO SAVE REICH

REICHSTAG IS ENDED; ELECTION MARCH 5

Political Violence Continues; 11 Killed, 44 Wounded Since Monday.

Berlin, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—After President Von Hindenburg had dissolved the Reichstag tonight, Adolf Hitler, the new chancellor of the Reich, issued a proclamation to the German people in which he announced his government would put through two four-year plans to effect the salvation of farmers and workers.

Compulsory labor service and the establishment of farm colonies, the chancellor said, will constitute "the main pillars" of his program for the reconstruction of the Fatherland.

New elections to replace the Reichstag dissolved by presidential decree were set for March 5. Between now and the day of the voting the government will go to the people in an intensive campaign on the slogan "Hindenburg and Hitler."

The president dissolved the Reichstag because of the failure of negotiations designed to bring about the support, or at least the toleration, of the Centrist party, which would have permitted the Hitler cabinet to command a majority.

Eleven Killed Since Monday.

The stirring political events of the last few days—including the resignation of the Von Schleicher government and the unexpected elevation of Hitler—have been reflected in reports of political violence coming from many parts of the Reich. Since the National Socialist leader became chancellor on Monday eleven persons have been killed and 44 wounded seriously enough to require hospital treatment. Most of these casualties resulted from clashes between Communists and Nazis. In the last seven days 20 persons have been killed and 60 dangerously wounded.

The long-standing warfare between national socialism and communism was reflected in the chancellor's proclamation, in which he bitterly inveighed against the red movement and called upon the people to combat it.

Without describing his four-year plans in any detail, the chancellor said that one of them was to bring about the "salvation of the German

200 Stuck in Canyon Are Facing Starvation

In response to the request M. R. Tillotson, superintendent of the Grand Canyon National Park, started heavy snow removal equipment on the long trip over 38 miles of secondary road, now blocked to Hilltop, where a 14-mile trail from the bottom of Havasu Canyon meets the isolated artery.

BRITAIN MUST PROVIDE TRADE CONCESSIONS FOR CUT IN DEBT, BORAH WARNS CHAMBERLAIN

Aversion to 'Swap' Idea Outlined by Chancellor.

DENIES PLAN IS ENGLAND'S

Return to Gold Basis Still Distant, He Says.

London, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Britain's clear-cut stand for settling the war debts without "swapping" economic concessions with the United States, or pledging return to the gold standard except on definite conditions, was outlined with outspoken frankness today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain as the guest of the American Correspondents Association of London.

Mr. Chamberlain told the American writers that he did not come to make a speech on war debts, and his talk dealt in the main with an analysis of the world economic depression, the solution of which, he said, was largely dependent on the return of confidence everywhere.

But, following the British luncheon custom, the chancellor said he was willing to answer questions, and the reporters, availing themselves of a rare opportunity of cross-examining the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, shot them thick and fast.

Disfavors "Swapping Deal."

When the barrage was ended they rushed to the cables with the most comprehensive and authoritative declaration of the policy likely to be put forward by the British government during the forthcoming Washington discussions and the world economic conference that has yet been made available here.

Ruling out any policy of looking on the Washington debt talks as a "great swapping deal," Mr. Chamberlain said:

"The conception of concessions by Great Britain in return for the scaling down of war debts is not a British conception.

"The British view is that these obligations are not those of an ordinary debtor and creditor, but that adjustment is as much in the interest of the creditor nation as of the debtor."

On Gold Standard.

He remarked that the trade agreements drawn up at the imperial economic conference at Ottawa last summer "can not be torn up" and em-

35,000 Farmers Pledge Crop Strike in Argentina

ROOSEVELT TO BASE CUT ON RECIPROCITY

Firm in Linking War Debts Shift to Trade Benefits; Confers With Hull.

Warm Springs, Ga., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Details of a plan for world-wide lowering of tariff walls and stabilization of currencies in exchange for war debts relief were worked out today by President-elect Roosevelt with Senator Hull, of Tennesse, at his side.

The arrival of the silver-haired senator from Tennessee provoked a fresh outburst of conjecture about him for the Cabinet and he was listed by some of the Cabinet-makers here for Secretary of State. Before going to the "little White House" Senator Hull would not talk. He spent the night here.

As for the approaching war debts and economic meetings in Washington, President-elect Roosevelt rigidly maintained his silence on what he has in mind. He is going to play a lone hand and he is keeping his thoughts carefully shielded.

However, he did laugh at reports from abroad which stated he had discussed a three-year moratorium with Ambassador Lindsay, of Great Britain. These and some other accounts were described in high quarters as "fairy tales."

The speech today of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, stating that England was not regarding her war debt as a bargaining proposition, also brought no response here.

But there is no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt intends to get steps for world economic recovery in return for American relief to the European war debtors.

206 Chinese Ship Workers Barred

United States Denies Entry to Men Engaged by American Liners.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Boards of special inquiry at Ellis Island today ordered excluded from the United States 206 Chinese brought here to man two American ships, one of which is scheduled to leave on a world cruise Friday.

The Chinese were brought here to work on the Grace liner Santa Elisa and the Dollar liner President Johnson, 20 on the former and 186 on the latter, which is about to leave on a world cruise.

The inquiry board began investigation of the importation of the Chinese after an American Seamen's Association had made official protest. The President Johnson is being chartered for a special world cruise, and is not being operated by the Dollar Line at present.

Reed Deplores View; State Department Is Silent.

(Associated Press.)

Frank warning from Senate leaders that Great Britain can not expect debt adjustments without providing compensations was issued last night in response to Neville Chamberlain's statement that Britain does not regard the approaching debt discussions as "a great swapping deal."

Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, sounded the keynote of the reaction on this side of the ocean with a formal statement that if Britain will not consider other world problems in connection with debts "we have no alternative but to stand by the debt settlement heretofore made."

Other powerful voices from both parties joined with Borah's to emphasize the wide divergence of view with which the two nations, outwardly at least, are approaching the forthcoming conversations.

Reed Sees Scant Hope.

Congressional leaders were aroused particularly over Chamberlain's statement that, "The conception of concessions by Great Britain in return for the scaling down of war debts is not a British conception."

"If the British come to the conference in that frame of mind," Senator Reed, Pennsylvania Republican and Hoover administration spokesman, said, "I see no possibility of any conclusion being reached that is acceptable to both nations."

Senator Walsh, Montana Democrat and probable member of President-elect Roosevelt's Cabinet, said:

"Apparently, the English representatives are coming over to persuade us that it would be in our own interest to cancel or reduce the debts. My own judgment is that we are quite competent ourselves to reach a just conclusion in that matter."

Would Cancel Session.

"Without concessions there can be neither cancellation, revision nor postponement," Senator Watson, Republican leader, said, while Senator Pess (Republican), Ohio, commented that it apparently "is all a one-sided contract in which the debtor only is to be considered."

Borah said if Chamberlain's statement meant Britain was unwilling to consider any question at the world economic conference other than debts, the conference should be called off.

"Mr. Chamberlain," he said, "speaks of its being 'as much in the interest

TRADE PARLEY FATE IS WITH ROOSEVELT

Two Economists Report to Hoover on Progress of Proposed Session.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The fate of the World Economic Conference lies in the hands of President-elect Roosevelt, it became known here yesterday following the visit of the American technical experts to the White House. John H. Williams and Edmund E. Day, the two economists who have represented the United States at the previous meetings in Geneva, reported to President Hoover yesterday and afterward discussed the meeting with the President, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Assistant Secretary of State Harvey H. Bundy.

At the same time it became known that the organizing committee of the conference in Geneva last Monday had adopted the resolution to postpone all further discussion of the date of the conference until April 15. American Ambassador Sackett, who represents the United States along with Norman H. Davis, cabled the Department of State that this postponement is adopted unanimously at the suggestion of the chairman, Sir John Simon, who is also British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. This practically puts the conference back for another six months and it was believed in authoritative circles that the conference will not now be held until next summer or perhaps next autumn. Agreement between the United States and Britain on debts will constitute an indispensable preliminary to the conference, it was learned.

The two economic experts returned to New York last night. They have not received any instructions from

Hotel Guest Loses $18,000 in Jewels

Brooklyn Woman Misses Handbag After Auto Trip to Capital.

Arriving at the Willard Hotel from her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., last night, Mrs. Hannah Weber summoned Washington police to report the loss of jewelry valued at $18,000. Mrs. Weber said the jewelry was lost somewhere between Baltimore and the hotel. The loss was not discovered until she started to register. The jewels, she said, were in a small handbag.

Traveling by automobile, Mrs. Weber said a stop was made for lunch in Baltimore. When she reentered the car her coat caught in the door, and when she opened it the bag slipped out, Mrs. Weber declared. She also alighted from the machine in front of the Lincoln Memorial.

Besides the jewelry the bag contained $80 in cash, travelers checks worth $500, and a silver cigarette case and lighter.

Scandal of Ticket Scalping Is Suggested for Inaugural

Deserving Democrats in Parade Advised Not to Point Excitedly at Treasury as They Pass; Military Division to Impress Foreigners.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Great preparations are being made for the inaugural parade in this city on the fourth of March

There will be a mile of grand-stand seats, most of which probably will fall into the hands of the speculators, thus starting the new administration off with a successful scandal. If it looks as though there is to be no scandal over the scalping of the tickets and the flouting of the peoples' rights, Mr. Mike Jacobs, the scandal man of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, undoubtedly can be induced to come down to Washington as a matter of party loyalty and patriotism and improvise one.

Mr. Jacobs favors the theory that the citizens are never as anxious to get tickets as when the tickets are most expensive and hardest to find and has often said that, given a good scandal, he could get 30,000 customers into the Yale Bowl at $10 each to watch a man read a book.

As a personal friend of James A. Farley, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Jacobs certainly will do everything in his power to prevent the flop of the inaugural parade.

Mr. Farley will be marshal of the second division of the grand parade, next in line to the military and naval division, which will march under the command of Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone. There was some question at first whether there should be any military and naval division this time, as it did not seem that there was enough Army and Navy left to make a parade. A corporal would be more appropriate to command the unit which will be mustered by twos and threes from various posts around

FOREIGN DEBTS CUT OPPOSED BY WOMEN

Unalterable opposition to cancellation or reduction of foreign debts was pledged yesterday by the eighth women's patriotic conference on national defense at the closing of its sessions at the Mayflower Hotel.

The action of officials of the University of Maryland in suspending two students who refused to participate in military drills was indorsed by the conference on the grounds that students who receive education at the expense of the State and Federal Government incur a debt that can only be liquidated by the assumption of the full responsibilities of American citizenship.

In a series of resolutions, the conference advocated strong national defense; retention and strengthening of the chemical warfare service; the building up of the American Merchant Marine; the enactment of laws making it criminal to advocate the overthrow of the Government; reduction of immigration quotas, and opposition to the recognition of Soviet Russia.

Decides to Use Pressure.

The decision was made to keep a continuous pressure on Congress in behalf of stronger military protection. To that end they voted to have three women appointed to keep in close touch with Congress and to inform all participating organizations when bills of national defense import are pending.

Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland and chairman of the National Defense Committee of the American Legion, advised the women on the manner of putting pressure on Congress.

Congress Takes Notice.

"When I appear before a committee and tell them that I represent the American Legion defense committee with a membership of a million men, the National Rifle Association with a membership of 800,000 and also 190,000 National Guardsmen, those representatives sit up and take notice," he said.

Commander John S. Shafroth, U. S. N., attacked the conclusion of the Cause and Cure of War Conference recently held here under the leadership of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

"The bizarre theory has been evolved, according to Mrs. Catt, that competition of the war systems of nations is the one cause of war," he said. "Such a conclusion stands as an indictment of the intelligence of many well-intentioned people scattered throughout the country."

Senate as Tabernacle

Tydings Exhorts Members, But in Vain; Lame Duck Smoot Alone Willing to Sponsor Slash in Veteran Benefits.

(United Press.)

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, turned the Senate into one vast tabernacle yesterday and sought to convert his wayward Republican colleagues to economy.

His moving and emotional sermon on economy came in the middle of the debate on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill when airmail contracts were being discussed. Despite the fact that the Maryland senator's performance seemed to impartial observers to be a combination of the best efforts of Billy Sunday and Aimee Semple McPherson, only one knelt at the mourners' bench.

It was Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), Utah, who yielded to Tydings' eloquence. But Senators Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, and Arthur Vandenburg (Republican), Michigan, went out into the night, heads high and unrepentant.

Tydings opened with what was generally accepted as a rather deadly thrust of logic. The best way to cut expenses, he said, was to cut expenses. Right now, he thought, would be a splendid time to start. He mentioned the fact that President Hoover recently suggested a reduction in the money paid to veterans.

"But in my judgment," he shouted, "no such bill will be offered by any member on either side of the chamber. Will any Republican offer a bill to carry out the President's recommendation?"

It appeared that all the Republicans had formed a literary club and were busy reading newspapers. Then Tydings went after them with what is sometimes called the personal appeal.

"Will the senator from Connecticut (Bingham) do it?"

It developed that the senator from Connecticut would not.

"Will the senator from Michigan (Vandenberg) do it?"

The senator from Michigan scowled, but made no move toward the sawdust trail. Tydings whirled, and in one last rule-or-ruin attempt shouted:

"Will the senator from Utah (Smoot) do it?"

The senator from Utah rose slowly. It was apparent the senator from Utah was giving the proposition serious consideration. But the senator from Utah is not one to be stampeded, so he cautiously inquired:

"Does the senator ask will I do it?"

Tydings said, yes, he asked if the senator from Utah would do it.

The senator from Utah consulted his conscience.

"Yes," he said, "I will do it."

"Good," shouted Tydings. Happy smiles spread across the faces of Democrats. But the end was not yet. Tydings wanted more, so he inquired.

"Now, who will offer an amendment to carry out the President's other economies. Who will be the first * * *"

Senator George H. Moses, presiding, suddenly recalled the Senate was operating under a 10 minute limitation of debate rule, so he stopped Tydings.

Senator Huey Long (Democrat), Louisiana, who had been eying Tydings' performance enviously, asked unanimous consent to speak. He already had used his 10 minutes. What he wanted, he said, was just one more minute, just 60 seconds, just a twig in the great forest of time past and future. He got it. Long turned to Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, author of an airmail amendment and remarked:

"The senator from Tennessee really doesn't know what he wants to do, does he?"

"Thank you," shouted McKellar, "but I really don't care what the senator from Louisiana thinks."

"All that is coming out of your one minute," Moses warned Long.

"Then my minute must be about up, isn't it?" the Kingfish asked.

39 to 35, an amendment by Senator Robinson (Arkansas), Democratic leader, who said he wanted to "test" the chamber on whether it intends to economize.

His move was unexpected. The original proposal, by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, was to cut air mail appropriations from $19,000,000 to $9,500,000. An amendment to this by Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, to reduce the fund to $16,000,000, was adopted, 47 to 33. The amended McKellar proposal then passed by a vote of 49 to 31.

At this point Senator Robinson arose and moved to strike the entire appropriation.

"We are appropriating $19,000,000 for a service that is at best dispensable and a luxury," he said. "I believe the air mail service ought to be reorganized so it would pay for itself."

Would Probe Contracts.

Off the floor he expressed the belief that air mail contracts ought to be investigated, adding that his amendment merely throws the matter into conference, where the item can be studied and an equitable arrangement worked out. Even if conferees fail to agree, there is ample time for the new administration to work the matter out by July 1, he said.

"My thought is that air mail service should continue to go forward, properly, but the extravagant subsidies and unnecessary expenditures should be eliminated," he said.

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, warned that certificates issued under act of Congress bind the Government contractually to make the appropriations. He declared the action taken will cripple commercial aviation.

He commented, off the floor:

"The Democrats evidently have no respect for the right of contract. It is the third time in as many days that they have failed to appropriate money on contracts which have been signed by appointed officers of the Government."

May Affect All Bills.

Senator Bratton told senators his amendment to require the Postmaster General and the Treasury Secretary to curtail department appropriations by 5 per cent will be offered on every department supply bill.

Senator Blaine asked him if he meant this, why he did not make his proposal general and attach it to the economy section of the Treasury-Postoffice bill.

It was the opinion of a number of senators, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, included, that the 5 per cent slash will be ordered in one or two bills, but laid aside when such measures as War and Navy appropriations are reached. For one, Senator Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, declared he would vote against any further reduction in appropriations for national defense, "in view of world conditions."

In proposing the plan Senator Bratton conceded there might be additional salary cuts, furloughs and dismissals if the slash is approved, but declared they might be avoided by efficient administration.

Copeland Disagrees.

Senator Copeland took sharp issue with him.

"If this is done," he said, "employes, in addition to the furlough already imposed on them, would have to carry the entire burden of the new cut."

The same view was expressed by Senator Neely, who introduced his amendment to exempt from slashes of any kind, employes earning $2,000 or less.

"Otherwise," he argued, "the reduction all will be made at the expense of employes earning $1,400 or $1,500, who haven't as many influential friends as those earning higher salaries."

The Neely amendment was subjected to a three-cornered attack by Senators Norris, Robinson and Barkley. The latter declared the amendment would "nullify" the Bratton proposal. Senator Norris said there may be $2,000-a-year employes who should have their salaries cut, and Senator Robinson added there may be employes drawing such salaries who should be dismissed

Power Given Officials.

Senator Blaine made his point of order against the Bratton plan immediately after the Neely amendment went down to defeat.

"Department heads are authorized under this proposal to cut salaries or make dismissals, and they may do it," he said. "If a department executive chooses, he can cut every employe 5 per cent, and he may effect the saving by cutting salaries only."

While the air mail "subsidy" debate was at its height in the Senate, the proposed curtailment in air mail appropriations was assailed in the House by Representative Mead (Democrat), New York, chairman of the House Postoffice Committee.

He said Air Mail Service itself would be off a "subsidy" basis by 1941, if a plan his committee had worked out is agreed to. The plan, he said, calls for 25 per cent reduction in subsidy rates, a maximum of 75 cents a mile for each pound of air mail, Postoffice audit of air mail concerns, limitation of subsidies to 25 cents a mile and a prohibition against interlocking directorates of air mail companies.

Edgar Markham Quits Federal Farm Board

(Associated Press.)

Edgar Markham yesterday resigned as secretary of the General Farm Board and accepted a post with the grain committee on national affairs, an organization consisting of grain exchanges.

Markham began service with the Farm Board as administrative assistant to Alexander Legge, its first chairman. Soon after Legge's resignation, he was appointed secretary of the board. Before entering Government service, Markham served for more than ten years as Washington correspondent for the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch.

Marine Flier Gets Medal for Safety

(Associated Press.)

The Herbert Schiff Memorial Trophy was awarded yesterday by Secretary Adams to Capt. Vernon Guymon, commander of the traning squadron, which had the highest record for safe flying during the last fiscal year.

In charge of a Marine fighting plane squadron at San Diego, he flew across the continent to receive the trophy. His home is at Murray, Utah.

This was the eighth year the trophy has been awarded. It is given by the family of the late Lieut. Herbert Schiff, of New York, who lost his life in an airplane accident while with the Navy. William Schiff, a brother, was present at the ceremony along with high ranking Navy and Marine officials.

NEIGHBORS DEFEAT MORTGAGE SEIZURE

Farmers Prevent Constable Taking Tools and Stock After $4.90 Bid.

Monticello, Ill., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Farmer neighbors of C. D. Brady came to his rescue again today, preventing the seizure of machinery and live stock mortgaged for $3,750, which sold for $4.90 at a foreclosure auction yesterday.

Six neighbors stopped an attempt by a Piatt County constable to haul away by truck the property on which W. A. Doss, of Monticello, holds a chattel mortgage. When they appeared at the Brady farm near Ivesdale, in Champaign County, Constable Robert Wrench agreed to leave the equipment and animals.

Doss claimed that yesterday's sale was illegal in that hundreds of Brady's friends prevented competitive bids, ejected his representative and returned the chattels to the farmer after sales at from 2 to 27 cents.

"It was a conspiracy to commit fraud," said Doss, who said he had obtained a writ of replevin and planned to seize the property and hold it at a nearby farm until its ownership had been decided by court action.

Doss said he sent the following telegram to Gov. Henry Horner:

"If the bidders are successful in settling debts in this manner, we are face to face with anarchy. It is simply a question of whose claim is strongest."

The Brady foreclosure was the first sale in this section of the Illinois corn belt in which crowds of sympathetic neighbors limited the high bids to nickels and dimes and ejected by force any one who offered higher prices. As in other cases, those who purchased the property left it with the debt-ridden farmer.

Meanwhile in Iowa, the State Legislature, working in the heart of the mortgage-depressed farm belt, was caught in a disagreement between Senate and House. In a three-hour session, the Senate voted unanimously for a mortgage arbitration bill which was considered less drastic than the House measure.

The House measure amounts virtually to a mortgage moratorium until March 1, 1935. The Senate bill on the other hand, provides arbitration must be resorted to before a mortgage foreclosure suit can be filed, and that a court can take jurisdiction of a property and leave the mortgagor in possession in foreclosure proceedings, if it seems advisable.

A 10-cent sale develped at Aurora, Nebr., where 800 farmers came to the W. C. Brock farm and bid in farm equipment on which the defunct Fidelity State Bank of Aurora, had a chattel mortgage, for 10 cents an implement. The property was returned to Brock.

Pact Signed

U. S.-Mexico Treaty Will Rectify Boundary on Rio Grande.

Mexico City, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—After seven years of negotiations, the Mexican-American boundary treaty which provides for the control of a part of the Rio Grande was signed today by the Mexican secretary of foreign relations, Dr. Jose Puig Casaurano, and the American Ambassador, J. Reuben Clark, jr.

Dr. Puig Casaurano said the pact covers only the rectification of the Rio Grande below El Paso and does not deal with the disputed sovereignty of the Chamizal tract. The international boundary will be in the middle of the river, which will be cured of its meandering ways by levees.

Present at the signing was L. M. Lawson, of El Paso, a member of the American-Mexican Boundary Commission, who was instrumental in drawing up the recommendations in 1930 upon which the treaty in its present form is based.

SENATORS IN SECRET TECHNOCRACY PROBE

Norris Said to Have Picked Statements by Exponent Scott to Pieces.

(Associated Press.)

Howard Scott, leading exponent of technocracy, expounded his economic views to a group of senators and others at a quiet gathering last Sunday.

The meeting was arranged by Luke I. Wilson, retired manufacturer, and was held at Wilson's home in Bethesda, Md.

For some unexplained reason, the meeting of Scott with the lawmakers was arranged with great secrecy and yesterday Wilson and most of those who attended were unwilling to discuss what took place.

Among those present were Senators Norris (Republican), Nebraska; La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, and "about 25 others, some of them from the Senate and House," it was said.

"Mr. Scott and a group of others were guests at my home Sunday," Wilson said, "but the meeting was social and informal and I do not care to discuss it or to reveal just who attended."

Senator Norris said he had found Scott's presentation of technocracy "very interesting." He added he was not in agreement with "the remedies offered by Scott."

One person who attended said Norris and others had questioned Scott closely and "picked most of his statements to pieces."

Washington, but the Government offices will be closed all day and the general will have nothing else to do. In addition to the twos and threes of the regular establishment there will be units of the R. O. T. C. and the C. M. T. C. turned out to make a crowd in the military and naval division and an impression on the Japanese attaches. Otherwise, the attaches might quit the show and dash to the cable office to tell their government that now is the time to start a war with the U. S. A.

Mr. Farley's division seems to have no formal name, but by any name would consist of governors and their staffs, ladies and gentlemen of the Democratic national committee, miscellaneous deserving Democrats, and Mr. Eddie Dowling, who rode into office as court jester on the landslide, succeeding Mr. Will Rogers. Mr. Dowling may not be any funnier than Mr. Rogers, but the citizens wanted a change. Mr. Dowling has not announced the program of his administration as yet and his jesting up to the present time is said to have been nothing but light practice. He expects to get funny in a serious, possibly even grim, way, after the inauguration.

Mr. Farley will neither walk nor ride a horse in the parade. The route is too long for the statesman who will become the head man of all the letter carriers after March 4, and, aside from his own comfort, he does not wish to set a painful example for the governors and committeemen whose dogs may not be in shape for the ordeal. It was thought also that there might be an unfortunate suggestion in the scene if the man in charge of the patronage should ride along Pennsylvania avenue on a horse. The citizens have an unpleasant attitude toward patronage just now and, considering that Jesse James rode a horse, it was thought that it would be better all around for Mr. Farley to ride in a limousine. Mr. Farley intends to keep the patronage on a high plane of patriotic service.

For the inaugural parade he may use, if he so desires, the official high-hat limousine of the Postmaster General's office, purchased for the retiring Postmaster General, Mr. Walter Brown. If the limousine proves too low for his high hat, the precedent established by Mr. Brown will permit him to put in for another one at Government expense as soon as he takes office. Mr. Brown's need of a limousine with adequate high-hat room expires at this time, and the car reverts to the Government, but not the hat. However, he may deed the hat over to the Smithsonian as a national treasure.

There has been a tactful suggestion that the governors riding in Mr. Farley's division limit their official staffs to convenient numbers. This was done in the hope that the Governor of Kentucky would not ball up the parade by entering all his honorary colonels, admirals and commodores. It was estimated that the Kentucky Governor's staff alone would take several hours to pass the reviewing stand and there was also the problem of the expense of badges and limousines to be considered. The badges and rosettes are supplied by the local committee and a full showing of the Kentucky honoraries would use up all the profits, leaving nothing for charity.

Deserving Democrats riding in Mr. Farley's division will be requested not to point excitedly at the Treasury as they pass by and to refrain from singing "Happy Days Are Here Again" until the parade has disbanded. Mr. Farley does not wish them to give the public an impression that they can't wait.

More or Less Patriotic.

The next division will be made up of more or less patriotic societies, including organizations which maintain lobbies in Washington to chisel money out of the Treasury, and behind them will come what might be called the miscellaneous or too-confused-to-classify division. In this final group, which will march on the hoof, owing to the requisition of all the Government cars and the local funeral hacks for the more dignified groups, there will be many political marching clubs, in high hats, from various cities of the United States. It is doubtful, in view of political developments, that any of the famous old Tammany marching and chowder clubs will be represented as such, but, for example, the Hinky Dink Guards will be eligible for room in line, and other deserving Democrats of many cities will be seen in proud and eager array.

Mr. Roosevelt will call on Mr. Hoover at the White House about 11 a. m. and they will ride to the Capitol together where Mr. John Nance (Throttlebottom) Garner, will be sworn in as Vice President in the Senate Chamber. After that, nothing more will be heard of Mr. Garner for four years unless he turns out to have a sister with decided preferences to the location of her seat at dinner. Mr. Garner and the retiring forgotten man, Mr. Charlie Curtis, will stand together for this inaugural which will be attended by the members of both Houses and the entire Diplomatic Corps of the Capital, dressed up in their lace cuffs and ostrich feathers and clanking like yard engines with the weight of their swords, medals and epaulets. The citizens will be gently but firmly pushed in the face at this ceremony as the public galleries will be entirely taken over for the friends of the senators and representatives. The proceedings will be broadcast, however, and persons wishing to hear Mr. Throttlebottom's last words as he disappears into the long silence may do so by radio. It is hoped that Senator Huey Long will not select this time to start another filibuster.

Danger of Filibuster.

After this ceremony, Mr. Hoover will mutter "hurry up" to Mr. Roosevelt, and a few minutes later, in a big stand on the steps of the Capitol building, Mr. Hoover will formally confer his headaches on his successor.

There will then elapse a period of an hour or so while they dash to the White House together and Mr. Hoover shows Mr. Roosevelt how to work the furnace and the icebox and they snap at a sandwich. In the meanwhile, the deserving Democrats backed up in the streets beyond the Capitol will be moving slowly into the parade behind Gen. Pershing, the grand marshal; Gen. Malone and the military and naval unit. Flasks will be worn at the alert position.

Passing the White House they will receive a salute from both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt and following that they will have nothing to do but amuse themselves which they will find ample facilities for doing the moment the Democrats move in with their mandate to repeal prohibition. On the Fourth of March it will not be necessary any longer to depend on Maryland corn, or hootch, in Washington, as the policy of the new administration will be quite the reverse of Mr. Hoover's.

RESCUE OF CARRIERS FROM BANKS URGED

I. C. C. Suggests Congress Break Control of Railways by Financiers.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to prevent the banks from dominating railroad reorganizations was urged yesterday by the legislative committee of the Interstate Commerce Commission as one means of helping the carriers.

The proposal was made to a Senate judiciary subcommittee studying bankruptcy reform; while a committee under the leadership of Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, investigating Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the railroads received testimony opposing a resolution to prohibit further advances of this nature.

The commission's legislative group pointed out what it considered as shortcomings in pending bankruptcy legislation and urged action to curb the power of the bankers over reorganization of hard pressed lines.

Bankers' Dominance.

Under existing conditions, it said, the bankers "seize the initiative in formulating reorganization plans" and then "due to their financial power and the inertia of the numerous widely scattered security holders they are usually able to select and dominate the committees which are formed to protect the interest of the various classes of security holders."

The commission group's views were presented in a 32-page letter signed by Joseph B. Eastman and characterized both House and Senate bankruptcy proposals as "hybrid." The creation of a special court or a new department in the commission to handle railroad reorganizations instead of putting it in the hands of existing courts was recommended by the committee.

This criticism of banking tactics was piled on top of that which the investigating committee, headed by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, received Tuesday from Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Pomerene said that the banks after obtaining all the money in the community treated it as though it were in "cold storage." Couzens agreed.

Money Grip on Labor.

A third Senate committee has been receiving testimony that through interlocking directorates the great commercial bankers are in absolute control of American industry to the detriment of labor and working conditions.

The Couzens committee yesterday heard Eastman and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, both of whom spoke hopefully of the future of the carriers. Both asserted that the troubles of the roads were based on general economic conditions, and Eastman said Government loans to them were justified if the funds could not be obtained elsewhere and if adequate security was offered.

Willard told the committee his company already has reduced its force more than half and planned further reductions in personnel to balance revenue with operating costs. During the past three years, he said, the B. & O. has laid off 40,000 men, but still has 32,000 working full time. He predicted that by further economies the road would be able to meet fixed charges this year.

Willard testified there is no sinking fund back of an issue of Baltimore & Ohio bonds maturing in 1995, which drew an expression of amazement from Chairman Couzens.

Loan Suspension Peril.

"How stupid the public and insurance companies are to buy bonds maturing in 1995, with no sinking fund to pay them off," he said.

Adding that investors in such bonds were taking "an insane risk," Couzens said he would not want his children to hold them.

Willard said the creation of the Reconstruction Corporation had been an act of "wisdom" and said suspension of loans at this time would be "most serious." He revealed that with the aid of the corporation the Baltimore & Ohio is meeting a maturing $63,000,000 bond issue March 1 by paying half in cash and half in new bonds.

"There is no basis for the assertion of the technocracy group that the railroads are obsolete," Willard told the committee. "It is absolutely untrue. I have no fear that the railroads are going to be obsolete."

Eastman took a similar view, saying:

"It is customary to refer to the plight of the railroads as something unique. It is shared by many other industries and some of them to a greater extent."

Optimism About Roads.

The commission, in approving loans to the roads, has proceeded on the theory that railroad earnings would improve general business conditions, Eastman testified.

"The commission has not lost all optimism with respect to future railroad earnings," he added, "and has not approved loans on the theory that present depressed earnings are a sound criterion of what may be expected in the future."

Some roads, Eastman said, which need reorganization may be saved long enough to take advantage of the pending bankruptcy legislation by Government loans.

The I. C. C. member testified that the cost of railroad reproduction has declined about 15 per cent in the last few years, bringing the total cost of reproduction on which valuations are based down close to the original cost. This, he said, was $22,689,319,063, not including depreciation, in addition to $3,778,248,076 for lands.

Hay Urged as Philippine Ruler.

Jefferson City, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Gov. Guy B. Park today recommended the appointment of Charles M. Hay, of St. Louis, to President-elect Roosevelt to be Governor General of the Philippines. Hay, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the August primary, has also been recommended for the post by Bennett C. Clark, Senator-elect from Missouri.

TRADE COMMISSION LAUDED AND SCORED

Patman Urges Abolition, but Cochran Wants Million to Finish Probes.

(Associated Press.)

Two antagonistic proposals affecting the Federal Trade Commission—one to abolish that governmental organ and the second to increase appropriations for its public utility and chain store investigations—yesterday aroused a heated Congressional dispute.

Abolition of the commission was proposed by Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, on the ground that it was "useless," that "nobody reads its reports," and that the statute of limitations will expire before it makes any report on its investigations.

On the other hand, Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, served notice that he would offer an amendment to the independent offices supply bill, to give the commission $1,000,000 to continue its utilities and chain store investigations during the next fiscal year.

Chain Store Report Filed.

The commission sent to the Senate an incomplete report on its chain store inquiry. It showed that a representative group of stores covering a period of from 11 to 22 years, ended in 1930, had net retail sales aggregating $36,757,966,581, on which the gross profit was $9,826,381,440 or 26.7 per cent.

Both the utilities and chain store investigations were begun five years ago at the direction of the Senate. While efforts are being made to complete them by the end of this fiscal year, next June 30, it was said at the commission that a great deal of valuable work would be left over which could be taken up later.

The House Appropriations Committee cut $599,000 off the budget estimate for the commission next year. This left $510,000, or $956,500 less than the appropriation for this year.

Confectionery Profit Highest.

In its report the commission said confectionery chains showed the highest gross margin of profit—49.3 per cent—while combination grocery and meat chains showed the lowest, with 19.3 per cent.

"Drug chains," it added, "average from 30 to 40 per cent gross profit, as do department stores, dollar-limit variety, and most of the clothing and shoe chains. Among the groups with gross profit average between 30 and 30 per cent are dry goods, dry goods and apparel, general merchandise, meat, tobacco, hardware, five dollar and unlimited price variety, and men's shoes."

Your Income Tax

WHO MUST FILE RETURNS.

Returns are required of every single person who for the year 1932 had a gross income of $5,000 or more or a net income of $1,000 or more and of every husband and wife living together who for the year 1932 had an aggregate gross income of $5,000 or more or an aggregate net income of $2,500 or more. Widowers, widows, divorcees, and married persons separated by mutual consent are classed as single persons. The personal exemptions are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families.

Husband and wife living together each may make a separate return of the income of each, or their income may be included in a single joint return. If separate returns are filed, one may not report income which belongs to the other, but must report only the income which actually belongs to him. If a joint return is filed, such return is treated as a taxable unit, and the income disclosed is subject to both the normal tax and the surtax.

Husband and wife may elect each year whether to file a joint return or separate returns. Where, however, joint or separate returns have been filed for a particular year, neither husband nor wife may after the due date of the return file an amended return or returns on a different basis for that year.

Irish Train Wrecked as Rails Are Torn Up; Another Engine Fired On.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Sabotage incident to the Irish railway strike claimed two lives and caused injuries to four persons today when rails were torn up and a passenger train wrecked about 600 yards from the Dromiskin station near Dundalk.

Others narrowly escaped injury when another passenger train from Londonderry to Belfast ran a gauntlet of snipers near Carrigan station. At least five shots were fired at the engineman and fireman, but neither was injured.

Violence and sabotage had the effect of increasing the scope of the strike and no hope was held for immediate settlement. Volunteer workers, as soon as they learned of the wreck, withdrew their services, and there was a possibility that the strike would become almost complete. The Great Northern Railway, on whose line the derailment occurred, announced it would abandon the attempt to maintain service to the Free State until the strike is over. The persons killed were a clerk from the Dublin office and James MacWilliams, a Dublin railway man.

The railway workers walked out yesterday in protest against a pay cut. Union leaders said they were well satisfied with the response to the strike call. Communication between Ulster and the Free State was hampered by the fact that railway telegraph lines were down.

farmer, to safeguard the nation's possibilities of sustenance and hence her very life." The second, he explained, was designed to effect the "salvation of the German worker through a colossal and comprehensive attack on unemployment."

In her foreign relations, the chancellor continued, Germany desires peace and anticipates the time when the nations of the world will reduce their armaments in order to make it unnecessary for Germany to increase hers to the point of equality.

In the domestic financial situation he promised that his government would do nothing to endanger the value of the German currency. He closed his proclamation with an appeal for divine guidance for the men called to head the state, and he asked the indulgence of the nation for four years before judging his government.

It is expected that the Hitler cabinet will decline to tie itself down with promises of any great number of specific measures, but instead will campaign on patriotic and personal slogans.

General Strike Threatened In Inaugural Stand Row

Union President Charges Contracting Firm Refuses to Pay Regular Scale; Carpenters Who Refused to Quit Work Face Discipline.

As the threat of a general strike loomed among union workers erecting grandstands for the coming presidential inauguration, labor and inaugural officials battled last night to straighten out a bitter controversy over prevailing wage scales.

Charging that the contracting firm of Skinker & Garrett, awarded the contract for inaugural construction work, is employing nonunion labor and refusing to pay union wage scales, Richard A. Dickson, president of the Central Labor Union, declared that unless the dispute is settled, a general strike of his men will be called today.

Union carpenters, who yesterday refused to leave their jobs when ordered to do so by George Myers, business manager of the union, will face charges of violating the constitution and by-laws of their organization, it was announced last night.

These men, it was pointed out, accepted work at wages under the union scale. They continued to work when called upon to strike. Officials of the construction company denied they were employing nonunion men and declared that all employes agreed to work under the reduced scale.

An act of Congress set the District wage scale at $8 per day. The union scale, on the other hand, is $11 a day. Union men who accepted the $8 scale, labor officials said, had violated the regulations.

Waddy B. Wood, chairman of the inaugural grandstand committee, told officials of the Central Labor Union that he had nothing to do with wages received by union or nonunion workers. The union, however, declared that an agreement had been made with the Skinker & Garrett Co., to pay union scales.

Crowds of idle men stood about construction work throughout yesterday, apparently willing and eager to obtain work. The general strike will be called today unless an agreement is reached, a spokesman of the union declared last night.

the President-elect, but will hold themselves in readiness for his wishes.

Experts in Communication.

The two experts had been in communication with the President-elect before they left for Geneva six weeks ago through Norman H. Davis. The report of the experts' meeting is contained in a fifty-page memorandum which will be forwarded to Warm Springs probably in time to be delivered to Mr. Roosevelt before he leaves on his yachting party this week-end.

The general impression derived from the cabled reports to the Department of State from Ambassador Sackett as well as from the impressions of the delegates was that the economic conference will now have to depend on the forthcoming Anglo-American debt conference. The fact that the invitations to Great Britain and the other countries contained the clause that the debt discussions would be carried on "concurrent with and conditional upon" economic discussions has tended to becloud the exact scope of the General Economic Conference. Of course, there will be many problems left over after the United States and Great Britain have come to an aggrement on debts, whether the agreement contains any considerable economic clauses or not.

Other Delegates Canvassed.

However, the British chairman of the organizing committee for the conference had canvassed the other delegates to the meeting and when he suggested the postponement of the discussion of the date for the plenary conference, his suggestion was carried unanimously. "The entire meeting passed without incident," it was reported here.

However, the standstill agreement on the economic conference magnifies the scope of all the future bilateral debt conversations which President-elect Roosevelt will initiate with the arrival of the British debt delegation. The speech of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, yesterday was believed directed chiefly to the United States for American consumption. It was noted he made his stand against diplomatic "swapping" to a gathering of American journalists with this end in view.

Bend Their Best Efforts.

In the interim between the actual arrival of the British debt delegation here various spokesmen for the British government will, naturally, bend their best efforts to building up the British case as it will be tested in the debt conversations between the President-elect and the members of the British delegation.

The text of the Roosevelt invitation, with its specific emphasis on the economic aspects of the discussions, will however be followed by the American delegation, and it is believed assured that in the last analysis the British delegation, as well as the Italian and the Czechoslovakian, will conform to it.

of the creditor nation as the debtor nation to adjust the debts. I am of the opinion that it as much in the interest of one nation as another to adjust all these economic problems which stand in the way of the economic world recovery, and to reopen markets, to revive trade and commerce, and to rebuild the purchasing power of the masses.

State Department Mum.

"If any nation supposes that it can, by reason of its cheap currency system, exempt itself from the world's economic conditions and threatened collapse, it will find, in my opinion, that it is taking a very narrow, selfish and ruinous position."

State Department officials made no comment on the British chancellor's speech. They professed ignorance of President-elect Roosevelt's plan for negotiation. The Diplomatic Corps also was eager to learn what plans Sir Ronald Lindsay was carrying back to London after his conference with the President-elect in Georgia last Sunday.

There was some debate on war debts in the House, also, yesterday but it did not touch the Chamberlain statement. Representative May (Democrat), Kentucky, said Congress should let President-elect Roosevelt "know where it stands on the debt question."

SUBSCRIPTION FUND OF INAUGURAL GAINS

Col. Harper Named Marshal of Fourth Division of March 4 Parade.

Increase in many subscriptions to the inaugural guarantee fund over the amount subscribed by the same firms and individuals four years ago was announced yesterday by Lloyd D. Wilson, chairman of the inaugural finance committee, in reporting that his associates had been meeting with steady and gratifying results in the amounts obtained. In a message sent to finance committee workers yesterday, Mr. Wilson emphasized the importance of forwarding subscription cards as soon as possible as the time is getting short and the inaugural committee must have the necessary funds at its disposal to pay for all the preliminary work required.

The plans of the entire inaugural committee, Mr. Wilson stated, are organized to make the 1933 celebration a great success and to attract large crowds to Washington. Advance ticket sales, hotel reservations, reports from railroad companies and other factors indicate that large crowds can be expected.

Announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the Inaugural Ball committee, that tickets for the inaugural ball had been received and were now being distributed to purchasers through the officers of her committee in the Hill Building at Seventeenth and I streets northwest, and in the downtown hotels.

Eugene R. Woodson, former president of the Kiwanis Club, will discuss the inaugural plans under the auspices of the committee on housing and hospitality, Mr. Blair Bantster, chairman, this afternoon at 5 o'clock over Station WMAL.

The appointment of Col. Robert N. Harper, nestor of the Democratic organization of the District of Columbia, as marshal of the fourth division of the inaugural parade was announced yesterday by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Roosevelt inaugural committee. Col. Harper's acceptance of the position completes the selection of those who will head the marchers past the presidential reviewing stand.

Col. Harper, as marshal of the fourth division, will command what is likely to be the largest and most colorful section of the parade. In it will be grouped all of the political marching clubs and State delegations. From applications which already have been received, it seems probable that all of the 48 States will be represented. The fact that Gov. Roosevelt carried 42 States has created more than ordinary enthusiasm on the part of the State delegations.

Admiral Grayson said that he thought it was particularly fitting that Col. Harper should lead one of the inaugural divisions because of the latter's long connection with Democratic affairs in the District of Columbia. Col. Harper has served the party officially for more than 30 years.

Exceptions Are Revealed In Sunday Closing Law

After being advised by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward H. Thomas that the Police Department has authority to waive the Sunday closing law in certain instances, the District Commissioners yesterday informed the Washington Auditorium Corporation that application for special permission to continue the inaugural ball beyond midnight Saturday, March 4, might be made to Police Chief Ernest W. Brown.

Authority to make exceptions in enforcement of the regulation is provided in an amendment adopted by the Commissioners in 1931.

Fear that the regulation might interfere with the inaugural ball was voiced Tuesday at a hearing on requests that the Sunday closing regulation be rescinded by the Commissioners.

Troops Sent

To End Wage Riots at U. S. Oil Plant in Roumania Arrest 250.

Bucharest, Roumania, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Troops were rushed tonight to Ploesti to suppress serious disorders resulting from wage disputes at the Roumanian-American Oil Co.'s refinery.

A thousand workers were reported to have stormed the refinery gates, and, unsatisfied by the explanation of the plant manager, to have demolished the interior of the administration building. Only the walls remained standing.

Troops stationed nearby were called, but arrived after the damage had been done, arresting 250 of the rioters.

When they returned to Ploesti with their prisoners new rioting started, scores of workers attempting to free those under arrest. Order finally was restored when authorities decided to surrender the prisoners to the mob.

Death of Hessick Is Ruled Accident

Filling Station Employe May Have Turned On Gas in Sleep.

Failing to find any motive for suicide in the death of John Hessick, 24, 1725 Irving street northwest, who was found dead yesterday in a gasoline filling station at Twenty-second and M streets northwest, where he was employed, police last night expressed belief that his death was accidental.

The mystery of what became of approximately $70, believed to have been taken in by Hessick the day before, was partially cleared up when $20 was found hidden in the station. Police, and Leroy Livingston, of Herndon, Va., owner of the station, were instituting a thorough search last night for the remainder.

Hessick, it was pointed out by Detective Sergt. H. K. Wilson, of the homicide squad, probably lay down on the floor to take a nap before the rush of the day began. In his sleep, it is believed, his hand fell across the gas radiator lever, turning on the gas. He was found a short time later by Frederick K. Leake, and C. J. Lentz, customers.

Washington Post Girl Hunt Gives All an Equal Chance

51 Beauties Will Be Selected to Spend Two Weeks at Chicago World Fair; Only Professionals and Employes Are Barred.

Thousands of girls have thrilled to stories of obscure young women who have suddenly achieved fame and fortune in a manner similar to that by which a waitress was recently selected for star roles in motion pictures, but seldom, if ever before, has such a direct path been provided as that of The Washington Post's $10,500 prize search for 51 charming girls, to officiate at the opening of the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June.

From photographs submitted in the contest 51 girls will be chosen and sent to Chicago as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. All expenses will be paid, including those of transportation, residence at Chicago's finest hotels for two weeks, a lavish program of entertainment and gorgeous gowns designed by leading modistes.

Since the search is not confined to any specific locality, but allows entry of photographs of girls living in any part of the world, the fortunate ones selected will immediately attain world-wide recognition for feminine charm.

From the group three will be chosen to bear the titles of queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting. They also will receive cash awards of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

There are no entrance fees nor any other items of expense involved in this unique competition at any time. It is merely necessary to submit the photograph of any unmarried girl, to which is attached the information required by the transmittal coupon printed elsewhere in this paper today. Either the coupon or the same information written upon another sheet of paper will suffice.

Photographs which are accompanied by return postage will be returned at the close of the contest, although The Washington Post will not be liable for any loss or damage to photographs. Photographs should be mailed to the Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post, and may be entered personally or by any relative or friend.

Professionals, such as stage girls and artists' models, together with employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, are alone ineligible to receive the great honors and financial rewards that are offered by exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress International Exposition.

In addition The Washington Post will publish ten pictures of entrants in the contest in each Sunday rotogravure picture section up to and including Sunday, April 2, and will pay $5 to each of the girls whose picture is so published.

JAPAN TO DEMAND LEAGUE SHOWDOWN

"Final Instructions" of Tokyo Said to Have Been Sent Geneva.

Geneva, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The efforts of the League of Nations to deal with the Sino-Japanese conflict appeared to be approaching an acute crisis tonight with the receipt by the Japanese delegation of what they characterized as "final instructions" from Tokyo.

News reports that the Japanese cabinet was prepared for a showdown with the league assembly were supported in Geneva by the grave view all parties concerned were taking of the situation.

While officially withholding comment, the Japanese informally let it be known that they considered a break with the league to be almost inevitable.

It was understood in informed quarters that the "final instructions" from Tokyo called for reaffirmation of Japan's position that the state of Manchukuo is an accomplished fact and that the justice of Japan's policy in Manchuria must not be questioned.

Internal Revenue Aid Back in Civil Service

(Associated Press.)

Another appointive government official yesterday escaped the Democratic axe when J. Carlisle Wilmer, deputy commissioner of internal revenue, was reassigned to his old position as internal revenue agent in charge of the Baltimore division.

Mr. Wilmer left the Civil Service ranks in 1930 to accept a position as deputy commissioner in charge of the income tax unit.

Through his resignation and reappointment to his old position he returns to the Civil Service status he held before his promotion. He has been connected with the Internal Revenue Bureau in various positions since 1915.

11-Hour Senate Day Urged by La Follette

Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, is seeking a unanimous consent agreement for the Senate to sit early and late, from 11 a. m. to 10 p. m., until it has cleared its docket of pending appropriation bills and important legislation, he made known yesterday.

Under his proposed agreement, the Senate would discuss appropriation matters until 5 o'clock each day. From 5 to 10 p. m. other matters would be debated, including the La Follette-Costigan relief bill, the prohibition repeal resolution and the measure legalizing beer and wine.

Two Steamers Beached By British Channel Gale

London, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Channel shipping and air service to the continent were hampered today by a southwesterly gale sweeping across the British Isles. Two good-sized steamers were laid on the beach and incoming liners were delayed. The Manhattan, due at Plymouth today, reported she would be 24 hours late.

The Ellerman freighter Branksome Hall, awaiting cargo in the Thames, was blown against a pier and slightly damaged. The steamer Caduceus broke away from tugs pulling her out of a drydock at Newport and was blown aground, but later was hauled off.

phasized that those agreements tied the hands of the British government so far as any arrangements at Washington can be concerned.

The chancellor declared that England can not "contemplate with equanimity return to the gold standard until we are certain that it will work better than it did just before we left it. Great Britain believes in a stable international standard of value, but there are many conditions to be fulfilled before she returns to gold."

He set forth these conditions: First, settlement of the war debts; second, lowering of trade barriers; third, modification of the maldistribution of gold; fourth, settlement of disturbing world political problems or progress toward their solution.

Asked whether Great Britain had any agreement with France which might affect the Washington debt negotiations, he said that no understanding existed except a provisional understanding concerning the Lausanne reparations settlement which it was to the interest of France, Great Britain and the world to uphold. (This apparently was a reference to the "gentlemen's agreement" which provided that the Lausanne settlement, virtually putting an end to German reparations, should not be ratified unless the nations receiving reparations obtain revision of their own debts.)

"It is all-important that the Lausanne agreement should not be torn up," the chancellor declared.

ROOSEVELT TO BASE CUT ON RECIPROCTIY

Economic Conference. It is understood that the committee on program has adjourned until April 25 and that it would be impossible to have the conference before May 25, at least.

That is too late to fit in with the Roosevelt international program. The next debt payments of the European nations are due on June 15.

Apparently he wants a full understanding well before that deadline date. His advisers have been talking about a postponement for an unnamed period of the payments in return for currency stabilization and tariff reciprocity.

With his policies fully determined, the President-elect now is looking only for the men to help him carry them out and for the details that go with their accomplishment.

UNDERHILL DEFENDS PRESIDENT IN HOUSE

McFadden Attack Answered by Statement Hoover Is No Demagogue.

(Associated Press.)

A renewed attack on President Hoover by Representative McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, was answered in the House yesterday by another Republican—Underhill, of Massachusetts—with the assertion that "Hoover needs no defense from me."

McFadden twice has attempted to impeach the President for his actions, principally in international affairs. He said that the people should know "the relationship between Montagu Norman (governor of the Bank of England) and the President of the United States."

His speech was received with a scattering of applause.

As McFadden left the chamber, Underhill pointed out that numerous famous Presidents of the past had been "villified" and added:

"Hoover has been a savior of lives, a humanitarian and not a demagogue. If the yardstick of abuse is used as a measure of greatness, Hoover probably has had the greatest abuse of any President and for that reason should be the greatest President."

Calls Democrats Fair.

He added that Democrats had been "fair" to the President in "these arduous times," refraining from any personal attacks. Then, as members were reminded that McFadden had been deprived of his political patronage, because of an attack on the President in a speech last session, Underhill said:

"I wonder if the question of patronage doesn't enter into this by a far greater degree than the international situation?

"This is no time to traduce the officials of the United States."

Applause greeted Underhill's presentation.

Belief that England is controlling the American Federal Reserve System to some extent at least, was expressed by McFadden.

Norman Moratorium Adviser.

Last August, he said, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, visited the United States and Government officials denied Norman had talked with representatives of the American Government.

"These denials were issued solely for the purpose of deceiving the people," McFadden asserted.

McFadden said that Norman's advice led President Hoover to declare the moratorium on war debts and added:

"The Hoover moratorium was the beginning of the end of reparations and war debts."

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

TONIGHT'S the night. And we wouldn't be surprised but what the Federal Diary grand ball and stage presentations at the Shoreham Hotel, starting at 8:30, will be something long to be remembered.

It is the first annual grand ball, presented by three parties, The Washington Post, The Federal Diary and Swarmi Fedd. The latter was reported at an early hour this morning to be pacing the floor of his apartment room, all dressed up in his best bib and tucker, waiting for the hour of the party to strike.

Upon the manly shoulders of Mr. Fedd rests the responsibility of seeing that every guest at the grand ball has a large time. It will be his first public appearance before the good company of Federal employes. He has expressed regret several times that there were not more tickets to distribute or that the ballroom is not larger, that many other hundreds of Diary readers could attend.

The program printed yesterday morning revealed the names of the floor show performers to be presented by Jack Mullane. Starting at 11 p. m. the dance music will be broadcast by Station WRC.

There are many surprises ahead for the guests. It's your party. There'll be lots of fun, so come early and stay late, so you will not miss one moment of the merriment.

Jigsaw puzzle fans will be happy to learn Washka has arrived in Washington, a bit out of breath, but here.

• • • •

National Museum will be the scene of the meeting Saturday of the National Association of Retired Federal Employes, with John M. Kline presiding, says John Clagett Proctor, secretary.

• • • •

There'll be surprises and the party will be informal February 21, when In-Com-Co Club (I. C. C.) presents its annual winter dance from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. to the music from a 15-piece orchestra at the Washington Hotel, Hall of Nations, we hear from Emily Carey, Norman Jensen and Harold Brown, committeemen.

You can't keep a good man away from the job, even after he's been retired. William Lytler, former deputy commissioner, navigation and steamboat inspection, Commerce, who spent nearly a half century in the department, starting as a clerk more than 48 years ago, continues to report regularly at the office daily. And his friends say his help is inestimable.

• • • •

The committee in charge of the card party of the Public Health Service Lodge No. 41, of the American Federation of Government Employes, is "all set" to show the workers in that service a good time tonight at the Roosevelt Hotel. Credit for its success will go to Miss Ruth Hamilton, Miss Eleanor Walker and Miss Lida Usilton, who have been working diligently to make the affair a success. Thomas Manly is president of the lodge which has more than doubled its membership during the last month.

At Commerce:

John Purcell, distribution section, absent, illness.

Harry Moss, same section, back after two weeks illness.

Florence Richards, transportation division, on leave without pay till August 17. Also J. F. Dewhurst, Economic Division. The latter has received an attractive offer elsewhere. He may not return.

Mrs. Anna E. Keyser, steamboat inspection, has her right forearm in a plaster cast, but continues to carry on. Her arm was broken in a fall at her home. Which recalls an accident to her chief, Dickerson H. Hoover, supervising inspector general, whose collar bone was broken in a taxi accident on the way to a "safety" meeting in New York.

• • • •

We called on our friend, Louis V. Woulfe, Agriculture, yesterday. "I'll see if he is in," said Miss E. G. Pipes. "No, he's just stepped out, but he can't be far away, because his 'outgoing coat' is still hanging up."

Mr. Woulfe wears a lighter coat for indoors.

A correction: Yesterday's item should have read "There is no connection between those congressional numbers and congressional medals.

MAX A. BRADSHAW, an assistant engineer in the chemical engineering division of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, is a mighty likable person. Officially he is hunting for trouble in hay; that is, to find out why that fodder sometimes spontaneously ignites.

But that is not all we know about Mr. Bradshaw. He drives a perfectly good coupe and aims to leave it out of harm's way. Once, however, he made a mistake and instead of leaving his car in safety he parked it in a spot later to be chosen by a team of stout mules for a cutting-up place. The mules stampeded plenty and alas, what they did to Mr. Bradshaw's Ford's glass!

Term insurance employes, Veterans' Administration, were pleased to see their assistant chief, W. O'Brien Ashe, return to his desk after a week's battle with influenza. Amiable O'Bie seemed to profit by his sickness, for he not only returned with his cheerful disposition but also with a new brown suit and a beautiful new, brown Nash coupe, to match.

• • • •

Lisle Morrison, exhibit specialist, Biological Survey, Agriculture, left recently for Boston. He will be in charge of a Department of Agriculture display at the New England sportsmen's and motor-boat show. The exhibit will graphically depict what Uncle Sam is doing for bird life conservation. Morrison prides himself on his Scotch ancestry, but no one who knows him ever finds him "tight" on good humor.

• • • •

The coworkers of Frank J. Gerardi, converted insurance section, Veterans' Administration, hope the movies he has had taken of his spine show nothing out of order and that he pulls through with his illness rapidly. Gerardi was sponsoring a bridge tournament for the division, which was to take place at the Beaver Dam Country Club Saturday, but on account of his illness the tournament has been postponed.

Lieut. M. M. Mahoney, we're happy to know you'll be at the Federal Diary grand ball tonight, after your return from Central America.

• • • •

You'll get the connection when we remind you that today is Willis E. Hurd's (marine, Weather Bureau) birth anniversary. It also is groundhog day. Weather you get the connection, Mr. Hurd was born in 1875, but we promised not to tell his age.

• • • •

Bob Blocher, adjusted compensation section, Veterans' Administration, has received congratulations on adoption of a five-week-old baby girl. Mr. and Mrs. Blocher are very happy with the little infant, and the cigars probably will be handed out shortly.

WAR DEPARTMENT LODGE, No. 16, of the American Federation of Government Employes will give its members and other civil service employes who attend its meeting next Thursday night at the Interior Department Auditorium an opportunity to reap the benefit of some expert advice.

As members of the Government Federation, affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, they are interested in the problems and activities of organized labor. They will hear something on those topics from Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, who will address the meeting.

The genial Mr. Flaherty has a fund of background information relative to the benefit the labor movement has been to Federal workers, and War Department Lodge leaders feel it would be to their membership's advantage to hear something about the experience of his group of some 60,000 postal clerks throughout the country.

The meeting also will be addressed by John Arthur Shaw, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, who will outline the work and plans of the national organization. The third speaker will be David R. Glass, first vice president, who will likewise comment on the organization's program. Arrangements are being made by Mrs. Catherine B. Vogenitz, secretary.

MANY, many persons among the large temporary force brought to this city from the various States for work in connection with the Census of 1930 exhausted all of their resources when they purchased their tickets to Washington.

Early in the Census period, an employe from California was stricken with illness and died after a few weeks of hospital treatment. It was learned that no funds were available with which to pay her hospital and funeral expenses. Funds were collected from her fellow-workers, her body was shipped to California, and all of the attendant expenses were liquidated.

Similarly, a few days after her appointment here, an employe from Iowa expired at her desk and again there were no funds available to pay funeral expenses. Charitable fellow-employes raised the money needed for this purpose.

At this point, the Director of the Census decided that a Census Bureau Welfare committee should be appointed and funds provided to take care of such emergencies. He appointed such a committee on June 27, 1930, composed of Arthur J. Hirsch, chairman; E. K. Ellsworth and Fred A. Gosnell. Mr. Hirsch and Mr. Ellsworth still are on the committee. Census employees were requested to contribute five cents each toward the establishment of the welfare fund and the original collection was augmented from time to time, as necessary, by the collection of a like amount.

With this fund in hand, temporary employes were assisted in paying hospital or other emergency expenses which they were unable to meet. They were given an opportunity to repay such loans in small monthly amounts and many persons made full repayment. Approximately $2,000 of welfare funds advanced to temporary employes were never repaid, however.

The Rhythm Trio, Jack Mullane's presentation, will be starred tonight on the floor show preceding the Federal Diary grand ball at the Shoreham starting at 8 o'clock. Their act is entitled "Bits of Broadway in Songs You Like to Hear as You Like Them." Left to right, Honey Dalzel, Charles Demma and Ruth Bohannan.

Four Pieces of Fire Apparatus Bought.

A contract for the purchase of a pumping engine at $10,200, an aerial truck at $13,000, and two combination hose wagons at $6,800 each was awarded by the District Commissioners yesterday on behalf of the Fire Department to the Seagrave Corporation.

Chinese Reds on Rampage.

Hankow, China, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Fifteen thousand Chinese Communists are sweeping from Shensi Province into Szechuan, looting as they go and driving out established authorities. Word from Chungking said foreign missionaries in northeastern Szechuan were fleeing into that city.

District Citizens To Ask R.F.C. Aid

Delegation to See Senate Committee Today for State Equality.

A delegation of District citizens will appear before a Senate banking and currency subcommittee this morning to ask that the District be given the same right as States in borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Hearings will be on the Wagner bill to broaden the corporation's power to lend to the States. One section of the Wagner bill, providing for needy transients, already authorizes District loans. The subcommittee will be asked to broaden other provisions.

Other bills authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan the District up to $2,500,000 for relief purposes, are now pending before the House and Senate District Committees. Witnesses on the Wagner bill include George S. Wilson, Public Welfare director; Father John A. Ryan, Miss Hettie Anderson, Leroy A. Halbert, Miss Louise McGuire, Leifur Magnusson and Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford.

Warehouse Clerk Indicted.

Thomas P. Hankins, a clerk in the warehouse of the Palais Royal department store, was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on charges of housebreaking and larceny. He and two colored men, Grant Brunson and Daniel Adams, are accused of taking some $300 from the safe of the department store warehouse after they had smashed the safe with sledge hammers.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Guest At Pinchot 5-Cent Meal

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The future mistress of the White House tonight sat down with Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and about 40 other guests at a nickel-a-plate dinner.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the 40-odd guests seated in the dining room at the executive mansion, representing a remarkable cross section of Pennsylvania politics, were fed at a total cost of $2.72, the governor explained to the diners.

The menu of the five-course dinner included black bean soup, sticks of corn bread, cabbage rolls stuffed with salmon and rice, hamburg steak in white corn meal shells, spinach, apple and orange salad and ice cream.

War Department Worker Ends 40 Years' Service

Benjamin P. Turner, 70-year-old colored messenger at the War Department, was retired Tuesday after 40 years of service.

Col. Alfred T. Smith, assistant chief of staff, Military Intelligence Division, presented Turner with a purse on behalf of the officers and personnel of the division where he had been assigned since 1918. He lives at 1004 Fairmont street northwest.

$45,000 Fees Won In Wardman Case

Receivers and Attorneys to Share in Court Award.

Fees of $45,000 were allowed the receivers of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., and their attorneys, Douglas, Obear and Douglas, in District Supreme Court yesterday when Justice Oscar R. Luhring, after considering the question of the fees for three weeks, ruled that their sought-for fees totaling $80,000 were too high.

The ruling means that Thomas D. Carson, Joseph P. Tumulty and Maj. Julius Peyser are to split $35,000 between them for their services as receivers for the huge Wardman Properties. The law firm that did their legal work for them is to receive $10,000.

Each of the receivers had asked for $15,000 and the law firm had sought the same amount. Protracted hearings were held on the fee question before Justice Luhring decided to take the matter under advisement. Under his ruling each of the three receivers will receive $10,666.66.

CURRAN IS OPPOSED TO FLAT PENSION CUT

Economy League's Director Writes Woodrum Letter Criticizing Program.

Opposition to the proposal of Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, in charge of the independent offices appropriation bill, now under consideration in the House, to put into effect a horizontal decrease of 10 per cent in benefits of war veterans, was voiced yesterday by Maj. Henry H. Curran, director of the National Economy League.

Maj. Curran's telegram to Mr. Woodrum follows:

"With deep appreciation of your effort to save taxpayers expense the National Economy League nevertheless requests you to withdraw your proposed amendment for a horizontal 10 per cent cut in payments to veterans. We are strongly opposed to any such reduction in payments to veterans. This is not the way to go about it. The Congress should not cut off a single dollar from payment to veterans whose disabilities are actually the result of their war service.

"On the other hand, the Congress should not appropriate any money at all for veterans whose disabilities have come about in time of peace and have nothing to do with their war service. It is not a question of a general percentage reduction. It is a question of a great, simple principle that we should pay generously to those won are hurt by the war, but that we should not pay anything at all to those whose disabilities are not a result of the war. If you will stick to this principle you can cut off $450,000,000 of next year's Federal budget right away. We urge you to do this."

Newark Man Against Cuts.

Opposition to reducing veterans' disability allowances was expressed yesterday by leaders of New Jersey former soldiers' organizations at the resumption of hearings by the joint congressional committee on veterans' affairs.

B. H. Pollitt, of Newark, N. J., appearing for the Essex County veterans' alliance, attacked the National Economy League for asking cuts in veteran payments, saying the league's action was "an attempt by big income taxpayers to protect themselves."

Patman Charges Mail Fraud.

Roy F. Dunn, of Newark, N. J., counsel for the alliance, called economies in veteran payments "a small way to save money," and said the Government should care for all disabled veterans, whether their disability was incurred as a result of war service or otherwise.

Payment of the bonus "as soon as possible" was urged by Herman W. Abrams, of Jersey City, department commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, cash bonus advocate, told the House the National Economy League "is using the mails to defraud."

False statements are being made throughout the country that veteran benefits "will cost the Government $4,000,000,000 a year by 1946," he said.

Peru Accepts New Leticia Peace Plan

Manzanilla Tells Stimson Brazilian Mediation Is Agreeable to Lima.

Lima, Peru, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—In a note to Secretary Stimson today Dr. Jose M. Manzanilla, Peruvian premier and foreign minister, declared his government had unconditionally accepted two of the three proposals Brazil has made for settling the dispute over Leticia.

Secretary Stimson had asked Peru and Colombia to settle their differences over the border city without recourse to arms. Brazil suggested that the two nations conciliate their differences and that Leticia be taken over by Brazil for a short time and then returned to Colombia.

Today's note asked that Leticia be put under Brazilian administration throughout the peace negotiations, "not only at Peru's but also at Colombia's request."

ARGUMENTS BEGIN IN COBLENTZ CASE

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—The Maryland Court of Appeals was asked today to reverse the decision of the circuit court for Allegany County which convicted State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick, president of the Central Trust Co., of accepting deposits in the Washington Trust Co., of Ellicott City, a branch bank, when he knew the institution to be insolvent.

Arguments were presented in behalf of the senator by Attorneys George M. Brady, William and Curran, while the State was represented by Assistant Attorney General G. C. A. Anderson, James Clark, State's Attorney for Howard County, and Jerome A. Loughran, assistant counsel for the State. The court is expected to render a decision at an early date.

The weight of arguments in behalf of Mr. Coblentz descended upon the claims that as president of the mother bank, he could not have closed the branch institution at Ellicott City nor stopped deposits in it, as that power is vested in its board of directors. It also was contended that Coblentz was not liable because another officer accepted deposits. It was further urged that the senator did not actually know that the bank was insolvent at the time the deposit in question was accepted; that the transaction brought no profit to him, but on the contrary he had placed his fortune to adjust conditions arising from the failure.

Although he resumed his seat in the Senate at the opening session of the General Assembly nearly a month ago, Senator Coblentz has since voluntarily absented himself from sessions pending the outcome of his appeal.

SUBURB FIREWORKS BILL IS INTRODUCED

Farrington Would Permit Sale in Chevy Chase and Bethesda.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—A bill to permit the sale and use of fireworks in Bethesda and Chevy Chase was introduced in the House of Delegates today as the Prince Georges County delegation announced that its multiple-warrants bill would probably be introduced tomorrow.

The fireworks bill was drafted by Delegate Marvin Farrington, of the Montgomery delegation. It will permit them to be sold in the Seventh District between June 28 and July 4, and will allow them to be set off in these towns between July 1 and July 4.

The Prince Georges bill will reduce magistrates' and constables' bills for issuing and serving warrants. It provides that where more than one warrant is issued and served in a single case, only one fee will be paid. For instance, a man is charged with reckless driving, driving while drunk, and having no license after an accident, the three warrants will be issued but only one fee will be paid.

The Prince Georges delegation held an informal hearing last night on a bill to allow Sunday movies in the county. A group interested in providing Sunday amusements appeared to ask such a bill.

Chesterfields are Milder

WHEN you ask a Chesterfield smoker why that's his brand—he generally comes right out flat-footed and says . . . "It's because They're Milder!".

So we're going to keep on doing everything we know how to keep them that way.

That's why we look for and buy the mildest and ripest tobaccos we can get. That's why we age them in our warehouses till they're mellow and sweet.

We believe that even the shredding of the tobacco . . . and the quality of the paper it's rolled in, have a lot to do with the even-drawing, mild smoke that people enjoy in Chesterfields.

You can bank on this . . . every method known to science is used to make Chesterfield a milder, better-tasting cigarette that satisfies.

BONUS VS. NATIONAL DEFENSE.

Officials of the American Legion seem to be alarmed at the assaults which are being made on national defense. Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the Legion, tells the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense that the drive to cut down appropriations for the Army and Navy has assumed the proportions of a national menace. Unceasing vigilance is necessary, he believes, to prevent crippling of the Nation's defense machinery in this critical period.

"The American Legion," says Mr. Johnson, "is suspicious of any movement which would disarm our country." He recognizes the need for economy, yet he is convinced that national defense should be placed "above and beyond any other national necessity." Calling attention to the fact that the United States has "sunk to a new low in preparedness for the Navy," Mr. Johnson expresses fear that this Government will not be in a position to demand parity with Great Britain and superiority to Japan in the next naval conference.

Millions of Americans share the Legion commander's apprehension that the Army and Navy may be reduced below the minimum required for adequate national defense. It would be well for the American Legion to analyze the situation a little further. Why is national defense threatened? It is because of the intolerable burden of taxes that is imposed upon the people. Why are intolerable taxes levied upon the people? One of the foremost reasons is that the Government pays nearly $1,000,000,000 annually for the relief of veterans. The appropriation bill now before the House includes about $372,000,000 for retirement pay, pensions and allowances to former soldiers who suffered no disability from the war. Lavish expenditures for this dole prevent the Government from maintaining the Army and Navy at the full strength demanded by national defense considerations.

Would Commander Johnson be willing to drop the Legion's demand for immediate payment of the bonus, and thus avert the possibility of impairing national defense? This obligation upon the Government will not fall due for twelve years. Yet veterans' organizations are demanding its payment at a time when the Government hasn't even sufficient funds to maintain the Army and Navy on a proper basis. How deep is the Legion's interest in national defense?

More money is frittered away in paying awards to veterans for non-service-connected disabilities than it costs to run the Army. The most superficial study should convince officials of the Legion that these unwarranted drafts upon the Treasury militate against national defense. Is the Legion's stand for maintenance of the Army and Navy subordinate to its support of the veterans' dole? Requests for payment of the bonus and maintenance of unwarranted allowances are utterly inconsistent with the demand for adequate national protection.

The American Legion loses its standing as a champion of national safety when it sanctions unwarranted demands upon the Treasury.

BOY SCOUT WEEK.

In less than a quarter of a century the Boy Scout movement has spread to the four corners of the world. The organization was one that met with instant appeal among the boys and was recognized by their elders as having practical value, not merely as providing entertainment, but offering a means for implanting both practical knowledge and principles that build character. Next week the Boy Scouts everywhere celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the order on February 8, 1910. In this country the American scouts will inaugurate a week of varied entertainments and exercises.

There are more than 30,000 Boy Scout troops today in the United States, almost every city and town being represented. It is a real testimonial to the importance and appreciation of this work that even last year the membership continued to grow. There are scout organizations in all the outlying American possessions, and the organization is established in 73 different countries. The aims of scouting, briefly stated, are to inculcate a definite sense of civic responsibility, to develop respect for the rights of others, to place emphasis on honor and decency, to consider prevention rather than correction.

American scouts have undertaken an ambitious project included in a ten-year program designed to build a body of genuinely patriotic citizens devoted to the public welfare and committed to the public interest. This broad undertaking was launched the first of this year. By the end of the decade, or 1942, it is planned to have in training enough scouts so that as they reach their majority at least one out of every four new citizens shall have had four years of scout training and thus be prepared to perform his new duties upon the basis of scout principles and ideals. This is a laudable undertaking that supplements the earlier efforts to provide healthful and useful experience for the younger boys.

USE AMERICAN VALUES.

On recommendation of the Tariff Commission President Hoover has increased the duty on rubber and fabric shoes. Instead of changing the rate of duty, its application was shifted from the foreign value of these imports to the American selling price. This emergency power to change the basis of valuation when costs of production can not be equalized by changing rates within the 50 per cent limit has been employed too little by the commission. Its application in this case gives new hope that American industry will be afforded greater protection against cheap imports.

When the tariff was revised in 1930 it was the consensus of opinion in Congress that the new duties should be based upon the value of foreign goods in this country. Congress recognized that duties based on foreign values are never satisfactory, because accurate information as to foreign value is difficult to obtain and foreign values frequently change to the advantage of the importers. But it was impossible for Congress to write the entire tariff act on domestic values. No tariff act has ever been written in that way. Hence, the Tariff Commission was instructed to investigate the whole subject and report to Congress a list of new duties based on domestic value, which would be equivalent to the present rates on foreign value.

The commission is completing its work on this subject at a time when foreign goods are threatening many American industries with ruin because duties are levied on values expressed in terms of depreciated currency. The need for assessing duties on actual American prices has been greatly augmented by this situation. Industry and organized labor fear that America will become a general dumping ground for all cheap products of the world unless adjustments are made.

The basis on which tariffs should be levied is an entirely different question from the tariff issue itself. A duty levied upon the price at which a foreign article sells in this country is not necessarily higher than a duty based on foreign value. But the foreign value can be more readily misrepresented or manipulated. It can more easily fluctuate, thus destroying the protection which Congress intends to give American industry. Foreign valuation makes the tariff a gamble, but American valuation gives reasonable assurance that producers will actually receive the protection allotted to them by Congress.

Nearly all other nations have abandoned foreign valuation because of its unfairness and the administrative difficulties it involves. Yet the United States clings to it because of the popular fancy that a swing to domestic valuation would result in higher tariffs.

It is to be hoped that the valuation report will be sent to President Hoover before his term expires and that he will transmit it to Congress with a request for action. Such an adjustment would go a long way toward mending the crevices that have been torn in the tariff wall by the depression. The United States will never have full control over the duties which it levies upon imports until this step is taken.

THE HOOVER DOCTRINE.

The policy of non-recognition of benefits or territory secured through a violation of treaties, promulgated through Secretary Stimson, was in principle adopted by the League of Nations, and recently President-elect Roosevelt has spoken with equal decisiveness of the sanctity of treaties as the foundation stone of international relations. Probably few Americans have considered the pronouncement of the present administration in the light of any other relation than its application to the Manchurian situation, as clearly was primarily intended.

The Roosevelt statement, however, has served to start repercussions in Europe and South America that are quite distinct from the Far Eastern question. The Chaco clash and the threatened rupture between Peru and Colombia comes squarely within the purview of treaty violation, and the parties concerned have been reminded of their obligations as signers of the Kellogg pact.

European interest in this new stressing of the principle that boundary lines are not to be altered by force and violation of treaty obligations centers naturally upon the growing desires of defeated nations for a restoration of the territory that was taken from them by the treaty of Versailles. There is as yet no open threat of efforts to recapture these segregated areas by force of arms, but the Balkan unrest holds potential dangers, while the elevation of Hitler to the chancellorship brings forcibly to mind his repeated threats to recover the Polish Corridor.

With the expected completion of tentative assurances to Germany that she will be accorded arms equality it is generally expected that her war allies will demand the same concessions, and that this step will be followed in natural sequence by demands for a revision of war-imposed boundaries. If not granted through negotiation it is not difficult to foresee a clash upon one of the troublesome borders which might precipitate the whole question of the return of territory alienated by the war. There is little concealment of the desire of Italy for the Dalmatian coast. The threatened rupture with Yugoslavia a few weeks ago has quieted down and there is at present no indication of a breach that appeared possible so recently.

France stands unalterably for the maintenance of treaty boundaries in Europe, and England and other victors hold mandates over most of the former German colonies. The Hoover doctrine again lines the United States with its former war associates in refusing recognition of the results of treaty violations affecting territory. Backing the sanctity of treaties and refusing to acknowledge the fruits of violation may play an important part in history.

FARM MORTGAGES.

The decision of life insurance companies to suspend foreclosure of farm mortgages is a most important step in the movement to relieve the pressure of debt upon agriculture. Farm mortgages held by life insurance companies amount to nearly $1,700,000,000. While this is only about one-fifth of the total mortgage debt of farmers, the moratorium applies in those sections where the debt problem is particularly acute. The largest block of farm mortgages is held by local banks. Many of these institutions may not be in a position to follow the lead of the insurance companies, but the precedent is a salutary one. It will improve the psychological as well as the financial situation in farm areas.

Action was taken by the life insurance companies to protect their own stockholders as well as to aid distressed farmers. In many instances farms are mortgaged for more than they are worth. If mortgage holders take over farms because payments are in default, they experience great difficulty in disposing of the property for anything like its worth. Foreclosures may result, therefore, in extensive losses for the mortgage holders. It is better business tactics to let farmers remain on their farms until conditions improve, when there may be a chance to work out a reasonable adjustment of the mortgage.

This is only one of various ways by which private agencies are adjusting debts to present conditions. Debts are undergoing the same process that capital values have undergone during the last two years. In some cases the process is extremely painful, but for the most part reasonable adjustments can be made. It is the duty of the Government to facilitate these adjustments while safeguarding both debtors and creditors against fraud and unnecessary hardships. The new bankruptcy measure is designed for that purpose. Several States have organized conciliation committees to aid creditor and debtor in seeking new agreements.

It would be a pity to upset this program by the creation of a gigantic Federal agency to take over farm mortgages. Under the present arrangements most of the loss will be absorbed by interests that have formerly made large profits from mortgages. If Treasury funds are made available to pay off farm debts, much of the loss will fall upon the taxpayer. Knowledge that private and local agencies are handling the farm mortgage situation in an orderly manner may influence Congress to drop the scheme to set up a new $1,000,000,000 credit agency for farmers.

Senator Lewis has the utmost confidence in President-elect Roosevelt, but he thinks the Senate is very nifty in checkmating foreign debt slickers.

The Senate isn't futile enough to suit Senator La Follette. He demands night sessions also.

UNCLE SAM'S CREDIT

From the Topeka Capital.

Last week the Secretary of the Treasury offered $250,000,000 of five-year 2½ per cent notes, with the result of subscriptions in one day of close to $8,000,000,000, or 31 times the issue. The Treasury attributed the oversubscription at such a high amount to the belief among applicants for the notes that subscriptions would be accepted on a percentage basis of the amount asked. Something must be done, it is reported as stating, to prevent "padding" in the future.

The floating debt of the Treasury is now not far from $6,000,000,000 and decision not to attempt a full long-term refunding is said to be due to an expectation of improved Government credit after the budget is balanced, and when further short-term issues will be unnecessary. Refunding would not contribute to balancing the budget, and would to an extent have the opposite effect, since money on short time is now being borrowed on a fraction of 1 per cent per annum, while long-term bonds would apparently not be marketable at less than 3½ per cent, a difference in annual interest charges against the Treasury of at least $150,000,000.

A huge oversubscription of five-year notes at 2½ per cent, however, the subscription exceeding by several billions the present total floating debt, suggests that the long-term market for Government bonds may be better than has been supposed, or even that refunding could be marketed at lower rates than by waiting for a balanced budget and correspondingly better times, with a wider demand for money and higher rates.

The present unprecedentedly low rates at which the Treasury has been borrowing on 60 and 90 day notes is misleading to many people. Even members of the Kansas Legislature have been heard to say that if the Government can borrow at a fraction of 1 per cent, if its credit is so extraordinarily high, then it could refinance the $9,000,000,000 farm mortgage debt at interest to the farmer of between 2 and 3 per cent, and make a profit on the operation, assuming, of course, that the principal were repaid when due.

This is misleading, since short-time and long-term borrowing are two different things. The Treasury last week, on five-year in place of 90-day notes, is paying not a fraction of 1 per cent, but more than 2½ per cent for money. Its longer-term bonds are selling in the market at upward of 3½ per cent. If the Government undertook, on top of its own $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 of short-time notes, to refund $9,000,000,000 of mortgages for private debtors, it would no doubt have to pay nearer 5 than 4 per cent for the money. There would be small margin, if any, for the private borrower in interest reduction.

PURPOSE.

I sit and look at life all day and wonder what it's all about,
I see men hurry down the way and try to figure the reason out,
And all I know is that here on earth in the morning sun and the evening gloam
Man's greatest chance to prove his worth abides in the place that he calls home.

Oh, why do they hurry and why do they toil, why fret and worry and fight despair?
For a few gay flowers in a patch of soil, a new red rug and a big armchair,
For steel-blue smoke from a chimney flue and some shining bulbs in a crystal dome,
All the work of the bustling world men do, for the peace and joy of the place called home.

For the dreams of lovers, in cosy nooks a roof o'erhead through the autumn rains,
For the fragrant scent of the evening meal—'tis for these men battle and toil and roam.
For the only joy on the earth that's real—is the peace and charm of the place called home.

When You Pity the Trapped Fox You Forget the Geese He Would Have Eaten

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE noblest of all qualities developed by man is compassion.

But the worth of compassion depends wholly on its object. It is better to give no sympathy at all than to give it to the wrong people.

Americans are more compassionate than any other race, but their pity seldom is sponsored by reason.

"Poor cat!" they say. "Perhaps it was starving when it ate the canary."

You hear much oral sympathy for the poor European who must work long and hard to pay back the money that preserved his life and liberty, but you hear few expressions of pity for the poor American taxpayer who must work long and hard to pay the debt if Europe defaults.

There are many organizations, groups and individuals that spend time and money to brighten the life of society's victim who languishes in prison, but where in all the land is there a group of individuals that labors to benefit the criminal's victims? Do those who pity the criminal take up a collection for the man he robbed or provide for the helpless dependents of the man he killed?

There are many who pity the youth convicted of crime, but what does compassion do for the one acquitted? He endured humiliation and suffering; he spent his last cent to establish his innocence; his reputation is blemished forever. Does pity make any effort to compensate him?

There is compassion for the heathen across the sea, too far away to be smelled. He is a poor sinner who must be saved. But who pities the ignorant, rowdy and troublesome sinner on the other side of the railroad tracks?

There is pity for the borrower who must lose his home, but what of the lender? Does anybody know or care that he toiled and saved for years to gain the money and now must accept a property that will neither return his savings nor provide him a living?

The measure of a man's decency is the compassion he feels. But compassion is a virtue, and it isn't a virtue to support injustice and violate reason.

It is poor sportsmanship to favor the smaller dog if he stole the larger one's bone.

POLITICAL COMMENT

One Is Enough.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Congress had better allow plenty of time for debate on the bill to remove the overload of bronze and marble statues from Statuary Hall in the National Capitol. It won't be a case of State's rights, but it will be State's honor, and every delegation from every State will, no doubt, be on guard lest its heroes suffer the ignominy of ouster. Vermonters in Congress can be counted on to keep Ethan Allen standing among the elect. Texas will do as much for Sam Houston, Wisconsin for fighting Bob La Follette, Mississippi for Jefferson Davis and so on. Crate up Charles Brantley Aycock and Zebulon Baird Vance and send them back home? Only over the dead body of the last North Carolinian! Our earnest hope is that no senator is so indiscreet as to suggest removing Louisiana's famed hero or heroes, whoever they are. One Huey Long filibuster per session is enough.

It Might Be Only Near-Beer.
Kansas City Times.

There is one obvious weakness in the proposal of Senator Dill, of Washington, for an actual test to determine whether 3.2 per cent beer is intoxicating. Mr. Dill would have a group of "average men" try out the product by drinking it, and let the Senate committee (which has the beer bill in charge) take note of the results. But if the average men did their best with the beer, worked long and hard and got no results wouldn't it be most discouraging to the advocates of beer? For wouldn't it prove that the 3.2 per cent article was only another near-beer?

Balk at Real Economy.
Mandan (N. Dak.) Pioneer.

It is discouraging that with the zeal displayed for remedying economic ills, Congress and most of the Legislatures are still hanging back in the matter of reducing the cost of government. We still have the top-heavy pay rolls in the Federal Government, and what corrective measures have been brought to light in State Legislatures relate to combining or consolidating departments, with a transfer of employes under a new head. There is a dilatoriness in accepting the recommendations for real economy where the number of political jobs is cut down. Perhaps with so much unemployment, office seekers are just a little more persistent, and the need of keeping the political fences in good repair makes the appointing powers more reluctant to turn down the applicants. If we are ever going to get our feet on solid ground, we must as cities, counties and States and as a Nation use the paring knife as the private business man, the farmer and other citizens have been compelled to do.

The Voice of Business.
Chicago Tribune.

The failure of the United States Chamber of Commerce to impress the views of American business upon the representatives of the people in Congress during these years of depression is a fact too striking to pass in silence. If the millions who are idle today are ever to find work they will have to be employed by business men. Obviously, too, the business managers of the country can not afford to increase pay rolls if turnover and profits continue to decline. It follows that now, in greater degree than ever, the general welfare and the welfare of business enterprises are one and the same; and in such a situation the voice of American business ought to be loud and clear, for that is the voice which must be followed if we are to have a prompt recovery.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Senate Would Lose if Glass and Walsh Should Go Into the Cabinet.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While President-elect Roosevelt is entitled to all sympathy and encouragement in his task of building a Cabinet, it may not be amiss to suggest that the earliest reports of his efforts will be received with expressions of disappointment.

A strong Cabinet is greatly to be desired, but an experienced, sane legislator is the noblest work of God. The threatened removal of Messrs. Carter Glass and Thomas J. Walsh from the Senate will, I fear, be regarded as a great blow, not overcome by their promotion (?) to the Cabinet.

The greatest legislative problem during the next few years will be in connection with the currency, and Carter Glass is the only really competent, balanced man in Congress on this vital subject.

With all the intricate constitutional questions that will be raised in Congress, it will be a pity to have Senator Walsh in the Department of Justice worrying from 9 a. m. to late in the night over the appointment of several hundred United States attorneys and marshals.

Surely competent men can be found for the Cabinet without depriving the Senate of its two brightest jewels.

I might paraphrase a popular poem and suggest that any President can pick a competent Cabinet, but only God can make a senator who is patriotic, sane and wise. FEARFUL.

Cherrydale, Va.

Suggests Method of Distributing Shoes for Those in Need.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the newspapers of Washington wish to aid a most worthy cause, why should they not do a little free advertising for "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," who has set herself up in business at 727 Seventeenth street northwest, in order to bring the supply and demand for worn shoes together? It is a fearful and discouraging condition to be without a pair of shoes in winter. Try and put yourself in the place of the man, woman or child without a pair. No doubt there are in the city thousands of pairs of discarded or unused shoes serving no useful purpose, while hundreds of unfortunates are without these most essential articles. It would be a large task to make collections of shoes from house to house. It would, however, be a simple and inexpensive plan to establish collection boxes where people could deposit donated shoes if it were inconvenient for them to take them to the "Old Woman's Shop" themselves. A little cooperation on the part of the newspapers and the public along this line would work wonders.

Paying Debts Helps Credit of Debtor. Cites British Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just a little while ago we all were being treated to long and learned articles by all the financial "experts," filled with dire predictions of what would happen to the European financial structure if cruel America insisted upon payment of war or reconstruction debts. Well, what did happen? Note these headlines of January 14:

"Demand Grows for Sterling. British Bankers and Business Men are Pleased by Strength of Pound."

All those predictions were "bunk," of course. The real result was exactly what takes place whenever any debtor steps up to the cashier and pays his honest debts precisely as agreed. His financial position, his credit, his reputation all strengthen immediately. Let us all remember this when the propaganda for reduction and cancellation gets under way again full force as it will.

"Back to the Farm" Not a Good Plan for People Who Can't Farm.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Almost every day now some bright mind solves the unemployment problem by a plan to put the unemployed to work on farms. Some of these schemes are worked out in careful detail, even to the rate of interest and amount of the easy payments whereby these conscripted farmers would pay for the farms.

These experts ignore the fact that few of the mechanics, factory workers, stenographers, professional people, clerks, &c., who make up the great mass of city unemployed, have any ability or inclination for tilling the soil and probably would be miserably misfit.

Moreover, wouldn't it seem a bit silly to force city people to try to eke out an existence on farms while farm families by the tens of thousands are being driven off the land because they can't get enough for their surplus products to pay interest and taxes?

What the People of 5000 A. D. May Hear of Researches in This Era.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: People living in the year 5000 A. D. may read the following item in their paper some morning: "Speaking before the history class at the World Academy last night, Prof Its, noted archeologist, stated that while digging in the ruins of the old Capitol building at Washington, D. C., he had unearthed several documents that contained such fantastic and stupid writings on the subject of ending the economic chaos existing during the years between 1929 and 1936 that he was led to believe that some time during the said period the Capitol had been turned into a national institution for the feeble-minded. He amplified his statements further by saying that a majority of the inmates of the institution were undoubtedly victims of paranoia, for they seemed to believe that they were great statesmen especially ordained to change all economic laws and human nature for the better over night." 'Doc' Groundhog Reaffirms Prowess as Weather Man

The veteran forecaster of spring, old "Doc" Groundhog, is shown above as he prepared for the annual appearance of his "shadow act" today.

Post Reporter Is Assured Animal Will Make Forecast Today.

"——And don't come back until you get it," were the city editor's final words as this reporter, bewildered but willing, departed last night for wide-open spaces of the country.

"An interview with a groundhog," he muttered to himself. "Oh, well, it could be worse."

It didn't take long to reach the city limits, and driving through the light drizzle of rain, familiar sights of the countryside soon loomed from the darkness. A halt was made on a deserted road several miles from the city.

Remembering the city editor's last words, the reporter pulled up his coat collar and started forth. A brief tramp brought him to the front door of old "Doc" Groundhog's home. Repeated knocks brought a gruff "Who is it?" from inside. In his best reportorial style, the reporter stated his mission.

The door opened and there stood the famed prognosticator.

"I expected you," he said, "come in."

Immediately launching into the subject of his visit, the reporter asked point-blank just what there was to this prediction business. Was it really a fact that his shadow had anything to do with the weather for the next 40 days?

"Well, yes and no," Doc Groundhog answered. "My public and myself believe that my shadow, or lack of one, indicates climatic conditions for the next few weeks. Personally, it means I either stay up or go back to bed again."

Despite the opinion of scientists and weather officials, the little fellow said he would be out at the crack of dawn today—just to see what happens. Those "in the know" claim his actions don't mean a thing.

As the reporter prepared to depart, "Doc" Groundhog reminded him that today is really Candlemas Day, but popular version has it as "Groundhog Day."

Leaving his host grooming for the annual public appearance, the reporter, as he again went into the rain, heard him chanting the following lines:

"If Candlemas Day be fair and clear,
"It doth portend a plenteous year.
"If Candlemas Day be snow or rain,
"Scarce will be all sorts of grain."

Those indicted were Ellsworth A. Williams, a messenger in the bank; Rodney R. Rice, James Butler, and Chauncey A Rice.

Williams told police he was gassed and robbed of the money at Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest while he was en route to the Commercial National Bank to deposit the money. His story broke down when he was questioned by detectives and he admitted that there had been no robbery. The money was recovered in the rear yard of a Maryland home and the three others were arrested.

TENTATIVE BUDGET READY FOR FAIRFAX

Board of Supervisors Cuts All Salaries 10 Per Cent, Lowering Taxes.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County, Va., devoted most of its session yesterday drafting a tentative outline of a county budget for the 1933-34 fiscal year according to the new State form adopted by the State auditors office. The budget in its final form will be the basis for all county tax rates this fall and will be given in more detail than has been the practice in Virginia in the past.

According to the tentative draft of most of the proposed expenditures next year, there will be a decided decrease in the tax rate throughout the county. All salaries have been cut 10 per cent and other funds were cut to provide only the necessary expenses for conducting county activities. Several funds for county activities have been included in the proposed budget unchanged so that the people of the county could express their opinion at the public hearing in March on the necessity of continuing the work or whether they should be abolished as a tax relief measure.

A letter was received from the State Fee Commission disapproving extra compensation for regular employes of the county treasurer's office for overtime work and a travel allowance for deputies in transaction of county business. The fee commission also approved the expenses of the county clerks' office amounting to $4,920 for clerk hire.

Warrants totaling $4,588 were ordered drawn for county expenses during January. A letter was received from the County Tuberculosis Association indorsing the work of the present county health unit and a letter from the Lee-Jackson School league opposing any reduction in teachers salaries for next year.

An opinion from the Attorney general of Virginia was read disapproving time deposits of county funds in banks for specific periods.

Judge McCarthy Upholds Two Boosts in Salaries

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, Va., yesterday upheld the action of the County Board of Supervisors in raising the pay of two employes in the offices of the county commissioner of revenue and the county treasurer.

The expenses of these two offices are set by the county board subject to the approval of the Virginia State fee commission. The county then pays two-thirds and the State the balance. In event there is a disagreement between the State and local authorities the judge of the circuit court acts as referee and his action is final.

When the salaries of the employes of the two county offices were set by the local board one deputy in each office was granted a slight increase. The State commission refused to allow the increases as they were in conflict with its State-wide policy. The question then was referred to the circuit court by the local board, resulting in the approval yesterday of its recommendations.

Judge McCarthy at the same time deducted $100 from the treasurer's office expenditures for extra clerk hire and mailing as approved by the supervisors.

Caretaker of Estate Attacked by 3 Men

Trio Seized by Alexandria Police Questioned About Arlington Beating.

Walter Fritz, 45, a caretaker at the Carter estate, near the Army and Navy Country Club in Arlington County, was attacked and severely beaten at the spring house on the estate late last night. He told Arlington County police he was beaten by three men whom he had sought to question when he saw them trespassing.

At Alexandria Hospital it was reported that Fritz had been struck several times on the head, apparently with the butt of a revolver. The man was not robbed and apparently the intruders had no intention of robbing the estate, which has been practically vacant for years.

Alexandria police later arrested three men. They were being questioned early today.

Hoover to Leave Richey Here as His 'Observer'

(Associated Press.)

Herbert Hoover has a plan for retiring from the public eye for a nine-month period after March 4, but he will leave an unofficial observer behind him in the National Capital.

The President has told some of his friends he intends to withhold decisions as to his future until around the dawn of 1934, and that during these months of rest in his Palo Alto (Calif.) home he intends to issue no statements upon the course of public affairs and grant no interviews.

During this period, however, he will be able to watch the turning of Government wheels under the direction of his successor through the eyes of Lawrence Richey, his secretary and intimate aid for many years, who already has engaged a suite of offices here.

RESCUED PARALYTIC IS COUNTY PROBLEM

Man Taken From Abandoned Silver Spring Sanitarium; Future Hazy.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Rescued from an abandoned sanitarium at Silver Spring, Md., Nicholas Brooks, 64 years old, a paralytic, is being cared for in a Prince Georges County sanitarium while county authorities try to determine who is responsible for his care.

Brooks had deposited $600 with the manager of the sanitarium six years ago with the belief that this was to provide him with proper care until the end of his life. The manager, Mrs. Susan F. Holland, had maintained her part of the agreement until recently when financial difficulties forced the sale to Dr. Richard N. Thibeadeau and a nurse, Miss Lena Dunkum, both of 2012 R street northwest.

The new owners operated the sanitarium, known as the Maple Wood Sanitarium, for several months, but last Thursday notified the Montgomery County Welfare Board that they could not further care for the man, since they were moving to another jurisdiction. The board objected, but finally turned to the Washington Board of Welfare and suggested that since Brooks was a Washingtonian it was the duty of Washington to undertake his care. The Washington Board objected and refused to take him.

County police were notified Saturday night that Brooks had been abandoned in the house without light, food or heat and the ambulance of Warner E. Pumphrey was summoned. The man was taken to the new sanitarium of Dr. Thibadeau, the old Brentwood Day Nursery at Brentwood, but it refused to take him. He then was carried to the Gallinger Hospital in Washington, where again he was refused admittance.

He finally was driven to Pinehurst Sanitarium in Prince Georges County, where he is being cared for at the expense of Montgomery County until some disposition can be made of his case. The sick man was carried 58 miles in the ambulance before he was located.

Miss Lavinia Engle, county delegate to the Maryland House of Delegates, is preparing a bill to assist Brooks. He became paralyzed in 1925 while employed at the Willard Hotel. He had been a lifelong resident of the District. The sick man was treated at Emergency Hospital and removed to Gallinger Hospital, where he remained until he received $900 and later $330, with which he expected to provide for his future.

HOUSE VOTES FUNDS FOR ARLINGTON SPAN

Arkansan Defeated In Move to Cancel $282,675 Appropriation.

An attempt to throw out of the independent offices appropriation bill an item of $282,675 for the Arlington Memorial Bridge Commission was defeated in the House yesterday by a vote of 33 to 9.

The proposal was made by Representative Glover (Democrat), Arkansas, who pointed out that total appropriations for the Arlington Memorial Bridge to date total $12,041,987.

It was opposed by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, who argued that Congress would be placed in the position of repudiating a contract.

"Here we are with the people unable to pay taxes, and you propose to take nearly a quarter of a million dollars out of the Treasury for a bridge," Mr. Glover said.

"The people of the United States don't indorse action of this kind by Congress. What would they think if they knew you were appropriating this much for a bridge that is already finished. This is purely for some decorations over there. It looks a little fishy to me."

Woodrum replied:

"If that position is logical, it would be just as logical to repudiate every contract we have for public works and then let the contractors go into the courts and sue us, while we claimed to be reducing expenses."

Duke of Guise Advises Royal Dictatorship

Paris, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A manifesto from the Duke of Guise, Royalist leader and pretender to the French throne, tonight called for the formation of a dictatorship in France under a monarchy. The document, dated "in exile," says that the republican regime has shown impotence and asks Frenchmen to choose between "authority, liberty and monarchy, and oppression, anarchy and socialism."

The Duke of Guise became the pretender to the throne on the death of the Duke of Orleans, one-time head of the Royalists, in April, 1926.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found as a child by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, becomes the leader of a pack of lions and makes raids upon the native settlements. They complain to the commissioner and a Canadian newspaperman, Horton, who happens to be on the scene, becomes interested, and offers £500 for the capture of the lion-man. A Dutch hunter, Cloete, sets out on the venture. He succeeds in capturing Kaspa, and turns him over to the local deputy commissioner, Martin Sefton, who is strongly attracted to the lion-man. He undertakes to tame him. Before long he becomes so attached to Kaspa that he resigns his position and wires Horton in Canada that he is accompanying the lion-man to Montreal.

CHAPTER XII.

WHEN Horton came aboard at Montreal, Sefton was waiting for him on deck. The two men liked each other at sight. Sefton's eager, enthusiastic manner and straightforward countenance was an indication of his nature, and the journalist with his keen, intelligent face and brisk air of efficiency seemed to Sefton just the man capable of handling this worrying business.

"I got your cable," said Horton after a handshake. He glanced round the deck, crowded with passengers and their luggage and friends. "Where is he?"

"In the cabin. I have kept him there most of the voyage." Sefton led the way among the jostling throng to his cabin.

Sefton threw open the cabin door and presented Kaspa. The lion-man was looking out of the porthole; he turned and blinked amiably at the stranger.

"My God!" said Horton as he saw his face. He looked steadily at Kaspa for nearly a minute, while Sefton moved uneasily about the cabin searching for odds and ends that he knew were already packed.

Presently he heard the Canadian say: "It seems like I'm dreaming, but I guess I'm not. I guess I've made a remarkable discovery." He laughed suddenly, stepped forward and gripped Kaspa by the arm. "Well, boy!" he said kindly.

"Look out!" cried Sefton, springing forward, but his fears were needless. Kaspa had taken the journalist by both shoulders and was holding him like a wax figure, looking in his eyes and smiling.

"If your name's not Kaspa, I'm a Dutchman," said Horton, unafraid and very excited.

Kaspa's smile grew broader. "Karsepah!" he repeated after the other. It was the language of lions, and it pleased him.

Horton grinned at Sefton. "Come on, let's get out of here. I've got something to tell you that will make your eyes pop. Say, this is a happy day for all of us! Where are those stewards?" He darted about, spoke to uniformed officials, engaged porters and in a trice had Kaspa on Canadian soil, a free Canadian citizen.

"I guess we'll go to a hotel first," he said to Sefton, "where we can have a talk, then I thought about going to a country house of mine where things will be quiet for our friend here."

They followed him, and in a few minutes were driving through the crowded streets of Montreal. Kaspa sat looking out at the traffic and the busy shops. He was still trembling, and his eyes had a dazed, frightened expression. Sefton watched him anxiously, patting his shoulder and uttering consoling sounds as he had done many times in the course of that dreadful journey from Nyoka, with all its trials and excitements, now culminating in this terrifying experience.

Kaspa had become used to motor cars in his journey down to the coast; it was the noise and continual movement that worried him. He felt as though he was undergoing a bad dream from which he would presently awake to find the silent veld all about him. He had experienced curious dreams at times and had never been able to understand them.

Horton was also silent, turning something over in his mind. Arrived at the hotel, he passed immediately to the room he had engaged.

"Now then," he said briskly to Sefton, "order what you like and let's get to business. I've got a lot to say to you."

The waiter departed to bring tea, and as soon as they were alone Horton began. Kaspa sat in an easy-chair, lost in a reverie, throughout this conversation. He was mentally tired and indifferent to anything except physical danger, and there was little likelihood of that, as far as he could tell.

"I will tell you something about myself first," said Horton. "I came here twelve years ago to run a paper owned by Denison Starke, a millionaire real estate man. Starke died five years ago, leaving a sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley, who is my good friend. It was his conviction that he left a grandson, though most of us thought it unlikely. It seemed that an only son of his, Christopher George, ran off to Africa as a missionary and married a Danish girl there, also a missionary. They had a son called Kaspa.

"When old Denison Starke's health began to fail, he began longing for his son, so he sent his secretary to Africa to induce Christopher and his family to come back. The secretary succeeded, but while on the way back to civilization they were attacked by natives. The whole party was murdered but an Arab servant, Abdalla, who escaped with the child. He finally reached the coast and told the story that, on the night after the raid, he lay down to sleep with the child to await the morning. When he awoke, the child was gone. He looked for it, but there were lions all around him, so he got frightened and ran away. An expedition was dispatched to search for the child, but although they found evidence of the raid and the murder of the Europeans, they could find no trace of the child."

Sefton sat staring at the journalist. "What do you suggest?" he said softly. "Surely you don't think——" His voice died away into a silence of astonishment.

"Let me continue," said Horton, waving aside the interruption. "Starke was never convinced of the child's death. He got a bit foolish toward the end of his life, got monkeying with spiritualism and so on, and he liked to think that his grandson was living as the captive of natives, or some such thing, and would one day come to light again. There was a mint of money spent upon search among the tribes in that part of Africa. Starke was too old to go himself, but he sent others, and it was always my opinion that they didn't earn their money." He brought his hand softly down on the table with a gesture of finality.

"Now I'm sure of it, for that boy is the image of Denison Starke when I first knew him." the dramatic gesture in Kaspa's direction aroused his interest; he smiled at the beaming journalist.

Sefton spoke dully: "It seems like fate."

"What, that I should go traveling around and hear about this lion-man?" said Horton. "Perhaps so—perhaps sheer luck," he added thoughtfully.

"Then if Kaspa is Denison Starke's grandson, he is a rich man?"

"Ah, if," Horton cautioned. "There you have it. Of course, we may be able to prove it. There is the native Abdalla who can be found, and there is the extraordinary likeness. Starke looked like a lion, and he was built a little like this boy."

The journalist produced cigars from his pocket, offered one to Sefton and lit another himself.

"There will be opposition, mind you," he warned. "Starke left all his money to his sister, Mrs. Marley, but he made conditions. She was to search for his grandson, and if she found him they went halves, but if some one else produced him, or he turned up on his own, he took the whole pile except a hundred thousand dollars."

"So Mrs. Marley will contest the claim," said Sefton quickly, up in arms over his friend's interests.

"Most probably not; she's a white woman," Horton replied. "I guess she'll be as pleased as any one to see a lost Starke come to light again. It isn't her I'm worrying about, but her stepchildren. Harley was a widower when he married her. He had a son and daughter, Lucian and Sheila. It's them that'll make trouble."

"But what have they to do with it? They are not even related to Denison Starke," cried Sefton, indignantly.

Horton shook his head slowly. "Denison willed his money right through, you see. The children are Mrs. Marley's heirs in equal shares." He sat up, blowing a cloud of smoke. "Anyway, we don't need to worry about that yet," he said briskly. "We're not even sure that this is the right man; that'll be for me to see to. What we have to do is to decide on Kaspa's future. We've got him here; now what are we going to do with him?"

"I though I might be able to take him into the country somewhere and teach him," said Sefton diffidently. "You know he can't stand a lot of fuss and bother at present; it drives him frantic. I must get him to somewhere quiet, and teach him gradually."

Horton looked at him curiously. "You're a good friend to have, aren't you? You've thrown up your job for this fellow and now you're willing to bury yourself in the country and play nurse to him. I wouldn't like the job."

Sefton flushed. It was on the tip of his tongue to tell Horton that it was a good thing somebody had the decency to take care of the man Cloete had captured and treated like a wild beast, but he refrained. After all Horton was making amends for his past thoughtlessness.

"I made a few plans before you arrived," the journalist cut in upon his turbulent thoughts. "I've got a country house at a place called Port Perry, right out in the woods of Ontario; I bought it from Starke. It was my idea that we might go there by car. It will take a couple of days or so from here, but we can sleep at night on the road. You don't want to take Kaspa in a train, I suppose?"

Sefton did not, and said so emphatically.

"It's my opinion we ought to keep this thing quiet for a while," Horton went on. "Give me a month or two and I may be able to prove our friend's identity; meanwhile there's no sense in making a nine-days' wonder of him. He wouldn't like it, and neither would you."

Sefton agreed fervently. They arranged to keep Kaspa several months at Honeydale, Horton's country house in Ontario, and, during the winter, at Palm Beach or California. Horton was to pay all expenses and, in addition, Sefton a salary.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

TIME was when summer was permanent waving time. At other seasons the machines and the operators were quite idle. Now the permanent has won such a permanent place in the pictorial scheme of things that seasons don't matter. It has to be there—the hair artistically and skillfully waved for swimming in summer, for social functions in the fall, for the new Easter bonnet in the spring and for opera and theater in the winter. It has come to belong in the beauty picture the whole year 'round.

The permanent waving methods that have survived have weathered the most exacting tests. Most of the modern methods have been so perfected that they can carry honors equally. The skill and experience of the operator, plus the condition of the hair to be permanented are the two factors today that determine the success of the wave. The first you should ascertain before you intrust your hair to him or her. The second, too, is up to you.

Brush Like Sixty.

If you're tired of hearing or reading about brushing, do let the propaganda go to your head. Try some sixty or hundred strokes tonight. Up and out. Bend forward from the waist and let your hair fall over forehead. Brush with long, sweeping strokes over scalp and through hair and after every few strokes wipe the brush on a clean cloth or towel you have handy. Brushing is to your hair what exercise is to the body, fresh air to your general health, a facial to your skin. It's one grand pep rally. It cleanses, distributes oil evenly, stimulates the circulation through the scalp, nourishes the hair roots. It's just fine, that's all, and you can change the maxim from "seeing" to "brushing is believing." Most women hesitate to brush after the permanent, but there's no reason why you shouldn't brush before.

Massage and Hot Oil Treatments.

Brush every night and morning, and a few times a week massage your scalp with fingertips. Once a week or once every two weeks (if your hair keeps quite clean) follow the brushing and then the massage with a hot oil treatment at bedtime. Separate the hair into strands of about an inch wide and with a pad of cotton apply the oil, as hot as you can stand without scorching, along the scalp. Some women like to use a medicine dropper for this purpose. Let the oil remain on the scalp for a few hours at least, preferably overnight. Wrap an old towel or piece of linen around the hair, securely, to keep oil from getting on the bed linens.

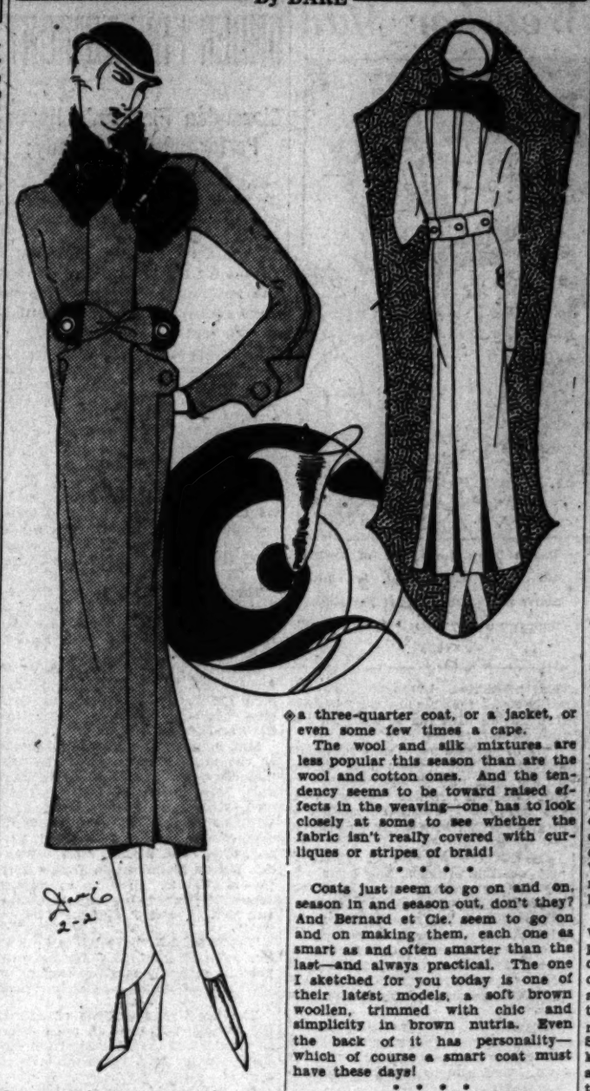
Interpreting the Mode

By DARE



Brown woolen coat trimmed smartly in nutria, and simply yet elegantly cut. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie, Paris.)

IF you want to meet a thrifty lady, step right this way! Her name is Dame Fashion, and she wouldn't waste a hair of your head—if you are a rabbit, that is.

It took her just about one month to find a use for all these long, soft and silky little hairs that were being sheared off of bunny rabbit's back for the making of clipped rabbit coats and trimmings. And the use was to weave them into fine woolens and crepes in the Rodier manner—and be called Djalaps! Offered for the winter, and now a part of every spring collection.

The day is definitely gone when woolen is for winter and silk and cotton for summer. Lightweight woolens for a coolness and beauty that challenge any silk are responsible. True, a woolen for summer is finer and lighter weight and color than its winter sister—and that's about all. And in retaliation, perhaps, the crepe and satin sisters are as heavy and warmth-giving as almost any wool, when they want to be!

Woolens are a part of all the new collections. White, finely woven fabric, strongly reminiscent of serge, although promenading under various new names, seems to be the favorite. And woolen georgettes and woolen laces are in evidence. Even if a frock is of cotton or linen, woolen will make a three-quarter coat, or a jacket, or even some few times a cape.

The wool and silk mixtures are less popular this season than are the wool and cotton ones. And the tendency seems to be toward raised effects in the weaving—one has to look closely at some to see whether the fabric isn't really covered with curliques or stripes of braid!

• • • •

Coats just seem to go on and on, season in and season out, don't they? And Bernard et Cie. seem to go on and on making them, each one as smart as and often smarter than the last—and always practical. The one I sketched for you today is one of their latest models, a soft brown woolen, trimmed with chic and simplicity in brown nutria. Even the back of it has personality—which of course a smart coat must have these days!

Pin Points That Pricked Pride.

Say it fast—it's a good elocution lesson!

Well, anyhow—it seems that pins were allowed to be sold only on the first two days of January, and on no other days! So Mesdames formed breadlines, pawdon me, I mean PIN lines, and chattered and gossiped amiably (we hope) while waiting for their pins!

It was a custom in those pinless days to make gifts of money to lovely ladies, expressly termed "pin money" in lieu of the pins one could buy only once a year! Whether Miladi spent the pennies for pins was quite up to her, of course. Husbands and other relatives gave their women pin money, and the idea grew to include or mean all money given to a woman by her family for pins and wardrobe.

But 'twas no ordinarily made pin of which we speak! Nay, not until 1824 did a man named Wright invent a machine which revolutionized the pin industry, and resulted in the pin we have today—at its price of several hundred of a few cents. More later.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ADVANTAGES OF OYSTERS AS A FOOD.

THERE is something more than a possibility that oysters should be added to the small list of foods that can be used as a pleasing form of taking medicine. Since the thought of taking medicine is displeasing to many persons let us rather say: Foods that are curative and preventive in certain fields. A change of words is a form of sleight-of-hand or legerdemain that is very popular in certain groups in their talk about health preservation. There is a well-established basis for the use of oysters for the prevention of some diseases of the thyroid gland. In Wales oysters are eaten as a cure for mild anemias. It is proposed to find broader use for them in anemias.

This bivalve is rich in most of the vitamins. Vitamin D, the one which protects against rickets, has much to do with growth, is used in spasmodic croup and other spasmodic disorders, and has been said to help protect against colds, coughs and pneumonias, has been reported in oysters. Since this animal feeds on the same kind of foods made use of by the cod and the halibut, investigation to determine how its vitamin D content compares with that of these fish are being made.

It is established that oysters compare well with other foods as a source of Vitamin A. This growth vitamin is increasing in importance as investigation of body welfare digs deeper.

There is considerable evidence that oysters are a good source of some of the vitamins in the group called Vitamin B complex. One member of this group is held to be responsible, or chiefly responsible, for pellagra, protecting against it when present, curing it when given, and resulting in it when the diet is deficient in this substance.

There is some reason for thinking there is an antagonism between goiter and pellagra. The goiter belt of America is almost free from pellagra, and vice versa. Who has ever seen the two disorders present in the same individual? There may be many who answer this question affirmatively, but up to date the record is clear.

Contrary to the implication of these facts, it is proposed to try oysters as a preventive and cure of pellagra, and salmon is a good pellagra cure. Why not oysters? This is based upon laboratory reports that oysters contain considerable amount of the pellagra preventive vitamin and their ability to cure certain akin diseases in rats; not conclusive evidence, but somewhat promising.

Oysters have a moderate content of Vitamin C. The calorie group of constituents of oyster meat is rather unusual. Pease thinks it compares favorably with milk. The proportion of protein is much higher than that of milk and the fat is lower than that of whole liquid milk, but the principal peculiarity lies in the fact that the proteins are in certain peculiar combinations with the sugars, and that they have solubilities and other characteristics quite unlike those of other meats.

The fats are more like those of egg yellow than those of fat meat and cream. Just where these peculiarities will lead when we know more about nutrition remains to be seen.

FAT IN THE BLOOD.

Constant Reader writes: When blood is taken from my arm for a blood test it has quite a bit of fat in it. What causes this and how serious is it? The only symptoms I have are dizziness and a queer feeling in the head sometimes. I weigh 130 pounds, am 5 feet and 3 inches tall and 30 years old.

REPLY.

There is an extensive medical literature on fat and near fat in the blood. Almost any well-equipped laboratory can and does make tests for the fat content of the blood. I wonder how you know that your blood has fat in it? Your dizziness and queer feelings are probably not due to increased fat in your blood.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 3 p. m. to 4:45 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:15 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

This February 2 will, in all probability, be full of exasperations and petty trials. People will seem not to know their own minds and it will be useless to attempt to anticipate their desires and wishes. By keeping calm and by being ever on guard, you will best advance your own ends on this day.

The child born on this February 2 will probably not get along well with other children. Extremely possessive and not a little selfish, the child will be inconsiderate of others. He will be successful at school in his studies, but not in other activities. All through life he will be handicapped by this inability to see beyond his own interests.

If February 2 is your birthday you have a "hankering" to know about the ills and aches and pains of mankind. Yours is not a prying nature, nor are you cold and impassionate in your treatment of others. Yours is the humanitarian's point of view; you have an interest and you want to help mankind. There would appear to be within you a strange hypnotic power that draws people to you and causes them to tell you their troubles. Your powers of analyzing a person are exceptional, and as a psychologist you could greatly benefit many. As a doctor you would do well, for you would quickly gain the confidence of your patients and you could do much to get them on the right "mental track." Your great sympathy and sincere love of mankind would enable you to guide men spiritually. You may be called to the ministry.

Born on February 2, your fondness for and interest in the opposite sex is quite apparent. You "perk up" immediately one of the other sex makes his appearance. You are inclined to be very sentimental and affectionate, but you do not make public display of either of these qualities. On the surface you appear to be rather cold emotionally.

Successful people born on February 2:

George Engelmann, physician.
Delia S. Bacon, author.
John C. Dalton, physiologist.
Knute Nelson, lawyer and congressman.
Fritz Kreisler, violinist.
George Loring Brown, landscape painter.

BIDDING A GRAND SLAM.

DESPITE the increased premiums for the bidding and making of Grand Slams, both vulnerable and not vulnerable, hands which justify a bid to take all the tricks are still the greatest rarities at the Bridge table. In the final session of the American Bridge League Pair Championship, the players who held the North-South hands had an opportunity to enjoy the thril of contracting to take all the tricks.

North—Dealer.

Stocks Yield Under Blows Of Reductions in Dividends

Losses Average 2.1 Points as Sales Pile Up to 1,189,740 Shares.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A stock market that had been rather impervious to recent news generally branded as unfavorable, finally bent today under a few dividend changes and the assumption in speculative quarters that other revisions might follow.

Wall street had been quite prepared for yesterday's action by the U. S. Steel directors, but the financial community was caught a bit off balance, apparently, by omission of the Standard Oil of New Jersey 25 cent quarterly extra, which had been regarded as a fixture; also, Drug cut its payment to 75 cents from $1, and the cumulative effect was a little too much for professional traders and doubtless, also, for some of the more conservatively minded share-holders.

Numerous net losses of 1 to 5 points measured Wall street's mood of the moment. Selling, which pushed volume up to 1,189,740 shares, was concentrated in the afternoon dealings; during the morning, the market, after some initial nervousness seemed to have taken stoically the Steel preferred cut and rallied mildly, but the action taken by Jersey's directors turned the scales downward and final quotations were around bottom.

United States Steel's senior shares, off 4¼ points on the first transaction, stiffened a trifle, then extended their early dip to about 5 points. New Jersey Standard had an extreme break of 4¼ and closed 3¾ lower. Drug lost a point. American Telephone, which has clung to its $9 annual dividend, took a 3⅝-point tumble, cutting that drop to 2¾ net. General Motors and its principal stockholder, DuPont, were soggy. General Motors directors meet next Monday.

Rails, on the whole, did reasonably well, considering the definite downward trend elsewhere. New York Central and Union Pacific sagged a point, but otherwise changes were largely fractional for the carriers and some closed higher. Utilities showed decided heaviness, especially Consolidated Gas, North American and Public Service of New Jersey, which yielded around 2 points each. American Tobacco "B" dropped 3; United States Steel common 1½ and Westinghouse, American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, Texas Corporation, Union Carbide, Goodyear and Macy from a major fraction to about 1½. Borden was rather steady, having anticipated the cut in its disbursement to stockholders.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tue.
Advances	104	195
Declines	346	174
Unchanged	118	149
Total issues	568	518

Stocks.

Blows dealt by dividend cuts caused heavy selling and stock losses of 1 to 5 points. The average drop was 2.1 points. Sales mounted to 1,189,740 shares.

Bonds.

Weakness of German and Canadian issues unsettled bonds, and a four-tenths point loss resulted. Some utilities and industrials joined rails in a recovery. Sales increased to $11,597,000.

Curb.

Prices reacted under the leadership of utility issues. The market was influenced by losses on the big board. Sales volume dropped slightly to 130,000 shares.

Wheat.

Instability of stocks and Canadian currency sent prices down. Fluctuations of wheat were wide. May wheat sold at 47¼ to 47¾ cents.

Cotton.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange was cheerful; renewed activity in gold mining shares led to their recovery. Gilt-edged securities and home rails improved on cheap money and investment buying. Foreign bonds, oil shares and transatlantic issues were easy. The market closed steady.

Paris—The tone of the bourse was irregular owing to profit taking. International issues declined under the lead of Canadian Pacific and the market closed irregular.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were firm, but closed slightly lower on news of possible reichstag diet dissolutions.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for January 30 were $6,030,919.68; expenditures, $16,725,533.91; balance, $328,720,467 19. Customs duties for 30 days of January were $17,694,871.88.

FLOUR MARKET.

Minneapolis, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—FLOUR—Unchanged; shipments, 21,467. Pure bran, 8.50@9.00.

BONDS DRIFT LOWER AS FOREIGNS DROOP

Rails, Industrials and Some Utilities Recover; Sales, $11,579,000.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Weakness of German and Canadian issues today unsettled the bond market and prices generally drifted lower.

While a number of the utilities and industrials recovered, after early uncertainty, and various rail liens and United States Government loans displayed resistance, the foreign slump was too much of a barrier to hurdle successfully. Trading volume was somewhat heavier, sales totaling $11,579,000 par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was off .4 point.

German 5½s were heavily traded for a decline of 3¼ points, while losses of 1 to 4 or more points were scattered throughout the republic's state, municipal and corporate issues. Reich loans tumbled following announcement that President von Hindenburg had ordered dissolution of the Reichstag, placed Hitler in control and decreed new elections for March 5.

Canadian government and railway maturities dropped 1 to around 3 points coincident with a sharp decline in the dominion's dollar on the foreign exchange market. The fall of the Canadians was attributed partly to speculative selling resulting from talk of a renewal of the movement in the dominion to further depreciate the country's currency so that it would be more in line with the British pound sterling.

The domestic section acted somewhat more sedately and price changes for the most part were small.

The Federal department, although rather quiet, steadied and three of the Treasuries edged up to new 1932-33 highs.

In addition to the Germans, most other foreign groups sagged. Some of the Danish issues were off as much as 4 points and the Argentines, French and Italians eased.

Rubber Closes Steady.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Crude rubber futures closed steady. May, 2.89; June, 2.95; July, *3.01; September, *3.09. Smoked ribbed spot, closed 12.90.

*Bid; †normal.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A good volume of business on cotton gray goods was offered to mills today but they were unwilling to accept the low price ideas of buyers.

The result was that actual sales were moderate. Rayon cloths continued firm in price but demand was slackening. Burlap quotations were slightly stronger.

Ship Building During 1932 Drops Nearly 900,000 Tons

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The gross tonnage of merchant vessels launched throughout the world in 1932, Lloyd's Register of Shipping reported today, was nearly 900,000 tons less than in 1931.

The 1932 total of 726,591 gross tons was the smallest annual production in more than 50 years, Lloyd's said.

This decline, the report showed, was less marked in the United States than in other nations. For American shipyards there was a decrease of only 62,000 gross tons, as compared with a decline of 314,000 gross tons for Great Britain and Ireland.

	1932	1931
Great Britain and Ireland	187,794	502,487
United States	143,559	205,865
France	89,310	103,419
Germany	80,799	103,934
Japan	54,422	83,721
Italy	47,441	165,048
Sweden	43,000	112,703
Holland	26,232	120,296
Denmark	22,413	126,974

The largest vessel launched during 1932 was the Normandye, of 68,000 gross tons, constructed in France.

Of America's total gross tonnage of 143,559, 141,359 tons were launched on the Atlantic Coast. There were no launchings during the year on the Great Lakes.

Crude Oil's Output Cut 6,600 Barrels

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 6,600 barrels in the week ended January 28, totaling 2,008,700 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 2,400 barrels to 1,545,300 barrels.

Refineries representing 91.6 per cent of estimated total capacity operated at 59.4 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,098,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 91.6 per cent of total, operated at 59.6 per cent of capacity, was 2,106,000 barrels.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total charging capacity was 397,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total was 394,000 barrels. Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 671,000 barrels against 1,329,000 barrels.

CURB PRICES REACT UNDER UTILITY LEAD

Big Board Losses Affect Market; Sales Cut to 130,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The curb market began the month with a rather substantial reaction today. Pressure centered largely on utility shares, but there were numerous setbacks elsewhere. Sales totaled 130,000 shares, a slightly smaller volume than yesterday.

Weakness of power and light issues on the big board spread to the junior exchange, especially in the afternoon. Electric Bond & Share's loss was fractional, but American Gas, American Light & Traction preferred, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Columbia Gas preferred were down about 2 points on the average. Duke Power was an exception, rallying 2 on light trading. Penn Water dropped 4 and inactive Oklahoma Gas & Electric preferred lost 17¼.

Oils were fairly steady, despite weakness of Standard of New Jersey on the stock exchange. Net losses for Indiana and Gulf were small, though Humble eased half a point. Mining shares were featured by an advance of more than a point in Lake Shore, which reached a new high. New York & Honduras, on the other hand, slumped nearly 1½.

Specialties were mostly heavy. Novadel Agene, Walgreen and Aluminum of America reacted moderately, while Montgomery Ward "A" yielded 4 points. H. C. Bohack, trading for the first time in months, was off 17½. Insurance of North America eased fractionally.

Telegraph Concerns Get Office Rent Concessions

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The Western Union Telegraph Co. and Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. have obtained rent concessions on a large percentage of their offices throughout the country, it was learned today.

Western Union is said to have effected savings totaling $500,000 a year, while Postal's rent economies are figured at more than $400,000 a year. The reductions were obtained as a result of negotiations carried on over the past few months. The telegraph companies are among the largest real estate renters in the country. Western Union has approximately 5,000 branches and the Postal system about 2,000.

WHEAT VALUES SINK WITH OTHER MARTS

Stocks and Canada Money Losses Affect Prices; Heavy Selling.

Chicago, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Instability of the New York stock market and also of Canadian currency went hand in hand today with an irregular downward trend of prices for grain.

Big export buying of Canadian wheat failed to act as more than a temporary counterbalance. In the general overturn of grain values, the oats market outdid the season's bottom price record.

Wheat closed nervous, ¼ to ⅝ under yesterday's finish; oats, ⅛ to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Wheat Fluctuations Wide.

Fluctuations of wehat values today were the widest and most rapid witnessed for some time. The volume of trading, too, was much larger than has been the rule of late. Export purchases of Canadian wheat aggregated more than 2,000,000 bushels, but the stimulus from this was quickly lost because of widespread recognition that the overseas buying had been a consequence of a break in Canadian exchange.

Heavy selling of wheat in Chicago was attributed partly to "spread" operations with Winnipeg. Most of the Canadian export business was asserted here to have been with the European continent, although Great Britain was also named as a buyer. France was reported to have bought for May-June shipment, the first time for many weeks that country has been mentioned as in the market.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. May corn sold within ⅝ of the lowest figures of the season.

Provisions were handicapped by grain weakness and made only a laggard response to hog market upturns.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SELLING DRIVES

May Closes at 5.93 as General Market Drops 11 to 14 Points.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A continuation of the recent selling movement was reflected by further declines in cotton today.

May contracts sold off to 5.93 or 11 points net lower. Closing quotations were at the lowest of the day on all active positions with the tone barely steady at net losses of 11 to 14 points.

The opening was unchanged to 2 points lower. Prices were relatively firm in the forenoon but the market eased in the late trading. March closed at 5.79 and July at 6.05. The trade was a buyer, taking contracts more or less steadily during the progress of the decline, but the demand seemed to be chiefly on limited orders or on scale down.

Little Southern Selling.

Very little Southern selling was reported, and the pressure was again attributed chiefly to liquidation of long accounts. Houses with continental and Far Eastern connections sold during the earlier trading, but offerings from these sources were smaller than they were yesterday, according to local brokers.

A Liverpool cable to the New York Cotton Exchange Service said that light Bombay offerings in that market had been well absorbed, but quoted reports from Bombay to the effect that a number of cotton mills there are likely to close down in the near future unless demand improves.

Exports today, 49,186, making 5,051,207 so far this season. Port receipts, 28,583. U. S. port stocks, 4,789,849.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was irregular today with closing prices 1 point higher to 1 point lower.

Covering and buying by refining interests absorbed moderate selling by commission houses. Steadiness of lard offset the reaction in cotton and grains. Sales were, 11 contracts or 1,650 barrels. Bleachable spot closed, 3.52; March, 3.64; May, 3.78; July, 3.87; September, 3.96.

Canadian Dollars Thrill Exchanges

Currency Closes Slightly Down After Wide Fluctuations.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A sharp flurry in Canadian dollar transactions gave the foreign exchange market a moderate thrill today while other currencies followed a quiet and rather narrow routine.

Dominion funds dropped precipitately in early trading following a renewal of reports that a further depreciation of Canadian exchange was being considered in order to put it more in line with the British pound sterling. Rates dropped to as low as 81½ cents at one time, a bottom price since 1931, before rallying to close at 83¾ cents for a net loss of 9-16 of a cent.

Sterling lost ¾ of a cent at $3.38 13-16 for cables, and Swedish and Norwegian kroner were slightly easier.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

LEHMANN-MARION CONCERT ENJOYED

Musical Morning Series Final Pleases Audience at Mayflower.

Mme. Lotte Lehmann, dramatic soprano of the Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London opera, and Paolo Marion, tenor of the Vienna and Chicago opera, were presented as joint artists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's sixty-eighth musical morning at the Mayflower yesterday, furnishing an outstanding finish to Mrs. Townsend's series of musical mornings this season.

Admirers of Mme. Lehmann's splendid voice and dramatic personality were foremost in the audience and she was given a rousing ovation when she appeared.

Her glorious voice, shown to such advantage in German lieder, had ample opportunity in yesterday morning's program, which was replete with the vocal treasures of Brahms, Schubert, Schumann, Strauss and Wagner. In her two operatic numbers, "Dich teure Hall," from Tannhaeuser, an aria and in the duet with M. Marion from "Lohengrin" the reason for her leadership among the prima donnas was apparent as well.

M. Marion, the tenor whose pleasing voice won favorable commendation, also sang several German lieder songs and an aria, "Racconto," from the last act of Lohengrin.

Mellow voiced, displaying artistry and of attractive personality, M. Marion appeared to deserve all the econiums which had been heaped on him in Europe and elsewhere during his career.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Townsend spoke briefly, in which she urged support of next year's series of musical mornings and also pleaded that the music-loving public of Washington patronize the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Townsend announced that next season the series would consist of seven musicals instead of eight and at a price varying from 20 to 30 per cent less than this year, while maintaining the same high standard.

The first musical morning of the new season will take place December 13 next.

Corliss Palmer Given Drug to Bring Sleep

San Francisco, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A sedative, administered to counteract hysteria, brought rest here today to Corliss Palmer, former screen actress who was taken to a San Francisco emergency hospital last night and booked as an alcoholic patient.

Sleep came to Miss Palmer after a period of irrationality during which leather handcuffs were used to prevent her from acting violently, and after she had rallied sufficiently to tell a story of thwarted love, punctuated by frequent calls for "Al." The actress identified "Al" as Albert Cohen, screen writer, who was sued for divorce in Los Angeles several months ago by Mrs. Estelle A. Cohen. Mrs. Cohen named Miss Palmer as co-respondent.

TARIFF ON JAPANESE RUBBER SHOES HIKED

the basis of the American wholesale value of the imports.

Although this system of American valuation has been applied three times before under the flexible provisions of the 1930 tariff bill, the previous instances have involved items almost negligible in international trade. In the present instance it is applied to a product which, during the last year, has made heavy inroads into the American market.

The commission found that for the entire year, 1932, imports of tennis shoes and similar products in the same tariff classification equaled about 10 per cent of the domestic production.

"Competition from imports of rubber-soled footwear has developed chiefly since 1931," the commission's report says in tracing the development of the Japanese trade. "Japan went off the gold standard on December 14, 1931, and the exchange value of the yen has fallen somewhat irregularly since that date."

Comparison of Costs.

In citing the influence of the exchange depreciation on import prices, the commission published official statistics showing that the average import price of Japanese tennis shoes declined from 12.3 cents a pair during the first three months of 1932 to 8.6 cents a pair during the last quarter of the year.

The average domestic production cost was given as 37 cents a pair.

Another section of the Tariff Commission's report deals with the effect of foreign competition on American exports. In 1929 American producers shipped an average of 676,869 pairs of these shoes abroad every month. For the first nine months of 1932, the American exports averaged 28,818 pairs a month.

Coupled with the higher rates against Japanese tennis shoes, the commission also applied the American valuation principle to rubber overshoes and gaiters is 25 per cent been flowing into the American market in increasing volume recently from Czechoslovakia. This order also covers rubber boots and shoes and a small quantity of sport shoes offered in competition with the Japanese products.

The new rate on storm rubbers, overshoes and faiters is 25 per cent ad valorem based on the American selling price of the domestic product.

Hoover Urged Speed.

The commission pointed out in its report that Czechoslovakia still is operating on the gold standard, and suggested that in the case of these imports the foreign advantage arises "in part from causes other than the fall in exchange."

In its appeal to the American trade last summer to avoid the Japanese and Czech products, the Rubber Manufacturers Association, with headquarters in New York, declared the foreign imports are produced by workers earning an average of 2 cents to 3 cents an hour.

The Tariff Commission's inquiry was launched on October 14, 1932, and the items involved were among those listed by President Hoover in his letter of October 24 to Chairman O'Brien, urging the commission to expedite its reports on 18 commodity investigations.

'Buddy' Rogers Will Greet Post's Patrons Tomorrow

CHARLES "BUDDY" ROGERS.

Charles "Buddy" Rogers, whose career in the films, on the stage and over the air has set feminine hearts aflutter for years, will make a very special "personal appearance" tomorrow noon in the business office of The Washington Post on the first floor.

Mr. Rogers, who will be the headline attraction of the stage show at Loew's Fox beginning tomorrow, has agreed to get behind the counter in The Post's business office and help distribute tickets to the Fox to want ad users who have been taking advantage of The Post's special offer in this connection.

To every person submitting a Post want ad, for seven consecutive times, Mr. Rogers will hand out a pair of guest tickets to Loew's Fox to see the stage show headed by himself and "Face in the Sky," the feature picture in which Spencer Tracy and Marion Nixon are featured.

This personal appearance at The Post will be made from 12 until 1 o'clock tomorrow noon and Mr. Rogers hopes to greet a great many of his admirers during that period of time.

Mr. Rogers' career has been a series of successes first in the film, then in "Hot Cha," the Ziegfeld musical; then with his Cavaliers in radio and now in a vaudeville sketch.

Don't miss this opportunity to meet Mr. Rogers. All you need is a want ad to secure tickets to the Fox and meet the star.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MR. MOSS HART by now probably knows all there is to know about a boomerang.

I mean to say that while Hollywood can "take" a considerable amount of friendly spoofing—and, as far as that goes, a good deal that is not so friendly, too—it manages, at times, to find ways and means of gently hazing its detractors and putting them in their places.

Irving Thalberg.

For example, take the case of Mr. Hart, who will be remembered as coauthor with George S. Kaufman of that biting satire of the films and their making, "Once in a Lifetime." Although Mr. Hart kidded the life out of the movies, his ability as a playwright was recognized by the industry and he was engaged as a writer by one of the major studios.

It will be recalled that one of the highlights of "Once in a Lifetime" was the supposedly fictional incident of the director who filmed the wrong manuscript. The manner in which this episode of the story bounced back at its author is just beginning to leak out.

When Mr. Hart was due to arrive in Los Angeles, Irving Thalberg, of M-G-M, his employer, sent envoys to the train to meet him. They were instructed to rush him to the studio, to have an office and typewriter ready for him, and to see that he started to work within an hour after his arrival. (You may remember the character of Lawrence Vail, the writer who sat around the studio for months without ever being noticed or spoken to by any of his bosses, in Mr. Hart's play?)

Reaching his office after a fast ride from the station, Hart was handed a treatment, or synopsis, of the story for which he was to write the dialogue.

It is reported by Mr. Hubbard Keavy, head man of our West Coast eye-to-the-keyhole department, that Mr. Hart sighed plaintively at recollection of Lawrence Vail and worked assiduously for three weeks completing his dialogue.

Then when he turned in his manuscript, it was discovered that he had been given the wrong synopsis. In the excitement of "impressing" Hart, the conspirators had made the slight "error" of handing him a treatment that had been discarded a little over a year previously!

The boys out in the studios may not get much money, but they sure have a lot of fun!

Contrary to expectation and preliminary announcement, "The Past of Mary Holmes," a dialogue version of "The Goose Woman," featuring Helen MacKellar, of stage renown, will not be the attraction at RKO-Keith's the week of February 10. This tentative booking has been supplanted by "Child of Manhattan," Columbia Pictures' film version of the Peggy Fears stage production of the same name, with John Boles and Nancy Carroll in the principal roles. "The Past of Mary Holmes" will come along at a later date.

"Child of Manhattan" bases its narrative upon the not too strange contingencies that arise when a taxi dancer from one of New York's gaudier 10-cents-a-dance halls marries a multimillionaire social registerite. This, the energetic Mrs. A. C. Blumenthal's first production, was first heralded as one of last season's Washington premieres, but plans were later changed, which, everything considered, may have been just as well. The story's picture treatment is said to be a considerable improvement over the original.

Following the engagement of "Child of Manhattan," RKO-Keith's will offer Irene Dunne, who scored so decisively in Fannie Hurst's "Back Street," in "No Other Woman." This feature has just completed a notable booking at the new Radio Center in New York.

On February 24 the RKO-Keith attraction will be John Barrymore in "Topaze," one of the most delightful vehicles in which this famous member of the "royal family" has appeared. Myrna Loy, whose work with Leslie Howard and Ann Harding in "The Animal Kingdom" recently was such a revelation, is cast opposite Mr. Barrymore in "Topaze."

Unless memory has gone completely blah—and that is by no means to be listed among the improbabilities—it was Frank Morgan, last seen on the screen with Lee Tracy and Lupe Velez in "The Half Naked Truth," who appeared in "Topaze" on the stage. Not that it matters, with Mr. Barrymore coming along.

Of more immediate concern, obviously, is the return of Miss Tallulah Bankhead to the stage in a new play, "Forsaking All Others," an event that is to be celebrated locally at the National Theater, come Monday night.

After a more or less ill-starred venture into the films, during which the casting director never did her any sort of decent justice, Miss Bankhead returns to the boards under the aegis of Mr. Arch Selwyn in a play that is said to be much to her taste and talent. Mr. Selwyn has assembled an admirable cast for his star's support, among them such established favorites as Cora Witherspoon, Mary Duncan, Donald MacDonald and numerous others, not, however, including Ian Keith or Helen Flint, both originally announced.

In bringing her new play to Washington, Miss Bankhead, to all intents and purposes, is "returning home."

On this Saturday, by the way, Tony Sarg, the famous artist and puppeteer, is to appear in person, along with a lively troupe of his miniature figures, at the Masonic Auditorium, where he will not only demonstrate the uncanny perfection of his marionettes, but will go into some detail as to their history and development.

As long as we have gone this far, you should be glad to know that the photoplay parade through the downtown, first-run sector will be something akin to this for the week beginning tomorrow: Metropolitan, Kate Smith in "Hello, Everybody;" RKO-Keith's, Carole Lombard in "No More Orchids;" Earle, Barbara Stanwyck in "Ladies They Talk About," and Harriet Hoctor and Irene Beasley, coheadlining the vaudeville bill; Loew's Fox, Marian Nixon and Spencer Tracy in "Face in the Sky," and Charles "Buddy" Rogers headlining the vaudeville bill in person; Rialto, Tala Birell and Melvyn Douglas in "Nagana," second week; Palace, Eddie Cantor in "The Kid From Spain," second week; Columbia, Ethel, Lionel and John Barrymore in "Rasputin and the Empress," second week.

On Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in the National, E. M. Newman, travel lecturer, will deliver the third travel-talk of his "Around the World" series of five, with "Singapore to Hong Kong" the specific title of this particular itinerary. This route progresses from Singapore to Java, thence to Bali, from there to the Island of Sulu, Luzon and Manila and across to Hong Kong and Canton, most Chinese of all Chinese cities.

Nothing could be more in line with the general trend of these remarks than the contents of the envelopes just handed in by a breathless emissary from Loew's Fox. Upon close examination this dispatch is found to announce the definite booking for the week of February 10 on F street, of Ted Lewis and his Jubilee Show. Lewis brings with him a company of more than 40 singers, dancers and instrumentalists, to cavort upon the stage during the intervals when Warner Baxter, Miriam Jordan and Herbert Mundin are not occupying the screen in "Dangerously Yours."

With Anatole Friedland here this week, that makes two pretentious revues almost in a row for the F street cathedral. Or maybe you're keeping your own count.

It was interesting to learn from yesterday's column that when those pictures of "The Crandall Saturday Nighters in Action" were being made the announcer's neck was so scorched by a nearby Klieg light that it "pealed," as in sunburn! It is not my recollection that that is at all what it did. It peeled, as in onion.

Or perhaps some flipcracker is just building himself a gag because the announcer's neck happened to be named Bell!

Pioneer German Plane Designer Dies at 83

Berlin, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Gustav Lilienthal, a pioneer in German aviation and a brother of the famous Otto Lilienthal, died today. He was 83.

The Lilienthal brothers were engaged in aviation experiments in the 1890s, concentrating on a birdlike machine with flapping wings. Otto was killed when one of his planes crashed in 1896.

CAMPAIGN TO ALTER CADET SYSTEM WON

terday, called attention to a letter written Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer, in charge of cadets, by the principal of Eastern High School, in which the latter recommended that the cadets be grouped according to size.

The physician also revealed that Capt. Arthur C. Newman, military instructor in charge of colored cadets, had told the student activities committee that the colored school cadets were operating under the uniform plan. This is the plan that will be introduced in the white schools. It will result in every cadet company having the same number of tall and short men.

Closed Door Meeting.

These facts, disclosed by Dr. Eckhardt, were brought out at a closed-door meeting of the student activities committee last week, which was attended by principals, school officials and cadet instructors. Dr. Eckhardt contended that all cadet companies do not have a fair chance to win the annual cadet drill because of inequitable distribution of men.

Dr. Bennett informed the board in his report yesterday that many of Dr. Eckhardt's suggestions are in actual practice. He also gave hearty indorsement to the procedure of leaving "minor details" in the cadet organization to the individual principals, rather than to "a bureaucratic control at the Franklin School."

Yesterday's meeting was enlivened by several other matters in addition to the cadet question. Henry Gilligan, militant board member and leader of the recent famous boxing battle, engaged in a sharp debate with Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou relative to the powers of a board member.

Question of Reinstatement.

The question of the reinstatement of a teacher who had resigned was under discussion when Mr. Gilligan revealed that he had advised the teacher in her effort to reenter the local school system. Dr. Ballou said that in his opinion a member of the board had no right to act on board matters outside of a meeting.

Mr. Gilligan tartly replied that he represented the people of the District, the teachers and students especially. He observed that school officials frequently do not act as wisely as board members.

The superintendent retorted that it was not the usual course of procedure for a board member to advise a teacher to come before the board of examiners. This is what Mr. Gilligan had done.

Mrs. Doyle Presides.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the board, who was presiding in the absence of Dr. Hayden Johnson, the president, intervened at this point in support of Dr. Ballou. Dr. Bennett joined in with the statement that he had acted on his own accord in advising teachers, and expressed the opinion that it is natural for a teacher to come to a member of the Board of Education and seek his advice as an individual.

"I was acting as an individual," said Mr. Gilligan. "I am sure the board understands that."

The discussion involved Mrs. R. McRae Barclay, a former junior high school teacher, who resigned, left the city and has since returned and sought reinstatement. Mr. Gilligan asked the board that it waive its rules and reinstate the teacher. Dr. Ballou pointed out that the board could only vote to make the teacher eligible for reinstatement. The superintendent then produced evidence showing that the requirements for entrance into the school system have been elevated since Mrs. Barclay took her examinations five years ago. The superintendent also revealed that Mrs. Barclay had never completed a teacher's college course.

Another Lively Discussion.

Mr. Gilligan's motion was defeated by the board, and the recommendation of the board of examiners that the teacher not be reinstated was upheld.

In the case of another teacher applying for reinstatement, Mrs. Isabel C. Weyrich, the board ruled favorably on the grounds that this teacher was qualified for reinstatement.

After another lively discussion, the board voted to order McKinley High School to discontinue the sale of new books in its bookstore and to sell only second-hand books.

The board waived its rules in granting permission to the James Reese Europe Post, No. 5, of the American Legion, colored, to use the auditorium of the Garnett-Patterson Junior High School for an entertainment to raise money to buy food for needy persons.

Puzzlers

Indictments Are Returned in "Contest" Fraud of Millions.

Chicago, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A ten-year Federal investigation of "prize puzzle" contests in magazines and newspapers throughout the country culminated in indictments today against officers of the W. P. Boyce Publishing Co. and of the Helen Dawn Co., cosmetics maker.

Both concerns were charged with duping thousands of puzzle workers by converting them into salesmen.

The Boyce company, described in the indictment as one of the largest publishing houses in the country, was alleged to have obtained $2,500,000 in 1930 and 1931 through purported contests which the Government said really constituted no more than a subscription scheme for its magazines.

The Helen Dawn Co. since 1915 has obtained more than $25,000,000, the Government said, and in the single year, 1931, collected $1,300,000 from a half million puzzle solvers. Those who started out to "solve the puzzle and win $3,700 or an automobile" by "finding the faces in the clouds" were eventually required, the prosecutor explained, to buy cosmetics at wholesale and earn "votes" by selling the products.

2 Trucks Mobbed In Detroit Walkout

Strikers at Briggs Plant Are Blamed for Attack on Ford Parts Cargo.

Detroit, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Trucks which the Briggs Manufacturing Co. said were delivering parts for the Ford Motor Co. were raided in the streets today by men who, police said, were of the 6,000 Briggs employes who went on strike a week ago.

Two trucks were set upon by the men as the drivers moved from the company's Mack avenue plant. A mob of 300, police reported, scattered the contents of one truck into the street before police intervened, while at another location a few men halted a truck in the street and pulled the driver from his cab. They were dispersed before they damaged the contents.

The Briggs company, however, declared they were "in full production" again after the week-long strike which forced the Ford factories to suspend when their supply of auto bodies was cut off.

Oklahoma Farmers Halt Sale of Widow's Farm

Cherokee, Okla., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—More than 1,000 farmers, shouting "There'll be no mortgage foreclosures in Alfalfa County," halted auctioning of a widow's farm and escorted the representative of a mortgage-holding concern out of town today.

The representative, Ancel Greer, of Kingfisher, Okla., attorney for the Equitable Life Assurance Society, offered to bid in the quarter-section farm for the full amount of an $8,400 judgment against Mrs. Julia Jobes. The farmers cried "No compromise" and forced Greer's departure. He offered no resistance.

Man Who Gave Factory To Employes Found Dead

Baltimore, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Louis M. Keizer, who once received a distinguished service citation from the War Department and who seven years ago, with his partner, turned over the manufacturing machinists business they had built up to their employes, was found shot to death today.

The body of the 67-year-old man was found in the vestibule of the manufacturing plant he formerly directed. A shotgun was lying nearby.

GOVERNOR NARROWS COUNTY TAX BREACH

Ritchie Partially Approves Plan to Give Baltimore Increased Share.

By Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today moved to narrow the rift between the administration and the County Commissioners' Association by partially approving their proposal to increase Baltimore City's share of gasoline tax revenues, although he sounded a warning against too radical cuts in the budget.

In a formal statement Gov Ritchie gave his sanction to allotting Baltimore city 30 per cent of 3½ cents of the gasoline tax, but pointed out that if Baltimore got 30 per cent of the remaining ½ cent, the proposed 3-cent reduction in the State tax rate possibly could not be made. The County Commissioners' Association has sponsored a bill to give Baltimore 30 per cent of the entire yield of the tax.

Gov. Ritchie pointed out that he already has proposed to increase Baltimore's share of the 2 per cent gasoline tax. He would have increased their share in the 1½ cent levy, but thought it wiser to use this money to decrease county taxes, he said.

"While I may differ with the county commissioners as to the best way of handling the county road work, I will certainly not differ with them when they want to give Baltimore 30 per cent of the 1½ cent tax. I did not recommend it only because of my desire to give the counties the most relief possible from this fund. But if the counties are for this 30 per cent that settles it," the governor said.

The proposed 3-cent reduction in the State tax was to be made possible by diverting the proceeds of the ½-cent tax to bond retirement. To reduce this by 30 per cent might not leave sufficient funds to carry the State budget on the lower rate, he said. However, if the gasoline tax receipts are sufficient to allow Baltimore 30 per cent and still reduce the tax, he would favor giving the city a share of the ½-cent tax also, he said.

Regarding budget cuts, he stated: "I have felt that the appropriations recommended in the budget represent the lowest amounts on which the State agencies can be administered without crippling or abolishing established governmental activities, and without adding unduly to unemployment by the wholesale dismissal of employes."

He is still "completely sympathetic with any further reductions in the State budget which after investigation and study are found to be necessary or justified," he said.

Col. T. W. Miller Asks Citizenship Restoration

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A report spread through the Federal Building today that Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, who served more than a year of an 18-month term in Atlanta penitentiary for defrauding the Government, has applied for restoration of citizenship rights.

It was reported the application had been recommended by Federal Judge Knox, who imposed sentence, and by U. S. Attorney George Z. Medalie, prosecutor in the district in which Miller was tried. The recommendations, it was said, are in the hands of the U. S. Attorney General, and probably will be handed eventually to the President for action.

Bill Bars Nevada Divorce Secrecy.

Carson City, Nev., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—A bill was introduced in the Nevada Assembly today to prohibit private hearing of divorce cases in this State. Provisions permitting secrecy in such proceedings would be stricken from the statute books should the bill become law.

TEMPLE WINS THRILLER FROM GEORGETOWN, 44-41

3 Week-End Features At Md.

C. U. and G. W. in Home Battles on Saturday.

ONE of the most active week-ends of college athletic endeavor will break out tomorrow night and continue over Saturday. Maryland University, with two home basket ball games and a boxing match, snares the center of the spotlight, although its three offerings are not quite half of the total of local collegiate events.

Maryland's opponent tomorrow night is North Carolina University's court team, and the meeting between the two schools is expected to do much to lower the public confidence in comparative scores. One of Maryland's few victories this year was scored over Duke University last month, and several nights ago Duke rose up in fury and ended a long Tarheel victory streak by the score of 36-33.

N. C. U. has taken North Carolina State, V. M. I., Wake Forrest, Davidson and several minor colleges over the jumps this season. Tonight the Tarheels have the extra added incentive of righting a Maryland victory achieved last year by a score of 26-25.

Brandt, Former Central Star, With N. C. U.

Bulwarks of the visiting team are George Brandt, former Central High athlete; Wilmer Hines, who also is one of the best tennis players in the country, and Vergil Weathers. Brandt, 6-feet-1-inch, is the tallest man on the squad.

Vying for what interest there is left tomorrow night, American U. entertains Randolps-Macon at A. U. gymnasium at 8 o'clock. Gallaudet meets up with Upsala, at East Orange, N. J.

Saturday night Maryland offers a basket ball game with the Southern Conference champions, Georgia, and a boxing match against Duke. Georgia's champion team of last year is almost identical. It is unbeaten for the year. The last time the two schools met Maryland beat Georgia in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tournament of two years ago by a single basket.

George Washington University's team, without big Wick Parrack in uniform, takes on Elon at G. W. gymnasium and Catholic U. meets up with Baltimore U., at C. U. in other local features for Saturday night.

Mrs. Hill Is Finalist In Miami Tournament

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Two Westerners, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Estelle Drennan, of Tulsa, Okla., today advanced to the final round of the Miami Biltmore women's golf tournament.

Miss Bea Gottlieb, of New York, a star competitor in several Florida tournaments, was defeated by Mrs. Hill, 7 and 6, as the Kansas City shotmaker continued the spectacular golf she played in earlier rounds.

Mrs. Drennan registered a 7-and-5 victory over Miss Agnes Wayne, of Miami, and tomorrow will play Mrs. Hill for the championship.

McMillan and Jones In Feature on Mat

Jim McMillan, one of the 4,398 "uncrowned champions" of the rassling game, will meet Paul Jones, scissors expert, a week from tonight at the Washington Auditorium, it was announced yesterday by Joe Turner, promoter.

Four more bouts will be added to the card during the next few days.

In a 45-minute semiwindup match, the two handsomest boys who now ply their trade here, Frank Judson and Jacques Humberton, will be brought together.

Three more bouts will be added to the program within the next few days.

Mount. St. Joseph's Scores Lone Field Goal in Final Minute.

Playing some of the finest defensive basket ball ever shown by a high school squad here, Georgetown Prep's outfit yesterday turned back the intercity challenge of Mount St. Joseph's, of Baltimore, by the overwhelming score of 44-5 in a game played at Garrett Park.

So airtight was the defensive play of the winners that not until a single minute was left of the entire game was the losing team able to score a field goal, that single effort being turned in by Henn, right forward of the Baltimore squad.

Georgetown Prep's offensive attack was no less potent than its defense, with Keating and Allen tossing them in at will.

SEEDS SIGNS CONTRACT.

Boston, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The signed contract of Outfielder Bob Seeds, obtained in a trade with Chicago, was received today by the Boston Red Sox management. President Bob Quinn announced that Dale Alexander, who led the American League batters last season, was in the fold.

Even With 8-Inch Cups

By BRIAN BELL.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones had just finished an effortless round of golf over a hard Hollywood course, shaving a strike from par and exhibiting a beautiful putting stroke. The champion of champions in the past has been known to encounter trouble putting in California.

As he holed out his last par, sending his approach putt dead from 25 feet, friends suggested he was in the midst of a good putting stride.

"I putted well enough today," he said, "but I might not do so well next time. It's easy to miss putts. Why, they tell me, a good golfer took four putts in the tournament the other day with the 8-inch cups. I heard, too, of a friend of mine who missed the ball altogether on the green.

Once Putted Off Green Into Stream.

"For that matter, I once putted off the green and into a stream after reaching the putting surface from the tee."

"When?"

"Oh, about sixteen years ago. I was playing a practice round before the 1916 amateur at Merion, the first I entered. The greens were very keen, quite different from the heavy Bermuda greens in the South, the only ones I had ever seen.

"At the sixth hole, a pitch across a brook, I was 30 feet beyond the hole with my tee shot. I hit the putt as I would have stroked it at home and was amazed to see the ball roll on past the hole and into the stream. Imagine my embarrassment when I had to play from the other side of the water."

The only man who ever won all the major championships in sight in one year does not believe any radical changes will be made in golf.

Sees Few Radical Changes In Golf.

"Its a pretty good game now and I believe it will be left alone. I shall be very much surprised if the size of the cup is increased. As for the lack of thrills, there may not be many for the crowds watching the stars, as Gene (Sarazen) says, but there are often a lot of them in a round in which the scores are from 95 to 100."

This seems almost a reference to the ability of the reporter so the subject was hurriedly changed from golf to bridge.

Bob was reminded that Ely Culbertson would soon be in Hollywood and a bridge game might be arranged.

"I have played bridge only three or four times in a year," said Jones, "I'd rather play Mr. Culbertson a round of golf."

54 Entries Remain In Grand National

Whitney's Thomond II and Royal Ransom Are Among Withdrawals.

London, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Withdrawals of John Hay Whitney's Thomond II and Royal Ransom marked the passing today of the first acceptance stage for the Grand National Steeplechase, which now contains 54 entries.

Turfmen were surprised at the withdrawal of the provisional entry of Thomond II, as he had been considered a possible winner because of his victory scored at half the Grand National distance after his saddle had slipped underneath him.

Four previous winners, Forbra, Grakle, Grégalach and Old Shaun Goilin are all likely to remain in the list for another try, while the "100 per cent" American horse, Mrs. T. H. Somerville's Trouble Maker, will attempt to do what Billy Barton just failed to accomplish a few years ago.

Besides these, the field will include the best jumpers in Ireland, France and England.

In addition to the Whitney withdrawals there was that of Remus IV, owned by the Austrian Doctora Tonelless. Remus IV won a recent important steeplechase in Czechoslovakia.

Whitney still has two new horses in the list along with Easter Hero, Sir Lindsay and Dusty Foot. Dusty Foot last year took a dislike to one of the hurdles and refused to budge. John Drake, another American, will rely upon his smart Coup de Chapeau.

Venzke Runs Saturday Despite Death of Dad

New York, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Gene Venzke, holder of the world indoor mile record of 4 minutes 10 seconds, will compete in the Rodman Wanamaker 1-mile race of the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden Saturday night despite death of his father in Florida yesterday.

Venzke notified Millrose officials that his father always keenly interested in athletics and he believed he would have wished him to go through with the race.

Eagles Win, 30-29, Over Lusnic Team

Winning Streak Halted as Berger Fails on Second Foul-Line Try.

First blood in the three-game series between the Aero Eagles and the Lustine Nicholson quintets for the semi-pro basket ball championship of the District hung in the balance last night as Bozie Berger, of the Lusnics, stepped to the foul line for two free shots with 25 seconds to play.

Berger made good on only one of his two tries and the Lusnics were forced to accept a 30-29 defeat before 500 fans who thronged the George Washington University gymnasium.

The Eagles' Victory, which broke a ten-game winning streak of the Lusnicks, saw Ralph Bennie, Tubba Farrell, Moon Evans and Joe Sweeney play leading roles to put the Eagles in the lead at the outset and pile up a 20-14 margin by half time.

Eddie Ronkin led the Lusnics' second-half spurt that threatened to deprive the Eagles of victory.

ENS TO COACH REDS.

Cincinnati, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Donie Bush today named Jewel Ens, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, as coach of the Cincinnati Reds. Ens was coach for Bush when Donie piloted the Pirates from 1927 to 1929, and succeeded Bush as manager the following two years. Last year he was coach and assistant manager for Bucky Harris, of Detroit.

Yank Scout Finds Two Future Greats

San Francisco, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Poking around in the backyards of Coast League clubs of this section, Joe Devine, scout for the New York Yankees, has uncovered two prospects he believes are destined to make their marks in big league base ball.

Leonard Gabrielson, so young that he is still going to high school, but so big he could bounce into Babe Ruth's uniform and look well tailored, has promised to sign with the Yankees in 1934. He is 16 years old, stands 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs 192 pounds and is still growing. Gabrielson is a left-hander and plays first base. Devine envisages the youth in Lou Gehrig's shoes some day.

The portly Devine, whose expeditions with the Pittsburg Pirates resulted in the bagging of Ray Kremer, the Waner brothers and Gus Suhr, also has signed Jimmy Tobin for the Newark International League Club, a Yankee farm. He will report this spring.

Tobin, a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher, has been twirling in the Oakland Winter League. He is a 6-footer, weighing 175 pounds and Devine says he has a good curve ball and deceptive change of pace.

Three Giant Rookies Sign 1933 Contracts

New York, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The New York Giants today added three more signed contracts to the list for a total of 21 accepted.

The latest are Gilbert English, young infielder, who may give Johnny Vergez a race for the third-base job; Arthur McLarney, Washington State University product, who is also an infield prospect, and Hardy Danning, Los Angeles catcher, who hit .314 in 50 games with the Winston-Salem "farm" of the Giants last year.

Eight-Inch Cup Idea Peeves Greenkeepers

Chicago, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—How to keep from growing old: Mention Gene Sarazen's proposal for installation of 8-inch cups to the hard working members of the National Association of Greenkeepers of the United States.

The reaction to the suggestion, made by a news seeking reporter at the annual association clinic, was explosive, to put it mildly.

"We're having enough trouble getting the greens in shape with the smaller cups," one member said wrathfully. "If they put in 8-inch cups, we'll have to stay awake nights watching so the walls of the cups don't cave in."

Two or three more members, hearing the disturbance, rushed up to the scene of the interview just then and the reporter ducked.

Chicago Aims For Baer Contest

Illinois Would Change Laws for 15-Round Schmeling Bout.

Rent of Soldier Field Another Obstacle for Dempsey.

By KENNETH D. FRY.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion of the world from Germany, will fight Max Baer, of California, in the year's fistic plum under the direction of Jack Dempsey, at Soldier Field, Chicago, the first or second week in June, providing:

1. Illinois legalizes fifteen-round boxing bouts, with a 10 per cent tax to the State.

2. Jack Dempsey can rent Soldier Field from the Century of Progress sports committee for a reasonable figure.

To emphasize his desire to stage the battle here as part of the World's Fair sports program, Dempsey told the sports committee today that he would not demand a guarantee, that he would be satisfied to break even or make a small profit, and that Chicago is the logical place for such a fight.

Chicago Logical Scene, Says Jack.

"I want to give the fight to Chicago," Jack said. "Chicago has proved that a good attraction draws out the fans. Baer is a big card here and there are many Germans in and around Chicago who would be attracted by Schmeling. But Illinois must legalize fifteen-round bouts and I must know by February 20 so that I can set the June date to conform to terms of my contract with Schmeling and Baer. They must know at least 90 days in advance where the bout will take place."

Tomorrow morning John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, will present to Mayor Cermak the proposed amendment to the boxing law pertaining to the number of rounds permitted. Illinois at present has a fifteen round clause for heavyweight championship fights only, and that clause also calls for a 15 per cent tax to the State.

$2 to $10 Seats Are Planned.

The new clause will call for a 10 per cent tax and will bear an emergency clause which will make it possible to have the law passed ten days after presentation to the Legislature. Richie Graham, vice chairman of the Senate, will champion the measure and it is planned to present it before both houses of the Legislature next Tuesday.

Dempsey said he plans $2 to $10 admission prices, with 50,000 seats at $2, if the bout comes to Chicago.

He went into a short secret session with the fair sports committee to talk over terms.

Tonight Dempsey and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, leave here for Minneapolis. After a day there they will go to Denver, where Dempsey has been offered $100,000 by a group of sportsmen to put on the fight there. Dempsey could not definitely promise the fight to Chicago until he had talked with Denver officials.

Jack said he would return to Chicago about February 17 to wind up negotiations, one way or the other.

Nats May Try Out Richmond U. Hurler

Richmond, Va., Feb. 1 (A.P.).—George Sanders, of White Stone, freshman pitcher on the University of Richmond Baseball Team has under consideration an offer for a tryout with the Washington Nationals at their Biloxi (Miss.) training camp, starting February 15, it was learned today.

Sanders, a southpaw, first attracted attention by his pitching for the Fork Union Military Academy Team, and last year he made a good record in semipro circles in Virginia.

ANOTHER HORNSBY SIGNED.

Atlanta, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Joe Hornsby, young Atlanta infielder, has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hornsby is 18 years old and weighs 156 pounds. He was one of the speediest runners in the city league last summer. He plays third base.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Each entrant is limited to one selection.

Walberg Joins Macks' Holdouts, Is Report

Philadelphia, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—George "Rube" Walberg, veteran southpaw pitcher, who is one of the Athletics' perennial holdouts, is reported to have enlisted again in the dissatisfied brigade.

Manager Connie Mack would not confirm the report. Last year Walberg didn't sign up until long after the training season had opened. George Earnshaw, another prominent pitcher is on his way from the Pacific coast to talk over his contract.

Lazzeri Joins Yankee Stars as 1933 Holdout

New York, Feb. 1 (U.P.).—Tony Lazzeri, second baseman, today added his name to the growing list of New York Yankee holdovers.

Falling into line with Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Ben Chapman and others, Tony announced from his home in Burlingame, Calif., that he will return to the boiler-making business, unless the club explains it was a clerical error in offering him a salary reduction.

Tony received a reduction last season also, but he had played poorly in 1931. However, his excellent fielding and hitting in 1932 contributed much to the Yanks' successful pennant campaign and their world series victory.

Other Infielders Sank to Low Level, But Not George.

THE dog days of 1915 were happy neither for the world nor the Washington baseball team. American shipping was being molested by relentless U-boats. Frank Holt, a young Cornell professor, shot J. P. Morgan when the billionaire refused to call off shipments of arms to the allies. Baseball was shunted far from the front pages, and one thing and another shunted Washington far from the high place it had held in 1912 and 1913.

The truth of the matter is that Washington's highly touted defense started to crack. Gandil, on first and Morgan, on second, began to slip and a rookie named Neff filled in for Morgan with sometimes disastrous results. The pitching staff remained practically the same, with Johnson once more carrying the burden of the work and Bert Gallia had taken the place of No. 2 pitcher away from Tom Hughes.

Johnson pitched in 47 games, won 27 and lost 13 and struck out 258 batters during the season. Young Jim Shaw was showing signs of improvement and Doc Ayers and Joe Engel both were starters. New York broke Washington's back early in July by taking all four games in a series in which Washington's fate was placed and the Nationals never recovered. Conspicuous in the playing of the Yankees was a rookie shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh.

McBride and Milan Stood Out.

But if Washington was crumbling here and there—in two positions it remained as firm as the Monument's corner stone. George McBride again stood near the cream of the shortstops and Clyde Milan improved in both hitting and fielding. Milan, in fact, was the only man on the team to bat more than .300 for the season and once again showed his tremendous speed and zeal by his daring baseballing, one of the high marks of which was his noted steal home in the eleventh inning to win a 1-0 game for Washington over Cleveland on July 21.

While Washington sank lower and lower in the American League, and eventually finished sixth, McBride, Milan and Johnson stood out like searchlights in a wine cellar.

McBride was the fielding sensation of the league, so far as local fans were concerned. Certainly nobody could touch him when it came to taking pegs to second and putting the ball on the runner. He had the happy faculty of never having to clip a peg off short and hurl it back to the catcher to get the runner going home.

McBride dominated second base. He was all over Morgan, LaPorte and Neff, taking their territory in genial good-natured style that never for a moment was for the benefit of the grandstands. When the infield collapsed around him he stood firm, still among the great infielders of his day.

He can not be overlooked for consideration on any all-star team during Clark Griffith's 20 years on managerial and ownership duties in Washington.

Bozeman Wins to Stay In Three-Cushion Race

Chicago, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Jay Bozeman, of Vallejo, Calif., stuck in the running for the world's three-cushion billiard championship tonight by defeating Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, 50 to 30, in 28 fast innings. Bozeman will meet Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, the tournament leader, tomorrow night, but must win that match to keep in the race.

In defeating Kieckhefer, the 1932 champion, Bozeman set a best game record and the high run for the current championship tonight. He started off with runs of five and seven, clicked off 13 points, oddly enough, in the thirteenth inning and won easily.

Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, pushed Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, out of a tie for fifth place money this afternoon by defeating the former titleholder, 50 to 49, in 58 exciting innings.

Fields and Corbett Post Forfeit Money

San Francisco, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—With considerable flourish and much picture taking, forfeit money for the Jackie Fields-Young Corbett ten-round welterweight title fight here February 22 was posted today. The action paved the way for the first important championship battle in San Francisco since boxing was legalized in the State in 1925.

Fields already is in training in Southern California.

Hilltop Rally In 2nd Half Is Futile

Invaders Gain Tap to Lead From Start in Fast Contest.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S feverish basket ball team went to the Temple last night, seeking not only its first victory in the Intercollegiate Basket Ball League, but its first victory in nearly a month. The supplication was rudely turned down by the Temple outfit by the cruel margin of 44-41, while 1,000 pious Georgetown rooters rung their hands at the vicissitudes of fate.

Often so close to the flying Temple team, that a long-limbed fellow like Eddie Hargaden could have reached out and bashed the last Templeite with a scimitar, Georgetown never quite reached even terms with the victors, although three times separated from that exalted position by three lone points.

A distinct underdog at the start of the battle, in view of the fact that Temple had been potent enough last Saturday night to trim St. John's of Brooklyn, Georgetown put up a terrific battle and but for failure on one or two occasions to play the kind of basket ball that was taught them by Coach Fred Mesmer, might have turned in a splendid upset to record in Georgetown's fading athletic annals.

Georgetown Stages Rally.

Coming along at express train speed in the last two minutes of the game, the fighting Hilltop five, revamped by the sudden entrance of Corless and Parcells, fought up from 31-41 to 39-43, with a wild splurge of shooting, only to cool the works off by calling a time out, when it seemed that nothing could stop them. It was all that Temple needed to catch its breath, and the Scarlet coasted into victory.

Temple uncovered as smooth an outfit as has been seen here this year. Working beautiful block plays, unlike any seen here this year, Temple used only five men during the fray, and all of them could throw 'em in from any angle they chose. The dribblers were always protected with a sort of convoy, and whenever a Georgetown man dove for the ball carrier, he passed neatly to his guardian angel and promptly blocked out the incoming Hoya. The new ball carried went around the former ball carrier and broke into the clear.

Len Gudd was one of the dominant factors in Temple's win. He must have got 95 per cent of the tap-offs, and if he can catch footballs as well as basket balls, Pop Warner will have nothing to worry about next year when he tries to pick a left end for the Temple grid squad.

Rosan Sinks 6 of 7 Foul Shots.

Red Rosen, second leading scorer in the conference, showed a spectacular foul shooting yen, sinking 6 out of 7 and sharing scoring honors with Charley Frieberg.

In the final summation foul shooting was the diciding factor. Both teams scored 18 field goals. It was Temple 8 out of 11 as against Georgetown's 5 out of 10 fouls that spelled victory.

For Georgetown, Ed Hargaden played as masterful a floor game as Tech has ever seen. Tom Carolan, rough and ready, slung in 8 much needed points and the erratic Capt. Crowley, played more smoothly than at any time this season, and took high scoring honors by a solitary point. Vernon Murphy's scoring eye was keen,

ALGERIA IMPRESSIVE WINNER OF FEATURE AT HIALEAH PARK

Zorana Second, Moon Shy Third; Meade Earns Double.

The daughter of John P. Grier, which formerly raced for Joseph E. Widener in New York, reached the judges a length and a half clear of Zorana. The latter nosed Moon Shy out of the place.

Algeria paid $10.50 for a $2 ticket and her time was 1:12 1-5. The winner gave Jockey Don Meade his second victory in a row.

Moon Shy Victim of Crowding.

There was considerable crowding in the race with Moon Shy one of the chief victims. The Whitney miss was in trouble most of the trip and might have won with better racing luck. There was a lot of speed in the race, with Memories Dear, Betty Derr and Algeria showing the way to the head of the stretch. There Algeria responded willingly to Meade's call and, forging to the front, held her advantage gamely to the end. Zorana held on better than usual and just lasted to beat Moon Shy.

Broad Meadows, well ridden by the veteran Jimmy Smith, gave owner Bradley a double when he accounted for the fifth race over the mile distance. The son of Black Servant—Bit of White had the most left for a driving finish, beating I Pass by a length with Barcelona Pete, the favorite, losing the place by half a length. Broad Meadows was rated third behind the pacemaker Barcelona Pete and I Pass to the stretch. Then the Bradley horse wore down his rivals in a long, bitter drive to the finish line. The winner paid $7.90.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

MIAMI, FEBRUARY 1.

DEAR AL:

What a start! Pernickety, Big Dipper and Sea Fox stepped right down the alley like trained pigs and each had the Bennings stamp of approval. From then on it was tough going, although I was represented in the pay on several occasions. I wish we would get a good dose of mud here. I have a few slop runners that I'd like to pass along. I've bought Mike some jig-saw puzzles to take care of that wondering brain of his. If he doesn't show some real thinking ability in the next few days, I'm going to slip him home and maybe they'll give him a tryout over at St. Elizabeth's. He pulled up with another of his 10-to-1 shot specials today and it turned out to be Sea Fox at 80 cents on the dollar. BILL.

FIRST RACE—WORTHINGTON is in top shape at present and gets my call in this sprint. IRENE'S BOB and VISHNU appear to have the edge on the others. I expect a tight fit at the finish. An off track would move CAMP BOSS on top of the heap.

SECOND RACE—I prefer to take MACADAM on the form shown rather than HIGH GLEE on the say of the clockers. You can use your own judgment. MISS MOUSE looks third best in the field.

THIRD RACE—I'm going to try to upset them here with EVERFAIR. This youngster seems headed for the big things I predicted last fall. Gets in with only 99 pounds, the same weight as carried by TREMENDOUS. They may shoot with DEVOUT in this. Should be third.

FOURTH RACE—MOVE FASTER showed a lot of promise last season and is in slick hands. This selection has all the earmarks of a shot at the moon, but don't say I didn't warn you. RAPSCALLION showed an even effort the other day. JUBILATE for the show.

FIFTH RACE—VILLAGE VAMP can certainly pick them up at the stretch turn when the dough is riding. I believe that will be the case today. FOXIANA'S last was a beaut. MISS CORRINE should be no worse than third. In the mud, bet SUPERCHARGE on the nose.

SIXTH RACE—POTENTATE has something of a soft spot here and should make the most of the opportunity offered. PRIMEVAL and DANCING BOY look like possible troublemakers.

SEVENTH RACE—DRASTIC DELIGHT gets another chance. May have needed that last to warm up those ailing legs. GABBO should do the pressing. OATEN won't draw the rider that I like.

Hitting the Headpin

THE boys were smashing up the pins like nobody's business out Takoma way last night in the Takoma Business Men's League. Swann battered down 168 pins for the season's game in the league, while Colorado Service Station's 630 was the second high game team total of the year, being 10 short of the best figure recorded. Viers, with a 401 set, showed the way to rival bowlers.

Occidental and Georgetown staged a hot battle in the Men's District League at Georgetown, the former taking the odd game. Maxie Rosenberg, of the Restauranters, had a 160, while Dutch Newman, a teammate, rolled a set of 395, just one less than that credited to Jack Talbert of the home team.

Carroll Daly starred at Convention Hall in another match in this loop, with 143 and 372, in which Convention Hall bowed to Lucky Strike in the odd game. Columbia cleaned up for Petworth in another game rolled on the Columbia drives.

A difference of one pin gave Farnam's Bowling Shoes a two-out-of-three edge over the leading King's Palace team in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. This decided the second game, 613 to 612. Phillips, of the losers, had high set of 380.

Tony Santini and his Marquette team filled the hero roles at Convention Hall in the K. of C. League. The Italian rolled 162 and 387 to top all rivals, while Marquette's team figures of 809 and 1,757 stood out like a sore thumb.

Morris Plan Bank pinmen caused considerable excitement on the Arcadia drives last night when they downed W. B. Hibbs & Co., in two of three games in the Bankers League. The latter are fighting for the crown with the Morris outfit down in the cellar. Grimes took individual honors in the league, having high game of 147 and high set of 382. He hails from American Security & Trust No. 1.

Federal American had high team total, 601, while American Security and Trust No. 2 knocked down 1642 bottles for high set.

Long and the Little Potatoes dragged down the bulk of the honors in the Dynamite League at Arcadia. Long had high figures of 162 and 390 among individuals, while his Little Potato team turned in 556, high for the night. The Wrecking Crew blasted a 1590, which stood up as high team set.

The Lions roared loudly at the Civic Club matches at Arcadia, their 560 game and 1,579 topping the night's team efforts. Bishop, of Kiwanis, and Kline, of Optimists, showed the way to all comers with marks of 136 and 359.

The leading King Pin teams of the Ladies' District League dropped two of three to Columbia at Lucky Strike last night, both teams boasting set totals of better than 1,600. Catherine Quigley was the heroine with a high set of 349. In other matches, Elsie Fisher, with 131 and 347, led the champion Rendezvous to a clean sweep over Arcadia, while Recreation, Lucky Strike and Convention Hall took the odd games from Myer Davis, Georgetown and Petworth, respectively.

A new season's high-set record for the Electrical League was made at Convention Hall last night when the Central Armature team toppled over 1,710 pins. It also turned in high team game for the night, with 575. Moyer's 144 and Brown's 377 top the individuals.

Hyattsville High Five Trounced by Gonzaga

Gonzaga High scored an easy victory over Hyattsville High yesterday on the basket ball court of the Hyattsville Armory by a score of 29-12. The locals led at every turn, holding a slim 6-5 lead at the quarter and a 15-7 advantage at the half.

With the whole Gonzaga Team joining in the scoring, the Purple easily pulled away in the second half.

Washington Cardinals Bow to Marines, 43-42

The Quantico Marines scored a thrilling victory last night, with the Washington Cardinals a 43-42 victim. The game was played at the Laurel gymnasium before a capacity crowd. The Cardinals led by 22-15 at the half, but were unable to match the stellar second-half play of the Devil Dogs. Ferrall led the Marine attack with 15 points. Essex was outstanding for the Cards.

THREE EXTRA PERIODS IN CONTEST

Bethesda Lights Win in Season's Record Game, 34-28.

THREE extra periods were necessary for the Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Western High lightweight fives to reach a decision yesterday in a basket ball battle at Bethesda's gym in one of the city's outstanding games of the season. Bethesda finally won the game by a 34-28 margin.

At the end of the regulation time the score was 20-20, then the team battled 5 minutes with the score 24-24. Another period brought a basket for each team and the score was 26-26. In the following period, Shorty Musgrove broke loose for three field goals which decided the issue.

The lightweights stole the show from the varsity clash of the two schools, which resulted in a 41-17 victory for Bethesda-Chevy Chase. Altheus and Guckeyson led the attack for the winners.

McBRIDE SHORTSTOP STAR IN 1915 RACE

The days of Peckinpaugh and Cronin were yet to come. Roger was a rookie with New York, Joe a freckled sandlotter, 10 years old, playing on the hills of San Francisco. McBride's part in resurrecting the sorry hopes of Washington fandom can not be underestimated. He was the hub of one of the finest infields of its day.

The very words 1915 brings back waves of nostalgia to the oldsters of Washington. Vice President Marshall had uttered a casual statement which will live longer than perhaps even his memory: "What this country needs is a good 5-cent cigar." Marshall presided at George McBride day. Coca-Cola bottles weren't pinch-waisted. Connie Mack's celebrated 1912-1914 team was scattered all over the league. Philadelphia was in last place and Boston's old time Red Sox won the world series, beating the Phillies 4 to 1 in games.

The 1915 batting order read: Moeller, right field; Foster, third base; Shanks, left field; Milan, center field; Gandil, first base; Neff, LaPort or Morgan, second base; Henry or Ainsmith, catcher; McBride, short stop, and the pitchers (Johnson, Gallia, Boehling, Ayers and Engel).

LABARBA TO RETURN TO COLLEGE

Triumph of Watson Causes Decision of Coast Star.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Because of his inability to whip Seaman Tom Watson, British featherweight champion, Fidel Labarba has decided to go back to Stanford University to complete his college education.

Labarba retired while still flyweight champion, in 1927, to enroll at Stanford. He completed his freshman year work with fine marks. But the era of high purses drew him back to the fight game.

He called his old manager, George Blake, to the Los Angeles A. C. one afternoon to watch him spar a few rounds.

"How do I look?" he asked Blake after the workout.

"As good as ever," said Blake.

"That's what I wanted to know," Labarba said, "because we're going back to work again."

Labarba sought the bantamweight championship, and later the featherweight title, now held by Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, who is finding difficulty convincing immigration authorities he should be allowed to return here from Havana. Twice Chocolate has beaten Labarba in title matches.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE proposed merging of the present Radio and Power Commissions into a Federal Communications and Power Commission, as provided in a bill just introduced in the House, has started lively conjecture as to how many commissioners may lose out and who, on the present Federal Radio Commission, would represent radio on the new commission.

The author of the bill which would create the new commission is Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, who declares he has discussed the matter with President-elect Roosevelt and that the latter has given it his hearty support. Chairman Rayburn said he doubted if the bill could be passed this session, but if not, he would reintroduce it at the next session of Congress, at which time he felt confident it would become a law.

The bill provides for five commissioners at $10,000 annual salary each to replace the five members of the present Federal Radio Commission and the five members of the present Power Commission. Each of the ten now receives $10,000 annually.

"We can cut the expenses in half with the new commission," representative Rayburn observed.

IT would seem, insofar as communications are concerned, the jurisdiction of the new commission would naturally fall into four divisions—radio, telegraph, telephone and cable. Therefore, if communications dominated, and each of its branches was placed upon an equal basis, one commissioner would represent radio, another telegraph, a third telephone and a fourth, cable.

This would leave a fifth commissioner to represent power. However, it might well be imagined that two commissioners would be assigned to power representation and three to communications, or vice versa, depending upon the relative importance of communications and power in the eyes of President-elect Roosevelt.

It would seem reasonable to suppose that at least one man would be appointed to the commission especially for his radio qualifications. Who he might be raises another question. The new bill says that not more than three members of the new commission shall be from one party. Of course three of the members will be Democrats, but if one or more members are appointed to the commission for their radio qualifications, will these appointees be Democrats or Republicans?

If a single Democratic appointee is to be made to represent radio, a good guess as to a survivor from the present Federal Radio Commission would be Commissioner E. O. Sykes, of Mississippi. Judge Sykes is the only member of the original Radio Commission appointed by former President Coolidge. Through his long service with the commission, he would appear to have every qualification for the position.

RICHARD WAGNER'S "Ring des Nibelungen" continues for the radio audience with "Die Walkure," the second of the music-dramas, which will be broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House in part this afternoon.

The last half of "Die Walkure," from the middle of the second act to the end of the opera, will be heard over WRC at 3:15 p. m., with Frida Leider and Maria Olazewska, noted German Wagnerian artists, formerly with the Chicago Civic Opera, singing leading roles.

"Die Walkure" continues the legend of the "Ring," which was begun for listeners with the broadcast of "Das Rheingold."

Artur Bodansky will conduct and the opera will be sung in German with the following cast:

Siegmund, Lauritz Melchior, tenor; Hunding, Siegfried Tappolet, basso; Wotan, Friedrich Schoor, barytone; Sieglinde, Grete Stuckgold, soprano; Bruennhilde, Frida Leider, soprano; Fricka, Maria Olszewska, contralto; Helmwige, Dorothee Manski, soprano; Gerhilde, Phradie Wells, soprano; Ortlinde, Margaret Halstead, soprano; Rosswelsse, Ina Bourskaya, contralto; Grimgerde, Philine Falco, soprano; Waltraute, Doris Doe, contralto; Siegrune, Elda Vettori, soprano; Schwertleite, Faina Petrova, contralto.

FORCED laughter on the radio seems to be a growing evil. Whenever a comedian is on, the producers seem to feel that it is necessary for some one to begin to titter before the comedian opens his mouth, and regardless of whether or not what he says is really funny, to guffaw when he has finished.

There is doubtless much merit in allowing a studio audience to be heard in order to give a radio production life and make it sound natural, but of late the laughter and applause on a number of network offerings has assumed the proportions of a French grand opera "claque," where persons are hired to attend a performance for the sole purpose of applauding at each given signal.

What seemed to be forced laughter was decidedly noticeable in the appearance of Irvin Cobb with Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit. Although Cobb talked too much about himself, his stories were excellent. Miss Sanderson and Crumit never sang to better advantage than in their song "Right You Are, Brother Ezra, Right You Are." It wasn't necessary then to spoil the performance with a lot of forced laughter and self-applauding personal references.

The romantic story of Francois Villon's day as King of France will be unfolded to the accompaniment of Rudolph Friml's music, when the Aborn Opera Co. presents "The Vagabond King" in the Five Star Theater performance (WJSV, 10 p. m.).

FRED ASTAIRE, dancing star of the current Broadway success, "Gay Divorce," and the veteran comedy team of Weber and Fields will head the variety bill Rudy Vallee has assembled for his hour tonight over WRC at 8 o'clock.

Janet Beecher and Claude Rains, in a scene from the RKO talking-picture version of "Bill of Divorcement;" William Demarest, comedian from Earl Carroll's recent "Vanities," and his vaudeville partner, Colette, and another artist, to be selected, will complete the program, which also will feature Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees Orchestra.

A diversified program designed to cheer and fit the moods of shut-ins throughout the country will be played by the United States Marine Band, with Capt. Taylor Branson directing, this morning (WRC, 11:30 o'clock).

Wilbur Evans, barytone, will be heard again with the stars of Capt. Henry's Maxwell House Showboat troupe during the broadcast over WRC at 9 o'clock tonight.

TO answer the automatic question, "Where is the fire?" that arises in every one's mind when he hears the siren of speeding fire trucks WLBF, Kansas City, Kans., has inaugurated a policy of reporting the location of every fire within a few seconds after the alarm is received.

"The idea occurred to Herb Hollister, manager of WLBF, and was indorsed by Olander Lynd, Kansas City fire chief," Broadcasting Magazine sets forth. "A private telephone line was forthwith installed to link the fire headquarters and WLBF studios."

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: I have a problem. My daughter, 17 years of age, has, so she says, fallen in love with her chemistry professor, a man much her senior, married, with a family of his own. I am in a dilemma to know just what to do. Please tell me.

Answer: You must handle this with a firm hand tempered with kindness and, of course, understanding. It is likely but a passing infatuation, and what your daughter says is magnified in her eyes. It may be just hero worship and this should not be offended by undue haste on your part. A love of a teacher is a good thing and reflects favorably. If there is a secret relationship between them, then your duty is plain but from the tone of your letter and the little I gather of your girl's character I am inclined to think it is a passing fancy and something which in a few years she will laugh at.

A little confidential chat with your daughter, showing her the beauty of love, and unfolding to her the mysteries and the mystic wonder of it all may help her to better appreciate what is in store for a girl who places fine womanhood above the cheap sordidness of life.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Army and Navy Disagree On Hawaii Attack Result

Honolulu, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The American scouting fleet rested today preparatory to resumption of maneuvers Monday when the main phase of 1933 activities begins with an attack upon the western mainland.

Without umpires to decide who won, there was some expression of the Navy air squadron's satisfaction over their "attack" yesterday upon Pearl Harbor fortifications. Army circles, however, replied their theory was just as good—that the Army had turned back the Navy in a dogfight before its flyers reached the island, and anyway antiaircraft guns rendered attackers ineffective.

MARYLAND SENATE NEAR PENSION VOTE

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—A plan to save $1,000,000 a year by abolishing the Maryland teachers' pension system was maturing in the Senate today as adherents flocked to the general sales tax proposed in lieu of the luxury tax to raise added revenues.

The bill to abolish the teachers' retirement system is being drafted, but will not be introduced until it has been discussed with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, it was learned. It would provide that money contributed by the teachers still at work would be returned to them, with accrued interest. Funds already contributed by the State would be used to continue pensions of teachers who have retired since the plan was inaugurated.

In the Senate finance committee, where the sales tax was broached Tuesday, sentiment is rapidly crystallizing in favor of this general levy, it was reported. Gov. Ritchie said yesterday that this tax, as well as the suggested luxury tax, was still under consideration, and a recommendation to the Legislature was promised within a few days.

Approval of the sales tax will come as welcome news to the tobacco growers of southern Maryland, who were threatened with lower crop prices if the proposed luxury tax of 20 per cent were imposed on tobacco products. The luxury tax would produce enough revenue for the original plan of relief for Baltimore City, but not enough for the revised plan. The two factors account for the general support afforded the alternate sales tax.

Young Democrats Assured of Repeal

Roosevelt Will Doom Dry Law, House Officer Tells Club.

"Early if not immediate repeal of the eighteenth amendment" will be secured by President-elect Roosevelt after his inauguration, Kenneth Romney, sergeant at arms of the House, told members of the Young Democrats last night.

He declared that Mr. Roosevelt will enter the White House with a definite program of legislation to accomplish the "new deal," and that the Democrats in Congress must look for and accept his leadership.

The Young Democrats met at the clubhouse of the National Woman's Democratic Club. Their meeting was devoted to the hearing of committee reports. President Victor Russell presided.

$114 Is Stolen from Home.

Walter R. Thornhill, 654 Girard street northwest, reported yesterday that a burglar, apparently using a duplicate key, entered his home and rifled his strong box of $114 in cash and valuable papers.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

PARTICIPATING in sports that require, in most cases, the strenuous use of both legs, as well as the arms, Fred Lindsay outshone his competitors despite the fact that he was handicapped by the loss of his right leg. This leg was amputated near the hip.

Lindsay was a letter man on the Southwestern University swimming team in 1929 and 1930. He took part in eight major intercollegiate swimming events, winning five of them. His time for the 50-yard dash was 25.2 seconds. Lindsay also swam a mile in 21 minutes 15 seconds, and 5 miles in 2 hours 24 minutes. He is a senior member of the Red Cross Life Saving Corps, having passed the severe tests in 1929 in Hollywood.

He also finds time for other sports and shoots a pretty good game of golf.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WILL OF A TECHNOCRAT.

BEING of sound mind but declining energy, I hereby declare this to be my last will and testament:

I. I give and bequeath to my wife, Geraldine, 50 per cent of all my energy certificates left by me, together with such "ergs," "joules," &c., of which I may be possessed.

I also bequeath to my wife any property not already taken by the sheriff or Government, and the many canes, umbrella handles and other curious objects of art whittled by me during my many leisure hours possible under the five-hour day.

* * * *

II. To my son, Gregory, I bequeath such clothes and personal effects as shall not be seizable by the Bureau of Technocracy, all energy meters used by me and the antique painting entitled, "Portrait of a Bank," as a reminder of the era when such institutions existed and when people were paid in gold and allowed to save against an old age.

I also leave to him my three trunks full of paper money, now of no value whatever except as heirlooms, but worth about $350,000 B. T. (before technocracy).

* * * *

III. To my daughter, Minna, I leave my wallet, once a necessity in American life, and now of some slight value as a relic of bygone customs. It is my wish that my daughter refrain from marrying until she shall meet a man whose energy is such that the units of same shall be exchangeable for a reasonable supply of groceries each week.

IV. To Thaddeus Quonkett, an old friend, I bequeath my silver-plated piccolo. It has been very useful to me under technocracy in whiling away the long hours of unemployment (leisure) and will, I hope, be of much help to him. I also give him my enamel basin and collection of clay pipes used in blowing bubbles on the enforced eight weeks' vacation each year. As anybody who has had to stand an eight weeks' vacation knows a good bubble blowing equipment is of great comfort.

V. I request that the executor of this estate, after everything is settled up, take the bushel of tomatoes given me in exchange for the 14 "joules" paid me for my last week's work, go to the roof of technocracy headquarters and drop them one by one on the heads of the officials as they leave the building for their five-hour lunch. (Signed). ——

WHAT!

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW has been away from England for several months and, believe it or not, the king hasn't had to send him a single wire for instructions.

Do you remember away back when time payments seemed to be a solution to the debt problem?

THE NEW ORDER.

"Well," remarked Elmer Twitchell today, "the Democratic victory has already given the United States the jig-saw puzzle craze and technocracy."

"Savings Banks Will Cut Interest Rates."—headline. Okay, with us. In fact, if we could get some money to put in a bank we would pay the bank a commission on it.

Prof. Piccard says you could fly by rocket to Mars now but that there would be no way to return. Make it a guarantee and we'll take a ticket.

With the theaters doing such poor business, even at reduced rates, we understand the New York speculators have dropped the usual advance and are only asking a cup of coffee.

Grand Jury Indicts Two In Watchman's Slaying

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Joe Goodman and George M. Pitmond, both colored, on a charge of first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of a colored night watchman at the feed store of Dickey Bros., on Benning road northeast, January 22. Pitmond is in jail, but Goodman has not been apprehended.

A railroad detective arrested Pitmond for investigation several hours before the slaying was known. A subsequent investigation connected Pitmond with the murder, and he made a statement. The watchman was beaten to death with a heavy iron bar.

$500 in Furs Stolen.

Five silver fox furs, valued at $100 each, were stolen early yesterday from the fur shop of Benjamin S. Francke, 1328 G street, by a burglar who hurled a stone through the plate glass window. The furs were on display.

Indictment

On Mann Act Charge Is Faced by Alleged Betrayer of Girl.

After hearing only one witness, Dorothy Pollard, of Roanoke, Va., the District grand jury yesterday indicted Homer B. Shropshire, 20 years old, on a charge of violation of the Mann act. Miss Pollard, who is being held in the House of Detention as a witness against Shropshire, was taken before the grand jury by Wilbert McInerney, assistant United States attorney.

Shortly after she entered the jury room she was seen leaving, her testimony having taken only a few minutes. Shropshire was arrested on the complaint of Miss Pollard to two policemen. An investigation is being made by police and agents of the Department of Justice in connection with other affairs of Shropshire, who also hails from Roanoke, Va.

Police learned yesterday that Shropshire's accuser had evidently attempted to shield her own identity by giving the name of a girl in Roanoke. They immediately started an inquiry after learning that Miss Dorothy J. Pollard had denied any connection with the case.

At the Women's Bureau, where the girl is being held incommunicado, it was reported last night that she had virtually admitted the attempted deception. Reports from Roanoke indicate the girl's real name was probably Della Louise Wills.

MRS. VAN WINKLE'S MEMORY IS HONORED AT PUBLIC MEETING

Mrs. Mary Norton Points to Pioneering in Police and Social Work.

Hailing the establishment of the Women's Bureau as the crowning achievement of the late Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle's life work, Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, stated last night that the preventive work of this bureau was especially valuable as "most of our present-day law violators are first offenders."

Speaking at the memorial mass meeting for Mrs. Van Winkle at the Luther Memorial Church, Mrs. Norton pointed out that many of the lawbreakers are young girls and are not beyond redemption. A kindly, understanding hand, she said, could aid the transgressors to become respectable citizens.

Mrs. Van Winkle did more than direct the operations of the Women's Bureau in this city, the member of Congress from New Jersey pointed out. "She mothered it, nourished it, fought for its existence, and dying left it behind as a splendid heritage."

Phases of Civic Activity.

Representatives of all phases of civic activity brought testimony of the loss they occasioned in the death of Mrs. Van Winkle. Her numerous activities in behalf of social reform was attested to by messages of regret from workers in other countries who felt a great loss in her departure.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Minar, who headed a committee of the Soroptimist Club, which arranged the memorial meeting, read a number of the messages.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, lauded the work of Mrs. Van Winkle in establishing and directing the Women's Bureau. He described the cooperation of the bureau with the work of the Police Department.

Leader in Police Work.

Louis P. Brownlow, police commissioner of the District when the Women's Bureau was established, stated that through the efforts of its first director Washington became a leader in the field of women's police work.

Police departments in America, he asserted, suffer from an indiscriminating discrimination by the people and that it was only through the work of such pioneers as Mrs. Van Winkle that the true merits of these departments were understood.

He stated that we limit the definition of police work too narrowly and that it should be modified to include the prevention of delinquency and disorder.

Spirit of a Pioneer.

Miss Pearl McCall, assistant United States attorney, stated that Mrs. Van Winkle was imbued with the spirit of a pioneer and that it was through her efforts in investigating hotels, movies, dance halls and general conditions that this city has attained a reputation for its cleanliness and morality.

She stated that the late police executive "believed that though a woman transgressed the law of both God and man, she was not lost to reform."

Many others offered their personal recollections and praise of the work of Mrs. Van Winkle. Members of the Soroptimist Club arranging the meeting were: Mrs. Minar, Miss Caroline Stephens, Miss Helena B. Reed, Miss McCall, Miss Catherine Pike, Miss Grace Goodpasture, Mrs. Harriet H. Locher, Mrs. Laura Walker and Mrs. Nell Hysong.

Great Eastern Stages Will Operate From New Terminal.

The Great Eastern Stages announces, effective immediately, the opening of its new bus terminal in the Annapolis Hotel Building. The terminal has an off-the-street loading platform, waiting rooms and lounge, together with ticket office and travel bureau.

The present ticket office at 1349 E street northwest of the company is to be maintained, but its principal office will be at the terminal.

Great Eastern Stages operates buses between Washington, Richmond, Norfolk, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and St. Louis.

Police Freed on Weapon Charge.

Two policemen were exonerated on charges of assaulting Dr. George W. Beasley, 241 Virginia avenue southeast, with a dangerous weapon when the District grand jury yesterday refused to indict them. The policemen were accused of pointing a weapon at Dr. Beasley, who is a pharmacist.

BOOP-BOOP-A-DOOP GIRL WEDS

Helen Kane, headlining the Earle Theater stage bill this week, was married to Max Hoffman, actor and son of the noted theatrical producer and Gertrude Hoffman, famous dancer, by Judge Robert E. Mattingly in his chambers at Municipal Court yesterday. The bridegroom, who gave his age as 31 and address as Freeport, N. Y., has been divorced twice. Miss Kane gave her age as 23 and her address as New York City.

NEW BILL PLANNED TO LEASE AIRPORT

McMillan Measure Is Dead; Use of D. C. Funds Basis of Next Proposal.

An unfavorable report on the McMillan bill for leasing Washington-Hoover Field as a municipal airport was ordered yesterday by the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, following extensive hearings.

Representative McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, author of the measure, indicated he will sponsor another bill, which would give the District Commissioners or private capital the right to take over a local airport site that embraces Government territory.

The bill was disapproved by the committee in executive session, after Representative Lanham (Democrat), Texas, chairman, had favored expenditure of District funds, rather than Federal money, to provide airport facilities.

He recommended the measure be redrafted to allow the District Commissioners to handle the matter, employing District funds. He said he favored operation of the airport by the Office of Public Buildings and Public Grounds.

The action followed testimony that Washington Airport's option on Hoover field will expire March 4, leaving half of the available airport area subject to sale for industrial purposes. Witnesses urged emergency action by Congress to save the port. This testimony was presented by Samuel Solomon, vice president of Washington-Hoover Airport.

Harry Fellowes, chairman of the Arlington County board, opposed Federal purchase of the property, because it would result in a loss in county taxes. Edwin S. Hege, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, favored the Gravelly Point area.

Death Penalty Verdict Reported in 2 Minutes

Two minutes after a jury in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat had been given the case of Ernest H. Bolden, colored, who was charged with murdering his wife, the members filed into the courtroom with a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

The finding of the jury carries with it an automatic death penalty. Bolden was charged with having shot his wife three times at his home, 1218 Thirty-seventh street northwest, last summer. The prosecution was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein.

Woman Is Appointed Deputy Deed Recorder

Miss Margaret M. Killeen, 2854 Connecticut avenue, was appointed deputy recorder of deeds of the District yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Fisher.

Miss Killeen, a clerk of the Recorder of Deeds' office for the last 20 years, is the first woman to fill the deputy post.

AUTO DEALERS SAY SALES FUTURE GOOD

Washington Show Reaction Is Reported Better Than General Average.

Washington motor car dealers continued to add to their prospect lists as the thirteenth annual automobile show at the Auditorium passed the halfway mark last night.

In respect to their willingness to admit a desire to buy new cars and their need for them, auto showgoers in the National Capital differ from those in other cities where similar displays have been held this year. According to dealer-exhibitors in the local event, an outstanding phenomenon of auto shows generally in 1933 has been the relative shortness of prospect lists in comparison with previous years. Its failure to manifest itself in the local show is one of the most heartening signs of improved business that exhibitors have encountered, according to R. J. Murphy, show manager.

Unfavorable weather yesterday and last night resulted in a slight drop in attendance at the show as compared with the mark established Tuesday. Despite this decline, however, the attendance is running approximately even with the record set in 1932.

With anything resembling good weather during the remaining four days of the display, show officials are confident that attendance will exceed that of 1932. Their prediction is based upon the increased attractiveness and radical "newness" of the cars on display and the reduced admission fee.

Four cars remain for fortunate showgoers. Those who already have been awarded new models, one of which is awarded daily, are: Mrs. Alice B. Adams, 3736 Connecticut tvenue; R. V. Pitt, 4320 Argyle terrace northwest; E. F. Mueller, 3914 Huntington street northwest.

Parley on Taxes Opens Tomorrow

Legislators From Many States Will Study Dual Levies.

A distinguished group of State executives and others designated to represent their respective Commonwealths will assemble in Washington tomorrow for the first interstate conference of legislators.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider problems of conflicting taxation.

Those participating will include governors, lieutenant governors, speakers, fiscal officials, members of tax commissions, economists and others named by State legislatures to represent them in the deliberations.

Police Private Robbed Of $66 and His Shield

While he was asleep yesterday morning a burglar entered the bedroom of Police Private Fred L. Stauffer, 518 Ninth street northeast, and stole his purse containing $66 and valuable papers, and also his police badge.

Stauffer is attached to the Eighth Precinct.

MRS. NORTON AGAIN CHARGES HOSPITAL LAX IN 'DRUNK' CASE

Answers Garfield Defense of Houghton Treatment; $1,650 Hunted.

Charges that Eugene Houghton, now being treated at Gallinger Hospital for a fractured skull, was diagnosed as "drunk" by a Garfield Hospital interne, were reiterated yesterday by Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, following denial by Dr. Francis J. Eisenman, superintendent of the hospital.

A letter from Dr. Eisenman, made public by Mrs. Norton yesterday, said no sign of liquor was recorded "or any report made by interne on duty that patient was 'drunk.' "

Mrs. Norton issued the following statement:

"Mr. Houghton would not have been placed in the south building of Gallinger Hospital with the psychopathic cases—where all drunken cases are cared for—unless the case was diagnosed as such by Garfield Hospital attendants. It is not for the Police Department to diagnose a case; it rests solely with the medical authorities at the hospital, and they followed the instructions given them when the patrol arrived."

Dr. Eisenman's Letter.

Dr. Eisenman's letter recited the history of Mr. Houghton's treatment at the hospital, after he was injured in an automobile accident at Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest January 25.

"It being necessary to consider both the interests of Mr. Houghton and all the other patients, for whom we were already obligated, and not having isolation rooms for the care of violent and noisy patients, transfer to Gallinger Hospital was considered best under all circumstances. Before the transfer was made, Gallinger Hospital was notified, given a complete history of the case and that he would require hospitalization.

"The information contained in reports in the press was not obtained from this hospital.

Sewers Are Searched.

"We regret exceedingly that you feel as you do regarding the service we render the community. Garfield Hospital has been in operation for over 50 years and it has always been our aim and desire to render the best service possible. Our policy could not permit it to be otherwise."

Although Houghton had only 55 cents in his pockets when taken to the hospital, he declared he had $1,650 on his person when struck by the automobile. Police have started a search for the money. Yesterday the storm sewers at the corner where he was run down were searched on the belief that his wallet might have been brushed or washed from the street. They also plan to question everybody known to have been at the scene of the accident, and at the hospital. It was learned that the man always carried large sums of money on his person.

Negro Educational Economy Attacked

Miss Merritt and Caliver Deplore Results of Budget Cutting.

Retrenchment in Negro education, both in Washington and throughout the country, was deplored by two Negro educational authorities before the District Public School Association last night. The speakers were Miss E. F. G. Merritt, former supervising principal of elementary public schools in the District, and Dr. Ambrose Caliver, specialist in Negro education, United States Office of Education.

Miss Merritt charged that two Negro schools here are in a notorious crime and vice area. Efforts are being made, she said, to condemn the area and convert it into a playground. More than 7,000 elementary colored school children lack a playground or recreation center and have only one gymnasium, she said.

Dr. Caliver said that there are 1,000,000 Negro children out of school over the country. He warned against a possible return to the "deplorable conditions" before the World War. The association was entertained by the Armstrong High School Glee Club.

Ladies of Charity Make City-Wide Drive Plans

A city-wide campaign by the Ladies of Charity, to supplement the work of the parish conferences of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, was discussed last night at a meeting of the presidents of the conference in Carroll Hall.

The necessity for an enlargement of the work of the society was announced by George J. Cleary, president of the Particular Council. The increase, he said, is made necessary by the reduction of the appropriation to the Catholic charities by the Community Chest.

ALTERING MANSION INTO APARTMENTS BELMONT'S PLAN

Financier Asks for Rezoning to Allow Rebuilding of Famous Dwelling.

Perry Belmont, 81-year-old financier, statesman and social leader, appeared in person before the District Zoning Commission yesterday and asked for a rezoning to permit the transformation of the famous Belmont Mansion in New Hampshire avenue into an apartment house.

Declaring that he did not want to see the handsome structure, home of the Prince of Wales in 1924 while on a visit to Washington, stand as "a monument to the depression," Mr. Belmont explained that he wished to convert it into a half-dozen de luxe apartments for use of a restricted clientele without altering the building's distinctive architectural design.

Mr. Belmont said he could neither rent nor sell the spacious mansion at 1618 New Hampshire avenue and his project would provide temporary work for a few unemployed men.

Rock Creek Plan Fought.

Son of August Belmont and related to both the Commodore Perrys, Mr. Belmont was minister to Spain in 1888-89 and a representative in Congress from New York in 1881. He is a prominent clubman here and in New York City.

The commission considered in all 17 applications for rezoning permits. It will meet in executive session Monday to consider the requests after recommendations are made by its advisory council headed by Capt. Hugh Oram, director of inspection.

A storm of objections greeted a proposal to change the zoning of a small tract at Rock Creek Ford road and Thirty-second street, to permit the erection of a handsomely designed building to be occupied by stores.

Property owners over a considerable area thereabouts protested that the project would impair their investments and that is would mar the beauty of a portion of Rock Creek Park.

Repair Shop Amendment.

Loud protests also greeted a proposal to change from residential restricted to residential certain property on Connecticut avenue between Albemarle and Davenport streets. Because of the indefinite nature of the plans of Thomas J. Fisher & Co., acting as agents for the Chevy Chase Land Co., the commission suggested that the petition be withdrawn until the owners could explain their purpose.

The commission also considered an amendment to the code which would place automobile repair shops and public service garages in the same category as gasoline stations and so require the consent of 75 per cent of the property owners within 200 feet to locate in first commercial areas.

The hearing was the last for at least two of the District Commissioners, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, whose terms expire before the next session in June, and probably for Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, whose transfer to the Army War College has been rumored.

4 in Mechanics Bank Robbery Are Indicted

The District grand jury yesterday indicted four men on charges of robbery in connection with the theft of money from the Washington Mechanics Bank, 3608 Georgia avenue northwest, last year. Those indicted were Barney Neufield, James Foley, Joseph Flynn and Samuel Rubin.

All four are at present serving ten-year sentences in New York, following their conviction on charges of robbing a bank there. When they are released from jail there they will be brought here to face the charges.

Woman Wins $500 Suit In Dressing-Room Entry

Mrs. Rita Nickel, 832 Varnum street northwest, yesterday was awarded a $500 verdict against Gold's, Inc., women's wear store, because a dressing room she was using was invaded by a store employe while she was trying on a dress.

Mrs. Nickel was represented by attorneys Austin F. Canfield and Walter J. Casey.

Disappears

EVELYN DAVIS.

Evelyn Davis, 15-year-old McKinley High School student, has been missing since she left home for school early Tuesday. When she did not return home in the afternoon her mother, Mrs. E. M. Sparks, 233 S street northeast, became alarmed and called all her friends. None had seen her and it was learned she had not been at school.

The mother told police the girl did not have any money when she left, and she was unable to offer an definite reason for her disappearance. However, she said the girl was musical, enthusiastic about motion pictures and dancing, and had expressed a desire to go to Hollywood.

She is described as being about 5 feet 4 inches, weighing about 120 pounds, and wearing a fur coat and brown dress, but no hat.

PEPCO-P.U.C. HOPES OF ACCORD DARKEN

Failure of Electric Company to Make Prompt Reply Causes Pessimism.

Likelihood that the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s directors will accept conditions set forth by the Public Utilities Commission, in order to terminate litigation over a sliding scale to fix electric rates, appeared more remote late yesterday when S. R. Bowen, counsel for the company, informed Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, that no decision had been reached at a meeting yesterday.

Although Mr. Bowen said that he hoped to have a difinate reply today or tomorrow, failure of the directors to accept the plan at once indicated their reluctance to acknowledge the authority of the commission to fix rates without resort to the courts or to the power company.

The final draft of a plan to end litigation was agreed upon, according to Gen. Patrick, last Thursday afternoon after negotiations had been resumed following a break between the commission and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech. It was indicated that the proposal had the approval of Mr. Bowen, but he could not give a definate answer until he had conferred with other power company officials.

At first Mr. Bowen said he would obtain a reply Saturday, then he postponed it until Monday, and then until yesterday.

Effects of Sore Throat Fatal to Student Nurse

Melba Kelm, 23, a student nurse at Sibley Hospital, died early yesterday at the hospital, where for the past week she has been fighting an attack of general septicemia which developed from a sore throat.

Miss Kelm, whose home is in Meyersdale, Pa., was a two-year student at the hospital. She had been there since January 14. During the early part of her illness nine blood transfusions were given her by as many student nurses in the hospital in an effort to save her life. The body will be sent to Meyersdale for burial.

DISTRICT KIDNAP BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE FOR ACTION

Committee Also Approves Quarterly Tax Payment and Gas Merger.

The Thatcher bill, tightening local kidnaping laws, yesterday was ordered favorably reported to the House by the House District Committee.

Affirmative action was taken on four other measures, including a bill to permit quarterly payment of taxes on dwelling houses, and the Washington-Georgetown Gas Light Co. merger project.

The Thatcher bill already has passed the Senate, with an amendment eliminating the death penalty and making life imprisonment optional with the court.

Long in House.

It has been pending in the House since the disappearance of the Lindbergh baby awakened interest in the present lax kidnaping laws. The committee decided to offer an amendment protecting the interests of a mother who might kidnap her own child.

The Home Owners Protective Enterprise measure, to permit installment payment of taxes on dwellings occupied by their owners, was favorably reported after Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride said he believed more taxes could be collected under the legislation.

Gas Merger Bill.

The gas merger bill was reported without the Howell amendment, eliminating "going concern" from valuation of the companies' properties.

Other measures approved included a bill requiring six months' notice of action where individuals intend to bring suit against the Federal Government, and a bill authorizing sale of the old Potomac School on Twelfth street southwest.

The committee tabled the bill to permit the Washington, Alexandria & Mount Vernon Railway to file claims for damages arising from removal of their Washington terminal facilities.

He will be introduced by L. E. Rubel, chairman of the forum committee of the club.

Mr. Brown has made a careful study of technocracy and will point out both its good and bad points.

Free Says Higher Tariff Is Needed

Also Deplores Inflationary Agitation in Rotary Club Speech.

Representative Arthur M. Free told members of the Washington Rotary Club yesterday that American business recovery was being seriously retarded through the failure of the tariff due to depreciated foreign currencies.

In speaking at the club's luncheon at the Willard Hotel, the California legislator chose "panics" as his subject. He declared that inflationary efforts in the form of currency depreciation have always failed the desired effect.

He suggested enactment of the Hill bill would put millions of men to work. President Arthur C. Christie presided.

Son Would Administer L. D. Underwood Estate

Richard L. Underwood, son of Lineas Dott Underwood patent attorney, who died January 19, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed a petition to be appointed administrator of the estate of his father, who, he said, died without making a will. He appended to his petition a written statement signed by his father, on July 30, 1927, revoking every will made previous to that date.

Since no will was found dated after that time, the son asked that he be appointed administrator. Mr. Underwood was survived by his son and second wife, Vlasta Blossom F. Underwood. A first wife, it was shown, named Margaret L. Underwood, is entitled to an allowance of $150 a month from the estate, which consists of approximately $30,000 and a monthly income of $500 from "Card Index," of which Mr. Underwood was owner, editor and publisher.

At the same time permanent officers of the club will be chosen for the year. There were 30 in attendance at yesterday's meeting.
